NORMOUS PRACTICE OF "DOCTOR ELECTRICITY"

Amazing Advance of the Current in the Relief of Human Suffering

Dr. W. J. Dugan.
Jefferson Medical College,
Philadelphia

"DOCTOR ELECTRICITY" is the latest and most miraculous healer who has graduated into the practice of modern medicine.

Only a generation ago at loggerheads with science and all the facilities, he was operating strictly on his own hook, putting the handles of a battery in the grip of his patients, who did their best to convince themselves that the electric thrills they felt were working wonders in their anatomies.

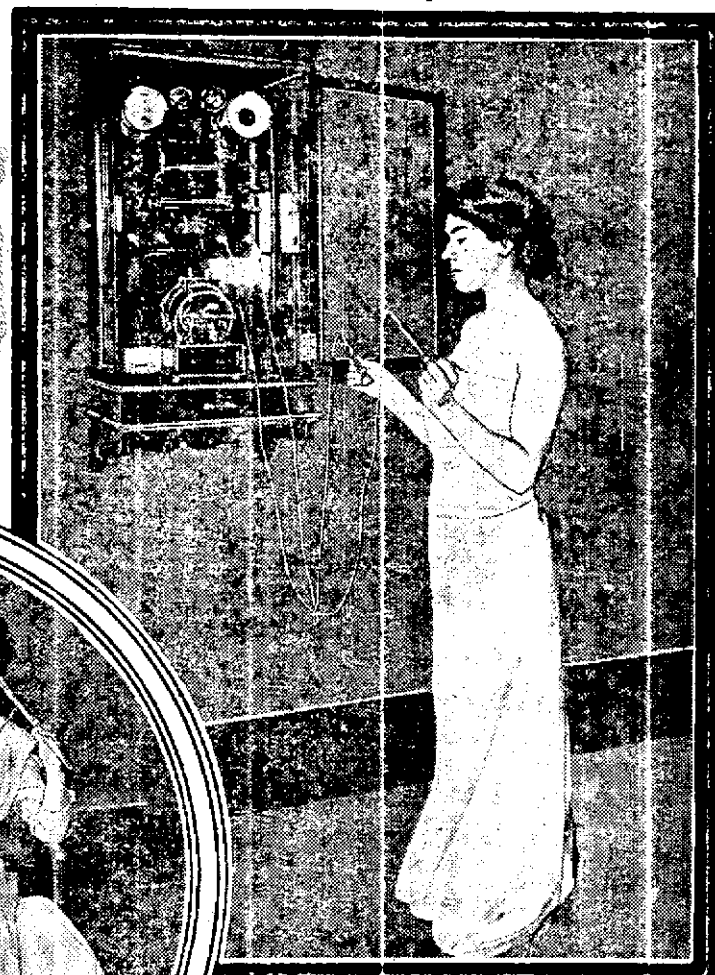

He hadn't a diploma, he was regarded with suspicion where he wasn't repudiated with scorn, and every little while some daring and distinguished leader of the profession that rejected and despised him, turning desperate over some hopeless case, secretly and with timorous misgivings took a reckless chance that old "Doctor Electricity" might do some good if he couldn't do any harm.

It is all changed now. The great schools of medicine are claiming him for their very own. They are more than eager to give him their prized diplomas, and are according him a special place of honor in their learned scientific courses under the imposing name of electro-therapy, which means healing by electricity.

The most impressive feature of his graduation into the highest honors of modern medical science is, that brilliant candidate for the degree of M. D. as he has already proved himself, this new, rejuvenated "Doctor Electricity" is universally recognized as being only at the beginning of his professional career.

Applying High Frequency Currents to the Eyes

Developing Muscles Without Exercise

Ordin current, Dr. Dugan explicitly states, are simply modifications of the one first produced by Morton.

That is only one of three essential forms which are now at "Doctor Electricity's" command for use of the current in his healing art. He has galvanic electricity, which can flow through the human frame as smoothly as the water flows in a wide river; faradic electricity, which might be compared with water ejected under pressure from a nozzle; and now static electricity, which may be said to resemble water in the form of escaping steam.

In what innumerable ways these several currents can be brought to bear upon the human organism the most lively imagination would fall short of suspecting as the scientific reality; as for the ailments themselves which "Doctor Electricity" can mitigate or cure, the most advanced specialists profess to discern still only the beginnings, many as they are.

In the most surprising of the recent applications, what is known as the Bachelet wave permits a debilitated patient to sit at ease in any kind of a chair—a rocking chair, if you like it—and, unconscious of any unusual sensation whatever, to rest there while the magic current actually raises vitality 33 per cent.

CHARGED WITH VITALITY

Your body interposed between the two wood-enclosed electrodes, vital strength and energy literally flow through you and are stored up in all your tissues and nerves, there to remain for seventy-two hours before being completely used up.

More debilitated—dying, with only some such miraculous power needed to carry the patient through the crisis—the apparatus can be taken to the bedside and, with no interference with the regular course of treatment, supply a vitality which may often balk the grave.

Less dramatic, but far more frequently useful, that same surprising wave conquers two disorders, one of which, unabated, is prone to end in death, and the other, after long and indescribable suffering, in madness.

They are hiccoughs, especially those of hysterical origin, and insomnia, the demon of wakefulness ever lying in wait for the too active brain of modern civilization.

But these are only a few of the terrors to be dissipated by the invaluable researches of Emile Bachelet. The diseases amenable to the wave treatment include chorea, or St. Vitus' dance, melancholia, tremors, neuralgia, rheumatism, neurasthenia and neuritis.

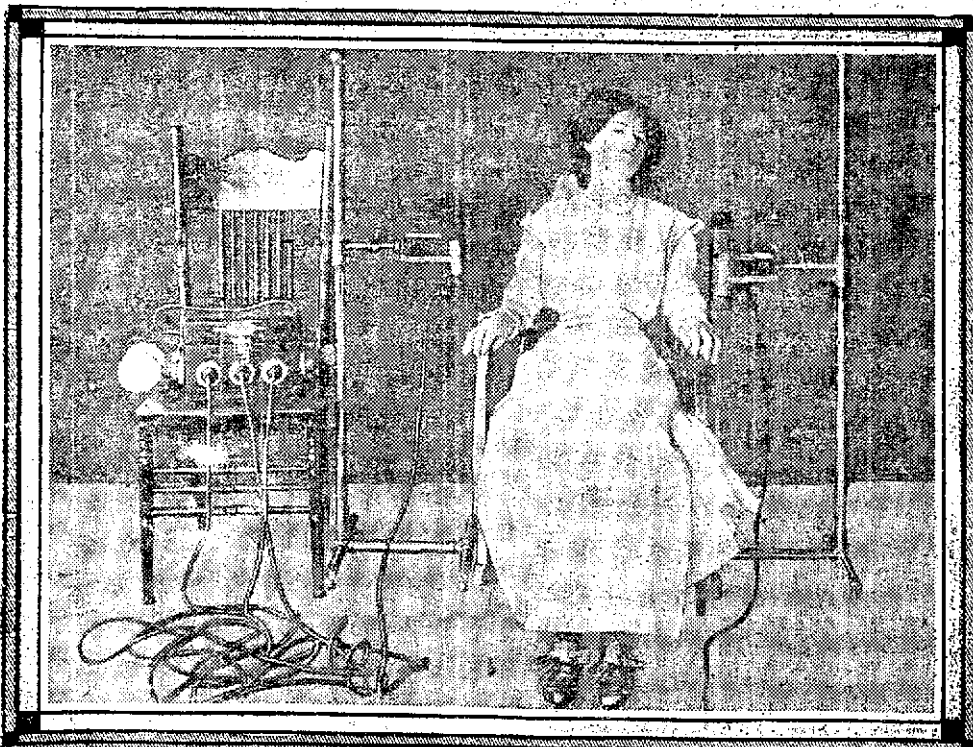

Among the multitude of ways in which neuralgia and rheumatism alone can make life a recurring torture is the suffering so many people endure in the eyes.

An electrode, employed with a high-frequency current, which has recently come into practical service, is made of hollow glass tubing branching into two arms, at the ends of which are moulded cups that exactly fit the eyeballs with the lids closed. An absolute vacuum is produced in the tube and its branches before it is sealed.

The current turned on, a beautiful violet ray, shooting along at incredible speed, permeates the vacuum in the electrode, which the patient herself can hold for the five or ten minutes that suffice to bring relief.

Frequently, and especially when "Doctor Electricity" himself, in the person of the practitioner, operates a single electrode at the base of the skull, the whole room becomes pungent with the smell of the pure ozone liberated by the electricity from the atmosphere; and fre-

SCIENCE MEETS EMERGENCIES

When the new doctor, so young and alert, slips from his automobile, there is yet another kind of hope, that surmises something wondrous up his sleeve which modern science has at last devised to meet the most desperate of emergencies.

Those wondrous things—astounding even to the majority of physicians practicing now—are pre-eminently characteristic of the new "Doctor Electricity," as the successive chapters of such a manual, designed to cover all uses and forms of electro-therapy, make apparent.

Among them are the results attained by the genius of Finsen with the famous Finsen light; the discoveries of Roentgen in the more famous Roentgen rays; the labors of a d'Arsonval in France, and, especially, the contribution by Dr. William J. Morton, of New York, of the invaluable static-induced current to "Doctor Electricity's" fund of apparatus.

Of the work of Morton Americans may well be proud. The currents known as the d'Arsonval current, the Tesla current and the

A singular case of smuggling by means of a dummy baby was brought to light by the city customs officials at the Northern station in Vienna.

Partridge eggs have long past been extensively stolen from preserved estates in Hungary, smuggled into Vienna and sold to poultry dealers, who hatched the eggs in incubators, brought up the birds by hand, and sold them below the prices asked by the more honest dealers. A special lookout for smugglers has resulted in the arrest of two peasant women.

of soaring an imagination had a young lady lying in the Rue d'Allemagne that she was a young lady actually crutched on the level ground. She never disclosed her ho! old mother the fact that she was being airtly wooed by an aspiring young man. So the other evening the fond and agnized parent went to the police to report that her daughter had vanished and that she was a young lady as well. On inquiry a tenant in the house volunteered important evidence. He had several times seen a young couple clandestinely in love, sitting under an umbrella on the roof among the chimney pots. On one occasion he observed them in close conference, and he was with a plumber, who was at work there. The plumber having been interviewed by the police, confessed that it was he who removed the old lady's furniture out of the window, having been induced to do so by the girl's father for a consideration of 20 francs. The girl's father had taken the furniture, which was discovered in an empty room where the couple apparently intended setting up house when they had had enough spooning on the roof. At last the turtle doves themselves were discovered. The girl was taken down from the roof and her mother's more lowly quarters, where her young man may now court her on condition that he comes in by the door in the ordinary way, and the wedding day is set for the following month, and we would have had it she had not been so anxious to match. The girl escaped on the roof with her furniture only of the sale of picturesqueness.

vonian costume, each of them carried a baby tied, according to the invariably national custom, to a cushion, and so closely "backed" that only the face was visible. The women were noticed to be a little agitated as they passed the cushions, and they were followed home. It was then discovered that while one baby was a living child the other was a dummy. It consisted of a wax head, partly hidden by a shawl and cap, while the cushion was filled with more than six hundred partridge eggs.

tennis Library. In Rome the habitation of America by the Celts before Columbus arrived is established beyond question.

The fact that the finder of this interesting information is a woman and that only one of the two is appointed by the Pope to assist the Commission for the Revision of the Vulgate only serves to emphasize the general interest the work she is about to lay before the public.

Mrs. Marlen Mulhall, author of "The Celtic Source of the Divina Comedia" and numerous other works, is the discoverer of the tradition of the coming of an early invasion of America by the Irish.

The maps she uncovered among the numerous archives of the Casanoviana Library are of unquestioned authenticity and show that not only did the Irish come to America long before Columbus in the first century of Christianity, but they gave the name of their native land to the islands of the new country which they occupied.

Elsewhere in the book, which bears the title "Explorers in the New World: Evidence of After Columbus," is a chapter on navigators of the sixteenth century, Irish commanders in the Chili and Peru, and a chapter on the legends and episodes and personalities connected with the romantic conquest of South America. The reader will find the name of After Columbus, a name of no event, and for the first time gives their due credit to the Irish soldiers and sailors who were the discoverers of a notable part in South American history.

The concluding chapter deals with the rise and fall of the Jesuit Mission in Paraguay.

Mrs. Mulhall, who enjoys the signal honor of being the only woman of any name to have received the highest and unique commendation, is one of Ireland's most distinguished women. By his recognition of her work, the Pope has made Holy Father has conferred a well-merited honor, so her countrymen declare, to one of the noblest of Irish women of the day. Miss Mulhall is the widow of the late Dr. Michael Mulhall, famous as a statistician.

Amongst the many horses that were sold at Aldridge's, St. Martin's Lane, the other day was a sluim-bint black pony, a horse of a truly high quality of bone, make and tail, which was believed to be one of the smallest in the world. There was keen competition for its possession, and it was finally knocked down for 230 guineas to Mr. F. Glanville, of Cirencester.

NOTED FRENCH SOCIETY LEADERS ARE COMING HERE

PARIS, June 26.—According to current report, the Marquis and Marchioness de Beauvoir, who are among the most famous entertainers in the high society of Paris, are going to America to live. Both are well known in exclusive circles in New York, having visited there as well as having entertained Gotham fashionables here.

The Marchioness is one of the most beautiful ladies in the world, famous as perhaps the wittiest, most brilliant, most elegant and best dressed woman in Paris. She is a daughter of Baroness de Lowenthal, who was celebrated for good looks, grace of bearing and small feet.

Depinaï, a noted sculptor, said not long ago:

"Were I asked to chisel my conception of a smile, I would copy it in marble the Marchioness de Beauvoir's charming face. Her faint countenance, even when at rest, embodies, typifies a smile."

The Marquis is a thorough-going royalist, a staunch supporter of the Duke of Orleans, and is regarded by many as the principal representative in this country of the President to the French throne.

Formerly the family was one of the richest in France, but unprofitable investments, unlucky experiments with racing stables and entertainments given on a truly royal scale have greatly impaired its resources, which only a few years ago furnished an annual revenue of $120,- Caruso himself, who presumably is better informed on the subject than any other person, has expressed the opinion that he should not believe him? When I interviewed him, the other day, he certainly was not at all sanguine about the clematis and drinking coffee, and wore a resplendent shirt of rose-pink with heliotrope dots. Are not these things the signs of a healthy man?

Naturally, he showed irritation when asked if he was undergoing treatment for his throat. He then fancied that I saw him, like the good superstitious Neapolitan he is, making the mystic cross-sign that charms away the evil influence of the malignant doctor. He dismissed the reports of his indisposition as mere gossip, scarce worth a great article in the press.

"I spent the glad tidings," Caruso is all right!"

Is All Right

But the said glad tidings had scarcely been rushed into print when the long-distance "phone broke in with an inquiry from London, "How did you find Caruso's throat turn out?" Telegrams, anxious and insistent, to the same effect, came from Paris and America, and to know from London, and London put the momentous query up to Milan. Cablegrams and dispatches were sent to Caruso in the care of the Della Vedova clinic. The managers and the press of two hemispheres kept the transatlantic cable busy for days, and the specialists fired off interrogations that were heard around the world.

At the Della Vedova Hospital, therefore, I posted the word. That institution it was which has enshrined the mystery of Enrico Caruso's golden throat.

Caruso, when he came to the hospital and—with his sleeves rolled up, received me with an enigmatic smile, at the same time asked me to attend to him. The famous specialist was ready to do anything for me in his line—to cut my throat, eliminate a tonsil or so, even to cut out my vocal cord, if I longed—but as for discussing the throat of the great Caruso, there was distinctly something else to be attended to.

Refused to Talk

"I cannot speak; you understand, it is a private matter," he said. "Have you operated upon Caruso?" "I really cannot say." "You are successful?" "That is not for publication." And so on at a diadocch for long minutes together, upon the urgent patients called "the professor" attending to him. Nevertheless, the news has to be printed, and important professional secrets, and the fact that Caruso is now in a position to give on an impeccable authority the following facts and figures.

Caruso was operated upon by Professor the operation by three colloquists, Professors Cozzolino, Guzzini and Masseli, who all probably were sworn to secrecy at the hospital. It happened that the operation was conducted at all events, the proceedings were conducted with all the solemnity of a surgical operation, and hardly hedges about a duel to the death. An early morning hour was chosen because the hospital is open to the general public. Afterward Professor Cozzolino left Milan with Caruso to remain in constant watch upon the patient's progress.

The fee paid by Caruso to Vedova was $200, which seems modest enough, considering the fact that the operation was highly successful.

Caruso had been sent to Prof. Della Vedova by the Milan press, and his arrival in Milan was preceded by full telegraphic advice.

Caruso was in Milan in the second time the tenor has entrusted his precious vocal outfit to the same renowned professor. The first operation, some three years ago, was his last, and he has since for this latter one.

Caruso, in other words, is in a matter of two, or related or "symmetrical" treatments. The first time it was a right vocal cord that was operated upon; this time it was the left.

The operation, I am informed, is simple—one in itself, consisting of the removal of a mass of tissue in order to facilitate the emission of vocal tones. But it is an extremely delicate matter, and the operation is performed with a timbre and resilience of the voice. The result three years ago was all that could be desired, and the operation is entered similar success now.

However, Caruso was in a worse condition when he came to the hospital, of greater strain during the past two seasons. The two-thousand-dollar-a-night salary was turned on too often and too freely.

Even if the operation realizes all that is hoped for, Caruso will have several weeks' watchful and anxious regime, and Caruso can again pour forth his powerful voice, and the opera house will be able to resume its normal tide of revenue resume its normal flow. And after that, he must still "gild the lily," as the saying is, and the championship for the new season.

Live and quiet are the chief requirements for Caruso, now. Caruso has been in the hospital for some time, and inquiries coming in, and all this new going out at present here, is in a state of complete distraction. He has been urged him, from the outset of his trouble, to give the facts to the press. But this he has refused to do, and he has been urged. It neither calmed nor persuaded him. His only bulletin to the press is: "I am all right."

Let us cordially hope that he is. Let him rest in peace, if only because the world needs him.

Suffice it to say that, according to all competent opinion, Caruso's voice will be as good as new.

(By VANCE THOMPSON)

PARIS, June 26.—Garden is safe guarding a most romantic love story. The heroine is her young sister, Helen, a beautiful girl aged 22, who is now locked up in Mary's Paris home in the Avenue Malakoff. The hero is Dalmores, now singing in the London Covent Garden opera. In addition to being a powerful, upstanding man of thirty-six, he has the passionate nature which made him a great artist in New York. When Dalmores was singing with Hammerstein he met the graceful Helen Garden, being a simple girl, never out of her mother's sight. It was a case of love at first sight. But as in every great love story from that of Romeo down to Alfred Vanderbilt there was a difficulty. Dalmores was married. His wife, more than thirty-six years old, and half blind, was, of course, no rival for the brilliant American girl of 22. Now let Mary Garden tell the story in her own way. She was sitting in her flower decked salon in the Avenue Malakoff, dressed in a steel blue gown, her eyes full of excitement.

"When we first suspected it, mother and I never left Helen alone, so one day Mr. Hammerstein said, 'Mary, I never see you without Dalmores. I only laughed, but it made me wonder. Then one night I saw Helen's eyes and I knew. You can't hide love. Oh, Dalmores just swept her off her feet. You know how young she is. She simply thrilled when this big man of thirty-six touched her, but I don't pity Helen too much. He is to be the one who will suffer."

Caught in Boston

"Don't interrupt me. They went one Sunday to Boston, you know, but mother and I caught them. I need not say that Helen returned with us but oh, how tragic it was."

Mary Garden leaned back in her chair and as the sunlight fell on her gold and red hair she closed her eyes and said: "What a thing love is! I was younger when Helen when it came into my life, much younger. So that's why I will stand by her until the end. I know what a broken heart is. I was not twenty when my heart broke. It is why I sing. When your heart breaks there is nothing left to do but sing and try to forget. She shall have the man she loves if I can help her. Of course, you know Dalmores. What a fellow he is. He is self-made and what he did with his first money was to buy an apartment house in New York, his old mother. She lives on the first floor and the income of all the other flats is hers."

"He was very young when he married. (His wife is a good woman, not wholly blind. She can write large letters. Dalmores put his savings, 75,000 francs, in a beautiful home on the hillside of St. Cloud, overlooking the Seine. Dalmores offered her this property, also all his savings and salary up to date. He agreed to give her half his earnings if she would consent to a divorce. He will do nothing to hinder her divorce, who is a French woman of the middle class, will not consent. But I have an intuition that all will come right in the end. Such true love must find its reward."

Will Stand by Helen

Mary Garden's last words were: "Mother and I will stand by Helen and keep her with us safe till Dalmores can come to honestly marry her."

Mary's representative of THE TRIBUNE, automobile to St. Cloud to hear about her husband's romance, but the house was dark and the big garden bed was unattended.

Dolly Brandt, the black-eyed prima donna who starred in the "Waltz Light opera" which premiered at the Light opera in Europe and which they think in the "Dollar Princess." She will stay in Paris until tomorrow, the day of the grand prize, and then will go to San Sebastian, the Spanish summer resort, to study with Senor Trabado, the great voice teacher. She said to THE TRIBUNE correspondent:

Voice Culture, Sea Baths

"My voice is tired with a long season in the United States and you might fancy my vacation would be one long rest. To the contrary I shall spend every day with Trabado working six hours daily. I shall sing no notes, simply take voice culture and then sea baths along the splendid coast of San Sebastian. My mother is coming with me and as we go in a motor car you can imagine that all over Europe. But what does that matter? Senor Trabado is only taking three pupils this year while he is in San Sebastian; one from the Paris opera, the second from the Opera Comique and the third from the Grand Opera."

Miss Brandt came over on the Princess Alice with her mother. She was greatly surprised to see "Chappie" Chapman drive down to the dock to see her off. Chapman is a member of the firm of brokers, Chisholm and Chapman, of Forty-third street and Fifth avenue, New York. The last time he caught the attention of the public was when he traveled last year as chamberlain to the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire on their trip from New York to Naples, thence to Paris. Miss Brandt said:

Almost Fainted

"When I saw 'Chappie' at the dock I almost fainted. He was formerly my husband, you know. That happened nearly five years ago. We took for our LONDON, June 26.—Now that the Prince and Princess of Wales have returned from their adventurous trip to Cornwall, during which they had the unusual experience of going down a thousand feet into a tin mine near Liskeard, members of the king's household and others who attended the court on Thursday night and who noticed how very tired his majesty looked are hoping that he will turn over some of his duties to his heir. The king, however, seems reluctant to lay down the reins of power and insists on performing duties and attending functions which he might well delegate to the Prince of Wales.

King to Recuperate

The king has at last consented to go to Marlborough to recuperate. The fact that he is going to Marlborough was officially denied this week, but the Tribune learned tonight that his majesty will visit the famous spa following the serious advice of Dr. Ott, who has been in London for the past three days. Dr. Ott visited the king and received assurances that he would visit Marlborough. An interesting event is to occur in Dr. Ott's family soon and his majesty delicately offered to defer his visit, but Dr. Ott insisted that there should be no delay.

The Royal Ball

There are no more fatiguing functions this season for the king beyond the state ball at Buckingham Palace on July 2d. This is the only royal ball of the season, and already pressure upon the king chamberlain for invitations is exceedingly heavy. Americans will be numerous invited because the king has let it be known, in ways which kings have, that it is a good thing to induce wealthy Americans to spend their time and money in London instead of on the continent. The king is very commercial in some ways and it is a common saying that his majesty is the best commercial traveler in England.

Policy of Government is Working Wonders

TOKIO, June 26.—Before leaving Seoul for the northern part of Korea today, former Vice-President Charles Warren Fairbanks prepared the following statement giving his impressions of the Japanese rule of Korea: "The political, social and industrial condition of Korea is steadily improving and this improvement is commensurate with the establishment of the Japanese protectorate. Much of this progress was made under the far-sighted statesmanship of Prince Ito."

Regeneration Well Started

"The regeneration of this country has been well started and I find everywhere evidence of the high purpose of Japan towards Korea and the Koreans. Foremost among these was the establishment of a judicial system, next to the introduction of good schools."

And that the Japanese are establishing a public medical, legal and agricultural colleges and this means everything to the people of Korea."

"Foreign missionaries are now working in full co-operation and with this understanding in the Japanese protectorate. The influence of the missionaries upon the natives is excellent."

"The insurrection has completely subsided and good order has been generally established throughout the country."

Development the Watchword

"The Japanese are devoting their energies to the development of the natural resources of Korea and in this connection I was glad to find that 75 per cent of the mineral products are controlled by Americans."

"In conclusion I will say education and honesty are the prime essentials necessary for the complete regeneration of Korea and both of these are being used by the Japanese protectorate. Japan has a delicate task and one that will doubtless tax her statesmanship but I have every reason to hope for the full success of the present policy."

homoonym the far West, San Francisco, and the Yellowstone Park. Then we arrived in Denver. 'Chappie' is a great favorite in society there, so popular, indeed, that he seemed to forget he had a bride at the hotel, so I packed my trunk and ran home to my mother in New York."

"Two days later I received a telegram from 'Chappie' saying he was dying of congestion of the lungs in Denver and then, after some further inquiries, I learned that my dear husband really had a punctured tire, but the trouble in his lung was that he got a bullet through it at the hands of a Denver husband who pulled a trigger without waiting for 'Chappie' to explain. Still I thought it good enough cause for divorce."

Miss Brandt does not know what may happen in the future. She has been asked to visit Chapman's parents in Florence, Italy, where they say Chapman will arrive in September. Miss Brandt will open her season in New York late in October.

This Is Alienating the PeopleOxford Movement He Believes
Is Eventually Tending to Demoralization

LONDON, June 26.—The Bishop of Hereford, whose see is one of the richest in England, has become almost as radical as the chancellor of the exchequer, Lloyd-George.

The bishop, noting that the masses of England were not attending church, explained the distressful fact by stating that "clericalism was choking the church and alienating it from the people." The bishop's speech is one of the most sensational of the religious world, while it is discussed also in political circles because the people of Wales, led by the Welsh chancellor of the exchequer, are demanding a convention of the churchmen's union the bishop said:

"May I not be that the church has too often stood upon the wrong side; has too often seemed to be more agitated and more eager about its rights and privileges than the needs of others to which men feel that Christ would have turned with immediate and undivided care?"

Seeking an explanation of the indifference of the democracy to the church the bishop suggested that it might be due to the condition represented by the words quoted:

"It has been sometimes urged," he said, "that the Oxford movement was eventually tending towards the denationalization of the church and I believe in its essence to be a true contention."

"When you consider the growing cleavage between the clerical sentiment and the general sentiment pervading any society of ordinary Englishmen, when you observe the prevalence of that feeling of mistrust of the church which really means mistrust of the clergy, you can hardly fail to recognize the truth of that denationalizing tendency. The brother bishop has said that the great tidal wave of modernism is on its way and for the most part simply left the church out of account, the multitude of the wisest members of the nation were indifferent to the church, and the few who were sympathetic with their hopes and their aims."

"Such a contention from a leading high church dignitary is suggestive of our loss of power in the church and the nation. The greatest portion of the clergy has been caught in the reaction of the upper and wealthier classes of the English life, and has consequently thrown the weight of its influence in public affairs on the side of wealth and privilege. They mistrust the recent growth of democracy, and fear its growth and they are repelled by the revival of the sacerdotal doctrine towards medievalism, a revival of claims at variance with modern knowledge, claims that endeavor to make the church of the middle ages a model of medieval practices and priestly authority."

"For my part I believe such claims are the reactionary attitude of mind out of which they spring to be fundamentally repellant to the sentiments of educated democracy."

PARIS, June 26.—One of the most delightful musical functions of the season which is now drawing to an end, for Sunday is the grand prize and after that it is not considered good form to remain in Paris, was given on Wednesday evening by Mrs. Hamilton Paine in her magnificent residence in Avenue Du Bois de Boulogne. Miss Magie Teyle, the famous star of the Opera Comique, assisted by Percy Sharrman of London, interpreted compositions of the hostess in brilliant style. Miss Teyle sang some of the most beautiful songs with pathos and flash and elicited the enthusiastic applause of the assembled guests.

Mrs. Paine was assisted in receiving by Miss Mabel Clinton Paine of Baltimore, who wore a pale blue gown with that sort of her little figure to great advantage.

LONDON, June 26.—This has been a Darwin week in Cambridge. American scientists have vied with the foremost men of science in the old world to do honor to the man who popularized, if he did not actually discover, the great law which has so profoundly revolutionized the thought of the world. Dr. Ray Lankester, to whom fell the honor of speaking on behalf of English scientists, told me that he thought the beautiful simplicity of transparent sincerity of Darwin were more remarkable than even his epoch-making books.

Professor Darwin, the son and representative of Charles Darwin, is a hale white haired man, well preserved in physique with a genial manner and a good carrying voice. His face is clean shaven except for a bushy white moustache. As the son of his father he was naturally the center figure at the Cambridge centennial celebration. Had he not been the son of Charles Darwin he would still have been a conspicuous figure.

Most remarkable of all features of the Darwin celebration has been the almost complete subsidence of theological controversy which raged so fiercely thirty years ago.

It would be an interesting inquiry as to how far in America evolution, according to Darwin, has been accepted as an improvement on Genesis, according to Moses. In England it is almost everywhere accepted. The most of the churches openly admitted that the witness to the marvel and miracle of the creative work Darwin is a more convincing witness than the unknown author of the simple but sublime Cosmogony of the pentateuch.

The other day one of the best fellows in the world, Commissioner Bailton of the Salvation Army, called upon me to protest that if I did not admit and with a whole heart thoroughly believe that the world "and all the things that are therein" including the sun and moon and stars, were created in six days of twenty-four hours each, I might as well throw the Bible into the fire and demand the crushing of Christianity as a gigantic imposture.

So strange are the survivals to be found in the twentieth century. Yet there is not a more devoted, and within his tenets, a more intelligent man living than my friend Bailton. He simply could not see that Darwin was enormously strengthened the argument from design and made the immensity of God far more realizable by man than it was before.

Lieut. Shackleton's Faith

A curious instance of how the religious idea dominates men who disclaim any idea of being religious is afforded by Lieutenant Shackleton, the hero of Antarctic explorations. He publicly declared the other day in my hearing that he and all his men had acquired an unshakable conviction as the result of their long battling with Antarctic dangers that they had been throughout constantly guarded by a supreme power who had delivered them, time and again, out of perils that seemed certain to overwhelm them.

It is the precise modern version of the ancient Hebrew did not deny the acknowledgment of God's mercy by disclaiming, "Being religious and that sort of thing."

When I was down at Warwick Castle yesterday, Sir Oliver Lodge, the president of Birmingham University, assured me that the case of previous reported a fortnight ago in connection with Lady Warwick's motor car accident is about the best case of the kind that he ever heard of.

Curiously enough not an English paper so far has reported the accident, though it occurred in broad daylight on Chelsea Embankment. As an instance of journalistic necessity this would be hard to beat. It is not every day that the wrecked in the streets of London to the imminent danger of the lives of the occupants. Lady Warwick, I am glad to say, has completely recovered from the effects of her accident.

The use was made in the House of Commons of the Washington's bureau report on "Wages Earning Women and Children in Great Britain" in the debate on factory labor is an interesting and suggestive example of the mutual service the two English-speaking nations can render to the cause of humanity.

That damning sentence, "where mothers work (in the factory) the majority of the children are dead; where mothers are alive," made a profound impression on Parliament. All civilized nations have the same problem, but it is only to those nations which speak the same language that these reports are mutually serviceable.

The report reminded me of what Dr. Hamilton, the lady who for many years was physician to the Amer. Ambassador in Afghanistan, told me about that "save" but masterful ruler. He had given an order in her presence for the eyes of eighty prisoners to be cut out. She induced him to rescind his order by assuring him that in her country, wholesale blinding of the broad winners of eighty families would be regarded as a wasteful extravagance.

He sent them to work in the government of the country.

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.)

PARIS, June 26.—I don't know whether the "American invasion" will ever grow so serious as to incite a popular uprising, but one thing is sure we are being invaded in those very fields wherein we thought we were strongest. Chicago music teachers are firmly established in Paris in the persons of Charles King Clarke and Mrs. Robinson Duff. A big Chicago dancer smothering the name of Weeks has established himself in the Boulevard Haussmann and says he can give "pointers" whatever that may be, to Duccy, Paquin, Worth and other classical establishments.

Hitherto we had associated the Queen City of the Northwest with agricultural implements and pork.

New York also touches us on a tender spot by sending Miss Close to compete with our houses of hosiery in all that comes under the French word lingerie. And as though to add insult to injury, Mrs. Helen Swift, also a New York woman, has successfully introduced a new system of beautifying our women. She has treated the fair face even of such a well known personage as the morganatic wife of King Leopold of Belgium, otherwise known as the Baroness de Vaughan. After this record of invasion my readers will not be surprised to learn that another American, George Washington Lobb, whose name has hitherto been associated with the light fantastic toe, is about to establish a school of international grand opera.

Galling to Parisians

More galling still to us Parisians is the fact that American society people are competing with our musical composers. Of these are Sebastian B. Schlessinger of Boston, Mrs. Chisholm-Smith of New York, and Mrs. Hamilton Paine of Boston.

Americans are certain to get a great treat next winter from the many noble ladies who have taken to dancing. Not long ago a real Russian princess showed her dancing accomplishments in Paris. She is none other than the Princess Abomelock and she entertained for hours at a time guests of the well known Parisian hostess, the Comtesse de Noan.

Now we have another Russian lady of the nobility to entertain us. She is Madame Ida Ruzensky. She has attached herself to the Imperial troop of St. Petersburg and shows her prowess at our national academy of dance.

The Unclad in Art

It is curious that these noble dancers all affect the unclad in art. By way of a return invasion they are sure to invade the United States next winter. Though noble, they like to be paid, if not directly, at least indirectly, after the fashion of Lady Constance Richardson, by giving benefits for their pet charities.

I am thankful that in one field at least we still retain supremacy. Once more France blazes the way with new diadems and old ones made over in French fashion.

The Culinary Exposition just closed furnished an occasion. The most sensational review is what is called the dish of St. John the Baptist. When the great precursor lived in the desert his food it is said was locusts and wild honey. Now in Southern Algeria we have had a plague of the scurvy locusts. Some of the French colonists sent large quantities of them to Paris and our famous cooks have been making them into succulent pies seasoned with honey.

At Bagdad, French settlers have commenced to do a thriving trade with locusts pie, which the townspeople esteem as the latest and best delicacy.

Butterfly Pies

The exposition has brought us two more dishes, one from Australia and one from India. The former has put the kangaroo in the hands of our chefs. The latter has enabled our kitchen generals to try their practiced hands on the bear. The butterfly is also under consideration and before our American guests are homeward bound in the fall they will have an opportunity of ordering butterfly pie at D'Arrenville, Voin's cafe de Paris, Dursault's, etc.

HAMMERSTEIN WILL INVADE PARIS WITH OPERA

PARIS, June 26.—Oscar Hammerstein is sailing for home after the busy summer campaign he has ever conducted. He has heard no less than 400 singers and has engaged forty-seven of them who are en route to New York. He announced that his kitchen generals to try their practiced hands on the bear. The butterfly is also under consideration and before our American guests are homeward bound in the fall they will have an opportunity of ordering butterfly pie at D'Arrenville, Voin's cafe de Paris, Dursault's, etc.

Also in England and also in America, worse extravagance prevails in the case of the children.

Yet, as even Abrahamman recognized, children are the best asset of a nation. When Dr. Hamilton expatiated with him for one of his periodical measures, he replied: "The old man has done too much evil; the middle-aged have done too much; the young people have heard too much. It is only the very little children who are worth preserving alive."

Some unionists are endeavoring to get up an agitation to induce the House of Lords to throw out the budget. No such trick need be hoped for by the government. The House of Lords is not as yet affected with official da-

YIDDISH WRITER HAS JUST DIED

Was Referred to by His Race as a Shakespeare--Wrote 200 Plays

NEW YORK, June 27.—Jacob M. Gordin, the East Side playwright who was often referred to by his admirers in the Yiddish press as the "Yiddish Shakespeare," died the other day at his home, 356 Madison street, Brooklyn. For the last three months he has been confined to his bed by a cancerous affliction. Gordin was 66 years old. He had practically made the Yiddish theater in New York, furnishing them with an extraordinary large number of dramas, most of which proved very successful and made for him an enthusiastic admirer out of every playgoer on the East Side. Many of his plays were printed in Yiddish and had a wide circulation. While Gordin's fame as a playwright was confined largely to the district where his plays were produced, one of his dramas was translated and played before American audiences, and also in England. This was his "Kreutzer Sonata," in which Blanche Walsh starred. Save for the name, it had no relation to Tolstoy's work, being a story of Jewish life. The production of this play enhanced his fame a great deal as being the first real recognition paid to an East Side playwright.

Born in Russia

Gordin was born in May, 1853, in the province of Poltava, Russia. He became a school teacher and then a writer for a Russian paper in Odessa. His articles on politics soon attracted attention, and secured for him a considerable following, though it was not until he founded a society known as the Bible Brotherhood that he began to make enemies in his native land. The society was an anti-Semitic one and much of the opposition came from Russian Jews. In 1891, when a more rigid press censorship was established Gordin was compelled to leave Russia. When he arrived here he could not write a word of the Yiddish language of the Jews on the East Side, but he quickly became proficient in it and was soon turning out plays which made him popular and stimulated the growth of the Yiddish theater. He wrote, it is said, over 100 plays, many of them powerful dramas as interpreted by the East Side tragedians. Of this prolific output not one is said to have been a failure. The first one, "Siberia," he sold to Jacob Adler, the actor, in 1892 for $15. It is said, at a time when he was all but penniless. Other plays that he wrote were "The Unknown," "The Homeless," "Dementia Americana," "The Truth," "God, Man and the Devil" and "True Power."

Dementia Americana

It was he who first introduced to the East Side the plays of Ibsen, Sudermann, Hauptmann and Gorky. In some of his own plays he satirized conditions here. His "Dementia Americana" was a satire on the real estate mania among the Jews. He sought to raise the standard of Jewish family life in his "Purity of the Family," produced at a time when moral conditions on the East Side were being criticized. The Jewish newspapers united in giving him credit for lifting dramatic art among his people to a high standard, as compared with its condition here. Many of Gordin's sayings are as familiar in East Side homes as are quotations from Shakespeare elsewhere. A saying attributed to him which has had much to do with the raising of his race is: "When American Jews tell the truth and shame the dollar it will be the greatest country intellectually in the world."

Worked for Race

In the work of bettering conditions among the East Side Jews Gordin took a leading part outside of his literary efforts. He was one of the founders of the Educational Alliance and was a liberal subscriber to Jewish charities. In many ways he was a leader among his people, a fact which was attested by the manner in which he was often followed about in the streets. Large and powerfully built, with a massive head and a long, heavy black beard, he was a figure who was sufficient to attract attention. He spoke five languages and by many was regarded as a seer. Gordin leaves eleven children and his widow. They were all at his bedside when he died.

Plans were not completed yesterday for his funeral, but it is said to be the intention to hold it in one of the theaters where his plays were produced and have it on an imposing scale.

FILLING THE TEETH OF HORSES WITH GOLD

Dentistry has been reduced to such a fine art that even horses now have their teeth filled with gold. Of course, only very few thoroughbreds have been operated upon, but in the Newmarket stables may be seen several valuable horses which, when they smile, show a glittering set of gold teeth.

In horses, however, teeth filling is more of a necessity than a fad. Perhaps a racehorse, upon whom the owner places great expectations, will break a leg a few days before the race, leaving jagged edges to injure its tongue. The animal will go off its food, and become run down, and there is a likelihood of its not being well enough to run in the race.

The owner sends the animal to the dentist, who places a speculum in its mouth to force it wide open. The broken teeth are then removed and the jagged edges cut off. A tiny drill, attached to a small electric battery, digs away the tooth enamel, leaving it perfectly smooth.

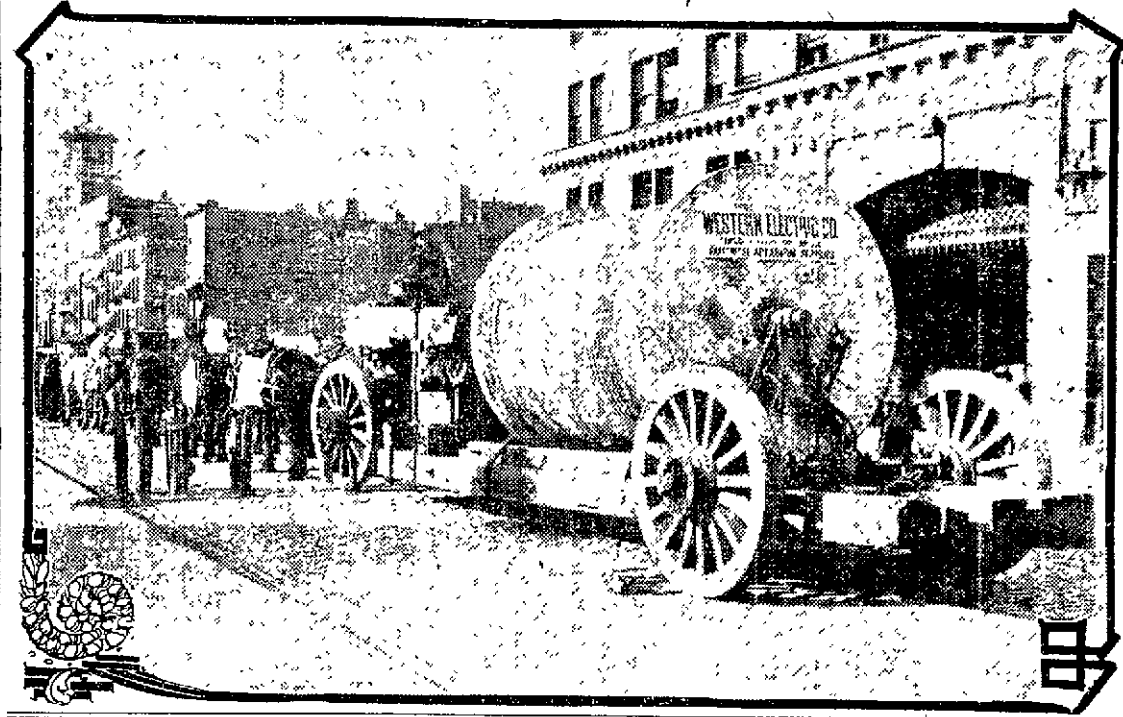

The tooth is then cleaned by means of hot air blown from a syringe. A small piece of malleable gold is then prepared and pounded tight into the cavity, and more and more is added till finally the tooth regains its proper size and shape. It is then filed smooth and polished, the operation taking about an hour.

The filling of a horse's teeth with gold is done with aluminum and amalgam as well as with gold. The operation varies in cost from $1 to $50, for to fill a back or molar tooth requires a good deal of gold, since these teeth are in great bread and three inches long.

GRAND DUKE AT WORK

ST. PETERSBURG.—The Grand Duke Michael, only brother of the czar, having discovered a life of idleness and exemption from military service detracts from his popularity, has turned to and gone to work in a little provincial town with a line regiment of cavalry. Before there was a little Czarist little in the world, Michael Alexandrovich occupied a most unenviable position. At any moment he might have to become Emperor of Russia and there were reasons why such a turn of events would have been deplored. But with the birth of the little Alexis, danger passed and the criticized brother of the czar was allowed to go his own sweet pace. That he has awakened to the responsibilities of his position and is capable of rescuing the attacked of the Tsar, shows he is not the simpleton they took him for.

Why "Christian Science?"

A reader of The Monitor sends us an article of a religious character clipped from this paper and asks, "Why call this Christian Science?" It is only Christian Science. We are glad to answer this question, since the answer may interest other readers and it comes within the scope of this series of articles. First of all, let us say we heartily agree that the religion illustrated by the two articles in question is Christianity. All the articles of a religious character which appear in this paper aim to elucidate or expound, whole and complete Christianity. The Christian religion is the religion that was taught and practiced by Jesus the Christ. He did not give a name to his religion; he individualized and designated it by what he taught and especially by what he accomplished in the practice of it. He laid down a rule by which his religion could be identified by future generations; that is, it could be known by its fruits. He expressed this rule in different words at different times, but always to the same effect.

Thus he said: "Every tree is known by its own fruit"; "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also"; "These signs shall follow them that believe. In my name shall they cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and they shall drink any deadly thing, and it shall hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover"; "If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death." The religion which Christ Jesus founded differs from all others in respect to its fruits, or the results of its practice. In other words, the distinctive feature of the Christian religion is its salvation. It, alone, has undertaken, with a considerable degree of success, to bring to humanity a present salvation from sin, disease and death, by the power of God. The qualities of its salvation distinguish it from all other religions. It is taught and practiced from all other systems of religion. It was this fact which earned for him the title, the Saviour.

In the course of time after Christ Jesus went beyond this stage of existence, the work of his religion was held by many sects, and each of these sects, after the third century to go all the way back to the time of Christ, was a different way between sin and physical disorder, and the Christian sects limited the practice of their religions to salvation from moral disorder. From the third century to the nineteenth century there was no body of Christians which did not in subject of a distinction between moral and physical disorder, and regard salvation in this world from the latter as not among the normal fruits of religion. Therefore, when Mrs. Eddy founded a church "designed to commemorate the word and works of our Master, which should regenerate primitive Christianity and its lost element of healing" (to quote from the resolution adopted when it was organized), there was no impropriety in calling it a Church of Christ.

NATION'S AMAZING GROWTH AND RICHES BEAT THE WORLD

Government Report Gives Figures Showing Tremendous Development of Resources and Business

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Just how great a nation the United States is, how rapidly it has grown in population and the tremendous development in its business are all told in a volume just issued and commonly known as the Statistical Abstract.

At first sight it is not a very enterprising book. It has 700 pages of statistics and the reading matter is so scarce that one shrinks with joy when he comes across a two line introduction to a table.

At the same time the Statistical Abstract contains enough facts to supply every country store and debating society with ammunition for a full year and longer. It tells chiefly how much progress we have made from 1800 to 1908.

It is interesting to observe, for example, from the figures of the areas of the various States and Territories with which the volume opens, that the total continental area, including Alaska, is about equal to that of all Europe; that while the area conceded to the thirteen original States by the peace treaty of 1790 was 3,620,000 square miles, the area is but 3,620,000 square miles; the other 502,000 square miles forming in whole or in part thirteen other States, while the remaining twenty-four States and Territories were created from territory added by purchase or annexation.

Of the 30,000,000 of population occupying this area practically one-third, speaking in round terms, are found in the thirteen original States, another third in the States created from territory added by purchase or annexation, and the remaining third in the area added by purchase or annexation.

While a large share of the territory of the United States has come under cultivation, the individual ownership of the land is still largely unappropriated and unreserved in 1908 at 754,896,000 acres, of which 358,022,000 acres are in Alaska, 61,770,000 in Nevada, 40,532,000 in Montana, 44,788,000 in New Mexico, and 42,769,000 in Arizona. Swamp and overflow lands are shown to aggregate in round terms 75,000,000 acres.

Developed water power of the United States is reported at 5,457,000 horsepower, and the number of wheels which it turns at 52,827. The estimated coal supply of the United States is 3,135,708,000 tons; while the output from the mines of the United States in 1907, the year of the largest production, was 429,000,000 tons.

Available iron ore is estimated at 4,785,000,000 long tons, and the production of iron ore from the mines of the United States in the year 1907 was 52,000,000 tons, the largest total ever produced in a year. The petroleum areas are set down from reports supplied by the United States Geological Survey at 3550 square miles, or somewhat larger than Massachusetts; and the gas areas at 10,055 square miles, or slightly more in area than Vermont.

Business activities are illustrated by the figures of the Postoffice Department, which show a growth in receipts, chiefly, of course, from the sale of postage stamps, from $1,000,000 in 1850, to $1,320,000 in 1859, to $1,500,000 in 1870, to $3,000,000 in 1880, to $6,000,000 in 1890, to $12,000,000 in 1900, to $19,500,000 in 1908. The number of letters and postcards sent through the postal system of the United States is given as 4,465,000,000 in 1907, as against 2,263,000,000 handled by the postal service of the German empire and 2,269,000,000 by the postal service of the United Kingdom.

The above picture given a vivid impression of the mammoth spool of cable which is destined to connect Oakland and San Francisco by telephone. Together with the truck which had been especially constructed to hold the great reel the weight between the twenty-four horses is over thirty-one tons. The length of the cable which is the first quarter of a line to be stretched under San Francisco bay, connecting with this city by way of Goat Island is 4250 feet.

This cable is to be laid in the bay in two sections. The first 5500 feet in length extends from San Francisco to Goat Island. Here connections with land cable will be made. The lines will dip again into the water with another stretch of 8500 feet to Oakland mole.

The cable is one of the largest ever made. It contains sixty-nine pairs of telephone wire, insulated and protected. This will mean sixty-nine trunk lines under the waters of San Francisco bay. Heavy and wire forming the armor plate, which is capable of withstanding the ravages of the deep for many a year. The cable is between three and four inches in diameter.

The shipping of the big reel and the stretching of the cable under San Francisco bay together form quite an undertaking. The cable was ordered by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company. The second length left New York in the same manner two days later, and will follow the first 15,000 feet, will follow it soon as completed.

Christian Scientists likewise endeavor to destroy error of every kind, root and branch, and in the degree that they do so they "bear witness unto the truth." Our readers should not expect us always to speak of Christian Science in its application to the healing of bodily sickness; for it is a religion which is of universal application to human needs; and it is none the less Science because it is also Christianity.

Therefore, the answer to our reader's question is, We call the religion expressed in these articles Christian Science because in the words of Mrs. Eddy, "Christian Science is the Science of God and His universe, including man."

Swindling Collectors of Old China Experts Themselves Often Deceived

In a recent law case some remarkable figures were quoted as representing the value of pieces of genuine Dresden china. While, however, old china if often one of the most profitable investments, the danger of being victimized by fakes and forgeries is very great; and it is really only possible to guard against this danger by constant study and handling of specimens.

A well-known collector of old Worcester, for instance, whose collection comprises about 2000 items, has a cabinet full of clever forgeries, and he is constantly studying these. But even experts are taken in at times. About three years ago a collector bought at a London curiosity shop a couple of vases bearing the letters "R. A." which was said to have been the Dresden china mark since 1793. They were offered at $30, and were worth at least $4000 if genuine. The dealer confessed ignorance of their real value, and consequently the collector thought he had made a great find. And it was not until he showed the vases to another collector some time afterwards that he discovered that the marks were forgeries. Ultimately the dealer was fined for offering for sale alleged Dresden which he knew bore forged trade marks.

There is an enormous business being done at the present time by Italian artists in the manufacture of faked china. The favorite dodge is to obtain a genuine bit of old china and skillfully restore it by faking. Many of these spurious pieces are very crude and easily detected by the expert, but there are numerous skilled artists devoted to this work on the continent, and as the genuine pieces are finding homes in the various museums and the supply diminishes in proportion, artfully contrived imitations, perfect in every detail, are foisted more and more on the collector.

Said a china expert to the B. man the other day: "Marks are forged to such an extent that it is advisable for a beginner to study the differences of paste, glass, and decoration, and judge by these rather than by manufacturers' marks."

AN ARTFUL DODGE

It is, perhaps, even more difficult to detect faked and restored than spurious china, for the simple reason that the former is often made from wood of very old age. The beams and rafters of old houses are bought up and utilized for making or restoring chairs and tables and dressers, which, although perhaps only worth two or three pounds each, are sold for ten and twenty times that amount. Perhaps one of the most artful dodges for disposing of this faked "old" furniture is that practised by a dealer in the Western Midlands.

He has over fifty Welsh farmhouses on his books, in each of which he has deposited for the use of the tenant, but also in the hope that holiday people might desire to buy them, old dressers, cupboards, and tables. The inexperienced hunter for old furniture invariably falls for a room-holer. They are provided for him by a jolly-looking peasant with small shot, and lest he should be suspicious and probe for worm dust they are carefully "salted" with fine sand. It is well, therefore, that the enthusiast even Old Masters, executed by a well-known hack painter who worked for the "trade."

A $2000 DEAL.
Rugs, tapestry, old armor, historical relics, and sculpture all lend themselves to the wiles and tricks of the forger. It is only about four years ago, for instance, since a "fifteenth century" chimney-piece was made by a Paris sculptor to the order of a dealer for $120. The dealer had the chimney-piece erected in a palace near Venice, and then photographed it. A collector in Paris, who was shown the photograph, sent his agent to Italy and bought the article for $2300. Later the fraud was discovered by a workman, and under threats of exposure the dealer returned the $2300.

Perhaps some of the most important art forgeries, however, are those carried on in connection with historical relics. Most of us, of course, have read how Mark Twain found sufficient bits of the truth in the various towns that he visited as an inveterate traveler, and how he found the thousands of relics which have been sold with which treasures are said to have been signed Good prices are paid for genuine historical relics, those with which the "Trade of Antiquaries" is signed in 1801, for instance, being sold at $500.

FORGED HISTORICAL RELICS

Voltaire cannot have owned more than a fraction of the walling-sticks that have been sold as his, and a French tradesman is said to boast that he had disposed of 122 "lost walking-sticks" stolen by Jean-Jacques Rousseau. A Paris tradesman for a long time did an equally lucrative business in "the last pair of trousers worn by Victor Hugo."

How Many Hairs Have You on Your Own Head?

Hairs are composed of keratin, and are covered with thin, flat, overlapping scales, which is the reason why an eyelash or other hair in the eye irritates it so much. The hairs of the head have been counted, and it is known that 120,000 of them make about an average allowance.

Each hair is a tube, with a bulbous enlargement at the lower end, and grows out of a vase-shaped "follicle" with a narrow neck. At the bottom of the vase is the true root, which is clasped by the bulb above. When the hair is forcibly pulled out the bulb comes along with the stalk, but the root remains behind to produce another hair. This is why, in the case of superfluous hairs, it does no good whatever to pull them out. The roots remain in the skin, and presently there is a new crop. The only known cure for the mischief is to insert an electrolytic needle into each one of the little vases or "follicles" and burn the roots to death. It is a process almost painless, but expensive, because slow and demanding no little skill on the part of the operator. From the above explanation it will be understood also why a woman's hair must come out plentifully from the comb, and yet she may not become bald. In such a case it simply means that the hairs which drop out have lost their vitality, and their removal gives an opportunity for new ones to grow. But as the roots themselves die, baldness is the inevitable and incurable result.

Some women's hair is naturally curly or wavy, to the envy of a friend of the same sex; others have straight hair, which can only be made to wave or curl by artificial means. The difference between the two is easily explained. Straight hairs are encased in a form of curly hairs are oval in section. A negro's hair is kinky because the scales of the roots are bent in such a way that each one of them to contract on one side and to curl in that direction. Hence the beautiful effect obtained, which is necessarily temporary.

THE LITTLE JOURNEYS of NIP AND TUCK

VERSES BY W R BRADFORD DRAWINGS BY J N O R NEILL

(Copyright, 1909, by The North American Co.)

OAKLAND, CAL., SUNDAY, JUNE 27, 1909

1. "Come," said Doc Foster, "here's something we'll do: we'll see the old lady who lives in a shoe."
So they hitched up the mice to a golden barouche—Nip and Tuck and the Doctor and old Mother Goose.
With a turtle for driver, the footman a frog, the party set out with a jog-gity jog.

2. They came to the shoe—it was awfully large. 'Twas big as a barn or a lumberman's barge.
There were windows and doors in neat-arranged rows. The old lady used shoestrings for airing the clothes.
Everywhere there were children, both outside and in; all were laughing or crying—a terrible din.

3. The old lady said: "Dear! I have so much to do, and no one to help me. I'll never get through.
The children need baths, there's clothing to mend. I can't rest a minute—it's work without end.
Oh, fiddle dum dee, what shall I do?" said this charming old lady who lived in the shoe.

4. Mother Goose took an armful of kids to the pump, stood them all in a row; they were washed in a lump.
Doctor Foster darned stockings and ironed pinafores; Nip and Tuck washed the windows and scrubbed all the floors.
The old lady made broth. "When it's ready," she said, "I'll whip all the children and put them to bed."

5. The children had supper; then, laid in a row, from one to the other the old lady did go.
She paddled them lustily with a big stick; they needed it badly, she laid it on thick.
Nip and Tuck got mixed in, and she spanked them both, too. She'd have spanked Doctor Foster, the first thing he knew.

6. "I won't stay any longer," old Doc Foster said. "I'm too big to be spanked, and I won't go to bed."
"Beg pardon, dear sir," the old lady did say. But the Doctor was mad, and said, "No, we won't stay.

DEAREST MADGE:

After we left Mrs. Parsons' we came here to spend a few days with Jack's sister, and now we have decided to stay with her over the Fourth of July, for it would seem silly to go back to our little flat when we have such a nice invitation. Of course, as we are to be here, and several other guests are also coming, we must do our part toward decorating, and this week we are going to arrange the house and the porch in the approved colors—red, white and blue—so that the noisy day will not come without our having done our part to receive it.

If you would have enjoyed our visit with the Parsons you would more than enjoy our visit here, for the girls are so sweet and they have such a lovely time together. You know this is not at all a dressy place. We wear what we please, yet the effect is very nice, in spite of the careless way it sounds. Sometimes I wear my blue linen, which is trimmed with ruffles of handkerchief linen to match down either side of the central panel, which is itself embroidered in black. With it I wear my broad Dutch collar held in place by a sapphire pin; so, on the whole, the costume is very neat, although simple in the extreme. Blue linen is so satisfactory and needs so little laundering.

Jack's sister owns a charming frock of brownish gingham, made with an oddly shaped yoke of eyelet embroidery and undersleeves of the same, while her cousin, Lorna Levering, wears a very pretty dress of cool green linen, bound at neck and sleeves with black. Her white yoke is of embroidered linen and her undersleeves are quite tight, after the fashion of the day. There is something about this gown which reminds me of the surplice dress of last year, although it is really modeled after the last word of fashion.

We anticipate a great deal of fun in decorating the house and grounds, and I have no doubt that we will enjoy it hugely. Next week I shall hope to see you.

With best love to Bob and the kiddies, I am,
Your most affectionate sister,
ELEANOR.

OAKLAND has the prettiest cash girls in California declared an Eastern buyer who was visiting one of the large department stores of this city. Nowhere in this State are there to be found more energetic employees than the innocent, sweet-faced little women who carry the packages and do errands in the establishments. They are willing workers and are thoroughly reliable. Mechanism devices have, to an extent, done away with the human devices in many of the concerns of Alameda county, but they have not entirely abandoned the cash girls, who have made themselves indispensable to the employers. In many of the stores the managers are opposed to the employment of cash girls, as their youth and delicate status incapacitate them to an extent for much work. For economical reasons also they are not employed as much now-a-days as they have been in the past. Some say the cash girl has more importance today than she has had in previous years. Their position in the stores is not as difficult at the present time as it was before the many modern contrivances were installed. The cash girls have their particular functions to perform during the day and that ends their responsibilities. When they have completed their work they have no further wearment. They have a simple employment, which does not over-tax them, either physically or mentally. The little ones who are working as cash girls are among the happiest youngsters in this community. They never complain, and in their childish, whole-souled manner they do exactly what they are advised to do by the head of the department which they are serving. The majority of the children who are engaged in the stores are compelled to work in order to keep the wolf from the door, while a few of the wage-earners resort to this employment for lack of strength to take up other lines. Still another class admire the cash girl's life and desire to follow that occupation because their friends or chums have selected it. It bears a peculiar fascination for the girls, who state that there is a future for them in the respective stores if they apply themselves. They may gradually work themselves up to a high position as they grow to maturity. The children have it in their power to succeed and they will. Those members of the rising generation will grit their teeth as they go along and from day to day they will improve and their usefulness will be felt. Among the interesting cash girls who have been much admired because of their simplicity and naturalness are Miss Gladys Manders, Miss Zetta Podesta, Miss Virginia Flint, Miss Ray Abrahamson and Sarah Davidson.

CENTURY OLD, WALKS MILE AND A HALF

Shank's Mare Good Enough, Said Wm. Redmond When He Was Asked to Ride

NEW YORK, June 26.—William Redmond, 100 years old, after walking across the Queensboro bridge from Long Island City to Manhattan, made the return in an automobile stage. The centenarian was accompanied by two grandsons, J. W. Cavanaugh of 118 West One Hundred and First street, Manhattan, and George Guggie of 282 Nott avenue, Long Island City. Despite his years his step was sprightly and he had no need for glasses. It is about a mile and a half across the bridge and his grandsons tried to persuade him not to walk it. "Shank's mare is good enough for me," said Mr. Redmond, "besides I want to have a look at the country." Mr. Redmond was born in Tuckahoe, N. J. When a boy he served aboard a fishing smack until he got money enough to buy one of his own and for fifty years he fished in the waters around New York City. Gaining a competency, he bought a farm at Oakhurst, Monmouth county, N. J., where he lived until ten years ago, when his wife died. They had no children, so he sold the place and has since lived with his niece, Mrs. Mary Guggie of Tuckahoe. Three years ago he visited Long Island City and promised that when the Queensboro bridge was opened he would come to see it.

Doings of the Fraternal Orders for the Week

LYON RELIEF CORPS WILL CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Interesting Ceremony Will Be in Loring Hall on July 8th

The whist party given by the ladies of Lyon Relief Corps No. 6 at the home of Mrs. Rose Many, 1983 Grove street, on the afternoon of June 18, netted quite a sum for its relief fund, besides enjoying a delightful entertainment. Mrs. Many served light refreshments after the prizes were distributed. On the evening of July 8 Lyon Corps will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary with a banquet. It will be given in Loring hall, Eleventh street. The members of Lyon Post No. 8, G. A. R., Colonel E. D. Baker Camp, Sons of Veterans, and department officers of the W. R. C. will be the guests of the evening. Mrs. Flora Jacobs, president of the corps, will read a history of the work of the corps during the past twenty-five years. The ladies having the affair in charge are Mrs. Rose E. Dorsey, Eliza Shepard, Katherine Munson, Ellen Wilson and Margaret Klesio.

Native Daughters. Piedmont Parlor, N. D. G. W., recently held an election of officers, who will be installed with impressive ceremonies in July. They are as follows: Susie Martin, president; Jennie Brashers, vice president; Mrs. Carrie Hutchins, second vice president; Carrie Witterson, third vice president; Hazel Cohen, marshal; Alice Minor, recording secretary; Lena Klegal, financial secretary; Lottie Dunlap, treasurer; Louise Razell, insinc sentinel; Clara Coglar, outside sentinel; Rose Harrington, organist; trustees, Jennie Jordan, Laura Kelly and Berta Pacheco. Aloha Parlor, N. D. G. W., started several new members last Tuesday evening. The parlor is growing steadily and is becoming a factor in the fraternal world. The members are awaiting with keen interest for the next important event.

Athletic and field sports will be the diversion of the day. Some very valuable prizes have been donated by the Richmond merchants for these games. A tug-of-war by the Berkeley and Richmond Knights promises to be very interesting. Competitive drills by the different temples, including Clatsop, the Temple of Oakland, will be one of the features of the day. A ball game and dancing will be added attractions. The Druids University Grove No. 265, United Ancient Order Druids, held its regular meeting last Wednesday evening in O. O. F. Hall, corner Shattuck and Addison, and as usual with a very good attendance. This grove was instituted on the evening of April 20, 1908, with twenty-five members, who are doing everything in their power to make this grove rank with the best in the State. Two new members were taken in and instructed in the first degree, and several more are to come up next Wednesday night, when they will be given an opportunity to learn what Druidism is. The grove now has thirty hard-working members, who are enthusiastically working to make this grove one of the best in the state. The officers for the ensuing term are as follows: Junior past arch, H. A. Anderson; noble arch, J. H. Byrne; viceroy, D. D. Morton; recording secretary, P. Boyesen; financial secretary, P. Boyesen.

Woodmen of World Athens Camp No. 457, W. O. W., held its regular meeting Wednesday evening, June 23. There was a splendid attendance and business of interest to members was transacted. The dance committee reported that their efforts were not in vain. It was a success both socially and financially. The committee contemplates giving another dance in the near future, when the members of Athens Camp will be hosts. Quite a number of members plan to attend the benefit dance to be tendered Neighbor Davis of Athens Camp, who was recently injured. The dance will take place at the U No Rink, Berkeley, Saturday evening, June 26. Athens Camp is taking a great in-

ROYAL ARCH MASONS WILL DINE WITH HIGH PRIEST

George Munroe of Fresno to Be Given Banquet by Oakland Chapter

Most Excellent Grand High Priest George Munroe of Fresno will be the honored guest at a banquet to be given by Oakland Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, June 30, in Masonic Temple. On this occasion representatives from five Masonic lodges will be present to witness the conferring of the Royal Arch degree. The work will be done by a mixed team, composed of two principal officers from each chapter. The instructive and impressive ceremonies of that order will be carried out. The chapters which will take part in the team work are Oakland, Doric, Alcatraz, Alameda and Berkeley. Francis H. E. O'Donnell will be the speaker of the evening. The distinguished visitor will also give an address. W. C. Price, high priest of Oakland Chapter will be the toastmaster. During the evening a select orchestra will render instrumental music.

The Elks An elaborate program was given at the home-coming of the local lodge of Elks last night, when they celebrated the opening of their new clubhouse. The rooms were painted and decorated, floors had been polished and handsome carpets, curtains and draperies were added. It is one of the best appointed clubhouses on the coast. The work was done under the direction of the house committee, the chairman of which, E. H. Benjamin, gave the details his careful supervision. An orchestra rendered selections. Songs were sung by E. J. Finney, Frank Fowden.

GASCH SISTERS AT THE ORPHEUM.

It is one to believe all the glowing praise bestowed on "The Merry Widow" by the people who have heard this notable Viennese operetta, the longest dated that once charmed the classic ancients has come to earth again on a breeze of delicious music. In "The Merry Widow," with its tumult of attractive color and spirit, composer Lehar is credited with bringing the soul of elegant Paris back to its own, out of the mire of rag-time and three-note jingles, which have swamped opera companies in musical comedy for the past ten years.

Thanks to Mr. Henry W. Savage, local music lovers are soon to have the great pleasure of judging for themselves of the merits of Franz Lehar's exquisite work of art. "The Merry Widow," which comes to the Macdonough Theatre for one week, beginning to-morrow (Monday), June 28th, with madness on Wednesday and Saturday.

The wonderful opera will have a delightful interpretation by a typical Savage company of lyric artists and splendid orchestra, perfectly housed in the lovely measures provided by the composer, who has suddenly grown into a great celebrity through this one symmetrical operetta. Number after number in the score presents the most enchantment to the imagination, and leaves memory a banquet of original and seductive melodies to enjoy delightfully. Even a slight acquaintance with the music shows it to be as spirited as a Mozart score. It rings with value and sanctity, with the cadences and humane petting promises and caresses. It absolutely glows with lovely songs and brilliant dance music, and is so beautifully written, has such splendid fundamental rhythm and motion of so much intellectual activity within its feathered wings, and a note that will make you want to sing before a vaudeville troupe likely to dispute honors for the best kind of music each one of these idols has held unchallenged until "The Merry Widow" created the lyrical sensation of this epoch.

adventures of the vagrant heart and the utility of attempting an explanation of the cause or reason of love in any of its manifold forms.

Marie Doro is the star of the play. She is the little girl who escapes from a Turkish harem and falls under the protection of Sir Marcus Ordway, who has to hide and minister to her, and falls in love with her in a few months. The fact of Marcus' love for the stray woman is discovered by another woman, who for eight years has sought to win his heart. To prevent their marriage this woman prevails upon a villainous man to run away with her. Five months later Carlotta returns to Sir Marcus, almost ruined in spirit, but the ending of the tale is not in gloom.

That the Bell Theatre is highly successful in its quest after the latest novelties and best vaudeville attractions is strikingly evidenced in the latter case this week when the much popular and nationally beloved Miss Mabel McKinley will appear as the star feature of the excellent bill. Miss McKinley has created the wildest enthusiasm and been received with the greatest acclaim by any young woman who has essayed the stage as a career.

Her appearance at the Bell this week will without doubt test the capacity of the house for as the favorite niece of the late President McKinley, there are thousands who delight in her homage. As the public know, Miss McKinley is a sweet and lovable girl, a vocalist of rare ability and an artist of no mean ability. Songs of her own composition and pleasing alias of other writers are included in her repertoire. Her rendition of the song "Golden Bell" which she has featured all through her vaudeville engagement is one of the biggest successes in the amusement world.

That the Bell is eminently successful in its quest after the latest novelties is evidenced in the engagement of Cooke and Miss Robert in the latest Parisian sensation and the talk of two continents, "L'Amour De L'Apache." "The Dance of the Apaches" is an eccentric dancing and acrobatic comedy in which the "Apaches" referred to are not the "Apache" Indian Tribe, but the Apaches of Paris, one of the most depraved and vicious classes known to the French race. They will be likened to the tough East Side element of New York, except that the latter are mild in comparison.

They contribute largely to the criminal element in Paris, and are a constant thorn in the side of the police. The dance portrays jealousy. The man is angry at his sweetheart because she loves another. The dance is a physical excess that he goes through meditating whether he shall beat or kill the woman he holds in his arms. In his jealous rage he clasps her in his arms and fixes his fiery eyes on her as they batic skill and daring, and they are reasonably expected to be a distinct surprise and a sensation.

Mildred Warren, Bert Lyon, and Louise Meyers, a clever trio of musical comedy players, will present next week at the Orpheum, a one-act musical sketch with music entitled, "When Dreams Come True."

The story of the little play serves to introduce an assortment of singing and dancing novelties by Miss Warren, Miss Meyers and Mr. Lyon, who portray respectively a prima donna, her maid and a former sweetheart of the singer. The dancing of Miss Meyers is a distinct feature of the lively offering.

"A Night at the Circus," one of the most spectacular features ever devised by the Orpheum people for its theaters, and which has drawn the crowds and entertained them in splendid fashion during the last week, will continue to be a star feature of the show.

Miss Cheridan Simpson, known as "The American Prima Donna," whose playhouse is replete with delightful bits of comedy and music, will be a notable feature of the show.

The Novelty Dancing Four of sprightly steps and graceful in all that they undertake, will be one of the interesting features.

The dramatic sketch, "A Spotless Reputation," in which Pellaton and Fern appear, will round out a splendid show.

YE LIBERTY

The management of the Liberty have arranged to present the new company in a big double bill next week, an offering that will give local playgoers an opportunity to judge the versatility of the new players. The bill will be made up of "The First Born," Francis Powers' celebrated one-act drama of Chinese life in San Francisco that was, and "David Garrick," a light and entertaining little romantic comedy.

"The First Born," telling as it does a little tragedy enacted in the Chinatown of old San Francisco, will be more interesting than ever now, for the first scene shows a portion of Dupont street at that time and the second "Fish Alley." The Liberty management are fortunate in having secured not only the original manuscript, but photographs of the original presentation as well as the two stage settings will both be exact replicas of the familiar old locations they represent.

Then too, there will be a great deal of curiosity to see the new players in Chinese garb. Miss Florence Oakley, whose performance of "The Girl of the Golden West" has already firmly established her as a favorite with Liberty patrons, appears as the little Chinese slave girl, Loey Tain, and should be a picture in the part. Sydney Ayres appears as the father of the first born, Chan Wong, a part he has often appeared in before and of which he is very fond. Robert Harrison plays the old pipe-bowl member; Henry Shumer the stately old doctor, Pow Len, and all the remainder of the favorites have congenial roles.

"David Garrick," besides being an entertaining little comedy, is a decidedly pretty and picturesque one as well. The scene is laid in the middle of the eighteenth century, and the plot of the little piece revolves around an escapade of the famous actor of that period. Mr. Ayres will be seen as the "play-actor," and Miss Pezzie Monroe a young lady well known socially on this side of the bay, has been engaged for leading ingenue in the comedy.

Owing to Mrs. Fiske's appearance Monday evening, the first performance of "The First Born" and "David Garrick" will be given on Tuesday evening, but it will continue throughout the week with the regular Saturday and Sunday matinees. "The Heart of Maryland" is in preparation for Fourth of July week.

THE ORPHEUM

New features of the finest sort are to decorate the new vaudeville bill at the Oakland Orpheum today. Spectacles will be found there in abundance. The crowds have been highly entertained during the last week by the spectacle of "A Night with the Circus," and it will be good news to many that this attractive act is to be retained and given prominently in the new show for the coming week.

Fun is to be the keynote of the new vaudeville show at the Orpheum this week. It will be a revival of merriment. It looks as though the program would be of the finest variety, the names of the entertainers on the bill being those of comedians and fun-makers who have almost world-wide reputations for cleverness in their various lines.

Adelaide, the dainty American danseuse popularly known as "La Petite Adelaide," who comes to the Orpheum to inaugurate one of the most accomplished dancers in this country, and for her re-entrance into vaudeville, after being featured with Eddie Fox in "The Grold," Jimmie Powers in "The Blue Moon," and other prominent musical comedies, for several seasons, she has prepared a little terpsichorean offering called "The Bill Posters' Dream." She has the assistance of four clever comedians, who impart action and enthusiasm to the number.

Miss Elizabeth M. Murray, with her inimitable series of Irish and negro character songs and southern folk lore, is sure to be a welcome attraction at the Orpheum next week, for she has enlisted a following and a popularity equalled by no other "routine" entertainer. She is very diverting. She possesses a rare collection of Irish, German and comic songs, which she sings in an irresistibly humorous manner.

The Sisters Gasch, wonderful Irish dancers who will appear next week at the Orpheum, are European artists who created quite a furore on their appearance in New York. No feminine performers have ever equalled them in grace and skill.

SIDNEY AYRES New Leading Man at Ye Liberty, Tells BETTY MARTIN He Would Rather Please the Men in His Audience Any Time Rather Than the Women

Has No Use for Matinee Idols and Gives His Reasons

By BETTY MARTIN

"I LOVE women, horses and dogs," After this fashion Sidney Ayres, new leading man at Ye Liberty, gave me an inkling as to his dominant characteristics. It was an unusually frank statement for an actor, coming, as it did, within a brief space of ten minutes after greetings had been exchanged, and I confess to a conscious feeling of amusement, which Mr. Ayres was quick to discern, for he supplemented his remark by observing that he thought all manly men had similar tastes. Then he questioned abruptly "Don't you?" and looked me squarely in the eye.

"Ye-es, I suppose so," replied I, running over in my mind the list of masculine acquaintances, casual or otherwise whose actions, if not speech, would indicate that Mr. Ayres, though comparatively young, had sized up the masculine world pretty thoroughly. "Mind you," he said, "women," not a woman, and was merely generalizing.

Therefore, it caused a distinct shock when, later in the conversation, he shrugged his broad shoulders disdainfully and ejaculated:

"But how I'd love to be a matinee man!"

"Why—why," astonishment caused me to stammer. "I thought you had the reputation of being a sort-of-one."

Mr. Ayres smiled before replying. There was nothing egotistical about that smile, either. In fact, he is an altogether wellbred man—met casually—absolutely free from mannerisms, and with a belief in himself, not, I fancy, altogether unwarranted, since he has been on his own resources since a little chap 12 years old.

IS NOT A MATINEE IDOL AT ALL

"Strange," he mused, "how a reputation like that—THE TRIBUNE treated me very nicely the other day when it left the open question 'Yes' or 'No'?"

As for Mr. Ayres himself, he neither affirmed nor denied, but continued. "I'd rather have one man in the audience like my acting than ten women. It would please me infinitely more to have one man say to another 'Come on let's go up and see Ayres tonight, he's a good actor' than it would to have a woman say the same thing. Of course, I think it's a wonderful thing to be liked by women, a thing to be proud of—but this being called a matinee idol—here Mr. Ayres broke off to tell me of a fellow professional rejoicing in that title who always played his best on Saturday afternoons when the theater was full of girls, and who, at the end of the performance, was too exhausted to leave the theater. "He used to have his dinner brought in, and never went home until after the night performance was over."

Tells Story of Noted Poser for the Women

The moral to this tale is obvious. I'll not give the name of this particular matinee idol away, because everybody knows him but will finish the subject by again quoting Mr. Ayres, who believes that the "finest women in the world are those who are liked by women, and the finest men those who win the respect and esteem of other men." However, the subject is rather an exhaustive one for an interview, and we merely touched upon it by way of a leader to other topics.

To begin with, while not a native of Oakland Mr. Ayres is, practically speaking one of us, having been brought to this city when only 2 years old. His people reside here now, and said he

HE CALLS OAKLAND HIS REAL HOME

"I always call Oakland home." He comes to Ye Liberty direct from Portland where he has been for the last season in stock with Izzetta Jewel as leading woman. He related a piece of news about Miss Jewel which pleased me greatly, because once on a day when she was playing in Oakland, and her merits and demerits as an actress under discussion, I predicted for her a brilliant future. Now I'm sure this prediction is about to be fulfilled for Izzetta, after seasons of faithful work, has at last gotten her chance.

She has been engaged by Otis Skinner as leading woman in the new play which he will appear in next season opening, I believe, in September.

WAS VERY POPULAR UP IN PORTLAND

Apocryphal of Mr. Ayres' departure from Portland, where he expects to return after this season, there is a little story, gained not from himself, but from one of the newspapers up there, which evidences that he has the power to make friends. When he was leaving the city, so runs the recital, a crowd of people numbering several hundreds gathered about the depot, and as the train pulled out all united in singing "Auld Lang Syne." Getting back once more "I started my career as a program boy up at the People's Theater on Twelfth street. That was in the days made notable by Albert Hosmer and Hattie Ross.

"My first appearance on the stage was as 'Little Lord Fauntleroy.' My folks didn't know anything about it. I had told my father—evidently Master Sydney did not take stock in the story of George Washington and his little hatchet—that I was working for a friend of his, an undertaker, and when my mother came to see the play she was dumbfounded to see me!"

Izzetta Jewel Is Going to Be the New Leading Lady Next Season for Otis Skinner

TOURED WITH THE GREAT SALVINI

That engagement led to another, this time with no less an actor than Salvini, then playing "Don Caesar de Bazan."

"I traveled with him a whole year, taking the part of Lazzaro."

At the age of 17 Mr. Ayres played leads in a St. Louis stock production, and his first New York appearance was in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Possibly his most sensational engagement was at the Liberty Theater in New York, when playing in Dixon's "The Chansman." Mr. Ayres impersonated the Southerner.

"My life was in danger the whole time," declared he, in reference to it, "and I didn't like the play, either."

VISITED OAKLAND WITH LACKAYE

Among pleasing recollections is a season with Southern.

Something like two years ago Mr. Ayres was in Oakland, a member of Wilton Lackaye's company in "The Bondman." Hall Caine's melodramatic play which made such a pronounced hit in London, and lost Mr. Brady thousands upon thousands of dollars in America. It is not generally known that Mr. Caine traveled to New York especially to superintend rehearsals, and left in high dudgeon after witnessing the very first.

Mr. Ayres gives a vivid description of the author.

"He's a little bit of a man, who wears goggles twice the size of his eyes and lets his hair grow almost down to his shoulders."

By the way, it transpired that Mr. Ayres himself has literary ambitions. He is the author of a play called "Texas," which he produced over five years ago, and, now on the road, brings him in a royalty. He is hard at work on another which he hopes to produce sometime this winter.

"Which would you rather be," I asked, "an actor or an author?"

"Neither," came the prompt reply. "I'd rather be stage manager."

Mr. Ayres has traveled all over Europe as well as America. He is fond of reading, Kipling being one of his favorite authors. Also, he adores old Omar, for whom, even in the wilderness, beneath the bough—

"A book of verse, a jug of wine, and thou—"

Beside me singing. Were quite enough. BETTY MARTIN.

Sweeney, Driscoll, Buckley, Magee and Nolan.

Fraternal Brotherhood

Oakland Lodge No. 123 received an invitation to attend the installation of officers of Point Richmond lodge on July 12. The popular drill team of Oakland 123 have accepted this invitation to put on the floor work on that occasion. They will also install the officers of Berkeley lodge on Tuesday evening, June 29.

The installation of officers of Oakland Lodge 123 will be private and will be held next Friday evening July 2. Supreme Counselor R. N. Chappel will officiate.

The committee on arrangements for the reception to the drill teams and uniformed rank companies from the south en route to Seattle are perfecting plans for the banquet and exhibition drills which will be held on July 19 at the Piedmont rink.

The plans for the picnic of Oakland lodge at East Richmond Park on July 5 have been completed and a splendid time is anticipated.

Tribe of Ben Hur

Oakland Court No. 6 Tribe of Ben Hur, held its regular weekly meeting last Thursday evening in lodge hall, 1115 Broadway, under the leadership of Chief Brother A. B. Clark.

Under the head of new business officers were elected as follows: Chief, A. C. Ralston; Judge, A. Quigley; Teacher, L. Knott; Keeper of records, M. Carson; Captain, H. Bayless; guide, H. Peterson; inner gatekeeper, Mr. Staples; outer gatekeeper, Helen Marshall; musician, M. Adams.

Installation of officers will take place Thursday evening, July 5, which will be public. Sister Louise Philbrick has charge of the entire affair and will be assisted by Sisters Staples, Knott and Adams.

Young Men's Institute

At its semi-annual election of officers Council No. 1 of the Young Men's Institute selected the following: President, J. A. Toomey; first vice-president, J. R. Crowley; second vice-president, Frank Geary; recording secretary, H. R. McGinnis; financial secretary, John Maginnis; treasurer, J. F. Kenney; honorary chaplain, Rev. J. B. McNally, and acting chaplain, Rev. Robert Sampson. The council also elected two delegates to the national council of the order, which will be held in Santa Cruz early in August. The delegates were chosen: A. Toomey and Charles McCarthy, with Joe Cone and Frank Geary as alternates. The organization belongs to St. Patrick's parish, West Oakland.

Sons of St. George

Albion Lodge No. 206 held its regular meeting last Wednesday evening. During the session songs were given by Brothers Gals, Wilson, Wilkins and Carter. Brother Millson officiated at the piano. In lieu of the regular meeting next Wednesday night a prize tournament will be held and valuable prizes will be awarded. The tournament will be held at Pythian Castle, Twelfth and Alameda streets, at 8 o'clock sharp, June 30.

Members friends and all who are interested in the order will be welcome.

Odd Fellows

Berkeley and Oakland lodges of Odd Fellows will hold a joint memorial service this evening at the North Berkeley Congregational church. Rev. George Delany will be the speaker.

AMERICAN PROFESSORS IN GERMAN EMPIRE

Berlin—The invasion of Germany by American professors continues apace and promises soon to break all previous records. The number of those who are either here or on the way is so great and their objects so various that German universities men confess to finding it hard to keep track of them. In addition to newly announced contingents of "exchange professors" and Roosevelt professors, who together compose the staff of America's unofficial diplomatic branch office at the Berlin University, Professor L. G. Smith of Boston is here with eight other educators for the purpose of studying German schools. Professor Ralph Starr of Cornell University will arrive next winter and Professor Marion D. Learned of the University of Pennsylvania is continuing his historical researches here, which are expected to present in a vivid light the depth and sincerity of the friendship toward the United States which Germany has shown in past actions. The delegation of American university men which is to attend the five hundredth jubilee celebration of Leipzig University is also expected here in a few days.—New York Times.

LILLIAN RUSSELL WILL START RACING STABLE

Actress Sails for Europe and Will Buy Some Horses in France, She Says

NEW YORK, June 26.—Lillian Russell is going into the racing game. This she said when, arrayed in a most fetching American made gown of nearly black material with a white stripe running through it, she sailed on the New York yesterday forenoon. The actress, who has had a very successful season in "Wildfire" wore a big white hat, with a large white veil trailing it down.

Her daughter, Dorothy, was there, and Dorothy, who is not going to Europe, wept copious tears.

There was a tiny Japanese spaniel with the party that Miss Russell wanted to take aboard but she had failed to comply with the English laws and take out a license to carry the dog into Great Britain. So Miss Dorothy had to take the spaniel home.

Miss Russell again preached her little sermon on the superiority from every point of view of American costumes.

"I buy all my costumes in this country," she said, "because they are cheaper, better, more reliable, smarter and better fitting."

"I brighten up on ideas in Paris, yes. But in Paris people say to me 'What a smart costume that is!' Where did you get it?' They say this because the costume is newer, different from, and better than the Parisian article. This is because it comes from America."

Of her racing ambitions Miss Russell said:

"The racing game in this country has lost its interest from the betting standpoint. I am keen on the racing output of Gene Leigh's stables in France. I am going to buy some of his horses first—two or three fillies. I shall race them in France and then bring them to this country. That will keep up my interest in racing and make it worth while."

Of her theatrical prospects she said: "I have a new play, 'The Widow's Might,' a very clear, rather strong play of the Wall Street sort. I have also another play by George Broadhurst, dealing with Washington life. I can use the second piece if necessary."

Amazing Feats of a Limbless Artist

HE SHOOTS, RIDES, PLAYS BILLIARDS AND CRICKET

BORN without arms and legs. Can cap in life. To be pitted in the struggle for existence against millions of men who, even though sound in body and limb, find it difficult to gain a livelihood. Can anything seem more hopeless? And yet optimism is the keynote of the character of Mr. Cecil J. Shirley, a man who for thirty years has been bravely fighting the battle of life against heavy odds.

"It is true," he remarked to the writer, "that lately I have met with some misfortunes. They commenced in South Africa, where a man with whom I had entered into partnership on a farm played me false and left me stranded. I found it necessary to come to England again, and have since been endeavoring to sell my pictures. I must confess I have not so far met with much success in that direction, but I have great hopes of my book, which gives the story of my life."

As a Colonial

And never was a more absorbing story unfolded. Mr. Shirley's career has been as varied as it is interesting. For several years he worked in South Africa and Australia on farms and sheep stations, gaining practical knowledge which he hopes to put to good use in the future, for it is his ambition to obtain sufficient money to purchase a small holding in this country, and live the quiet, happy life of a farmer.

Many were Mr. Shirley's adventures in the back-blocks of Australia and amongst the Boers of South Africa. He learnt the Dutch language, lived amongst the men who fought against us during the South African war, interviewed President Kruger, acted as clerk, overseer, storekeeper, and in other capacities on the farms, rode thousands of miles alone through the bush—in a word, he followed the rough life of the thousands of Englishmen who have gone out to the colonies.

Remarkable Accomplishments

"But surely, Mr. Shirley," I remarked, as he talked of his colonial experiences, "you found the work difficult?"

"Not so much as you might imagine. In the first place, I have always endeavored, as far as possible, to avoid thinking of my physical deformities, and I have so accustomed myself to using the stumps of my arms as hands that what may seem to you almost impossible feats are really quite easy. For instance, you see I can fill my pipe"—and Mr. Shirley picked his pouch off the table with his arms, opened it rubbed some tobacco, and, placing the latter in a little pile on the table, filled his pipe as neatly as any other man could have done. Then he took up a box of matches, pushed it open with the stem of his pipe, shook out a match, and struck it by holding the box firmly on the table with the pipe pressed on it and gripping the match between his two arms.

It is equally amazing to see Mr. Shirley using the typewriter with the aid of a pencil, or writing a note in ordinary handwriting—or, rather, armwriting—the legibility of which, by the way, would be a credit to a civil service clerk. A splendid horseman, Mr. Shirley is never so happy as when he can go for a ride, and the most mettlesome steed has no terrors for him. As a matter of fact, Mr. Shirley won several horseraces in the colonies and carried off one or two prizes for rifle shooting. And he demonstrated to the writer in a game of "100 up" that it is not always necessary to have hands in order to make fifteen or twenty breaks.

Paintings and Drawings

It is his pictures, however which illustrate more forcibly than anything else the astonishing manner in which

Mr. Shirley has overcome his great deformity. He paints in oils and water color, and, in addition, does a great deal of black and white work. "I can hold my brush or pencil," he remarked, "as delicately between the two stumps of my arms as you can between your thumb and finger. I am a keen student of entomology and botany, and delight in painting pictures of insects, butterflies, leaves and flowers." Here are some specimens of my work, and Mr. Shirley brought out for my inspection some wonderful paintings of butterflies, insects and leaves, every vein and tiny detail of which was faithfully depicted.

Shaving and Dressing

"Would it not be helpful Mr. Shirley, if you had artificial forearms?" "I do not think so. In fact, they would probably prove cumbersome to me now. I find I can accomplish all I require to do, even to shaving, putting my collar on, and tying my tie with the stumps of my arms. Of course, it is necessary for me to have artificial legs. Otherwise I should be unable to walk."

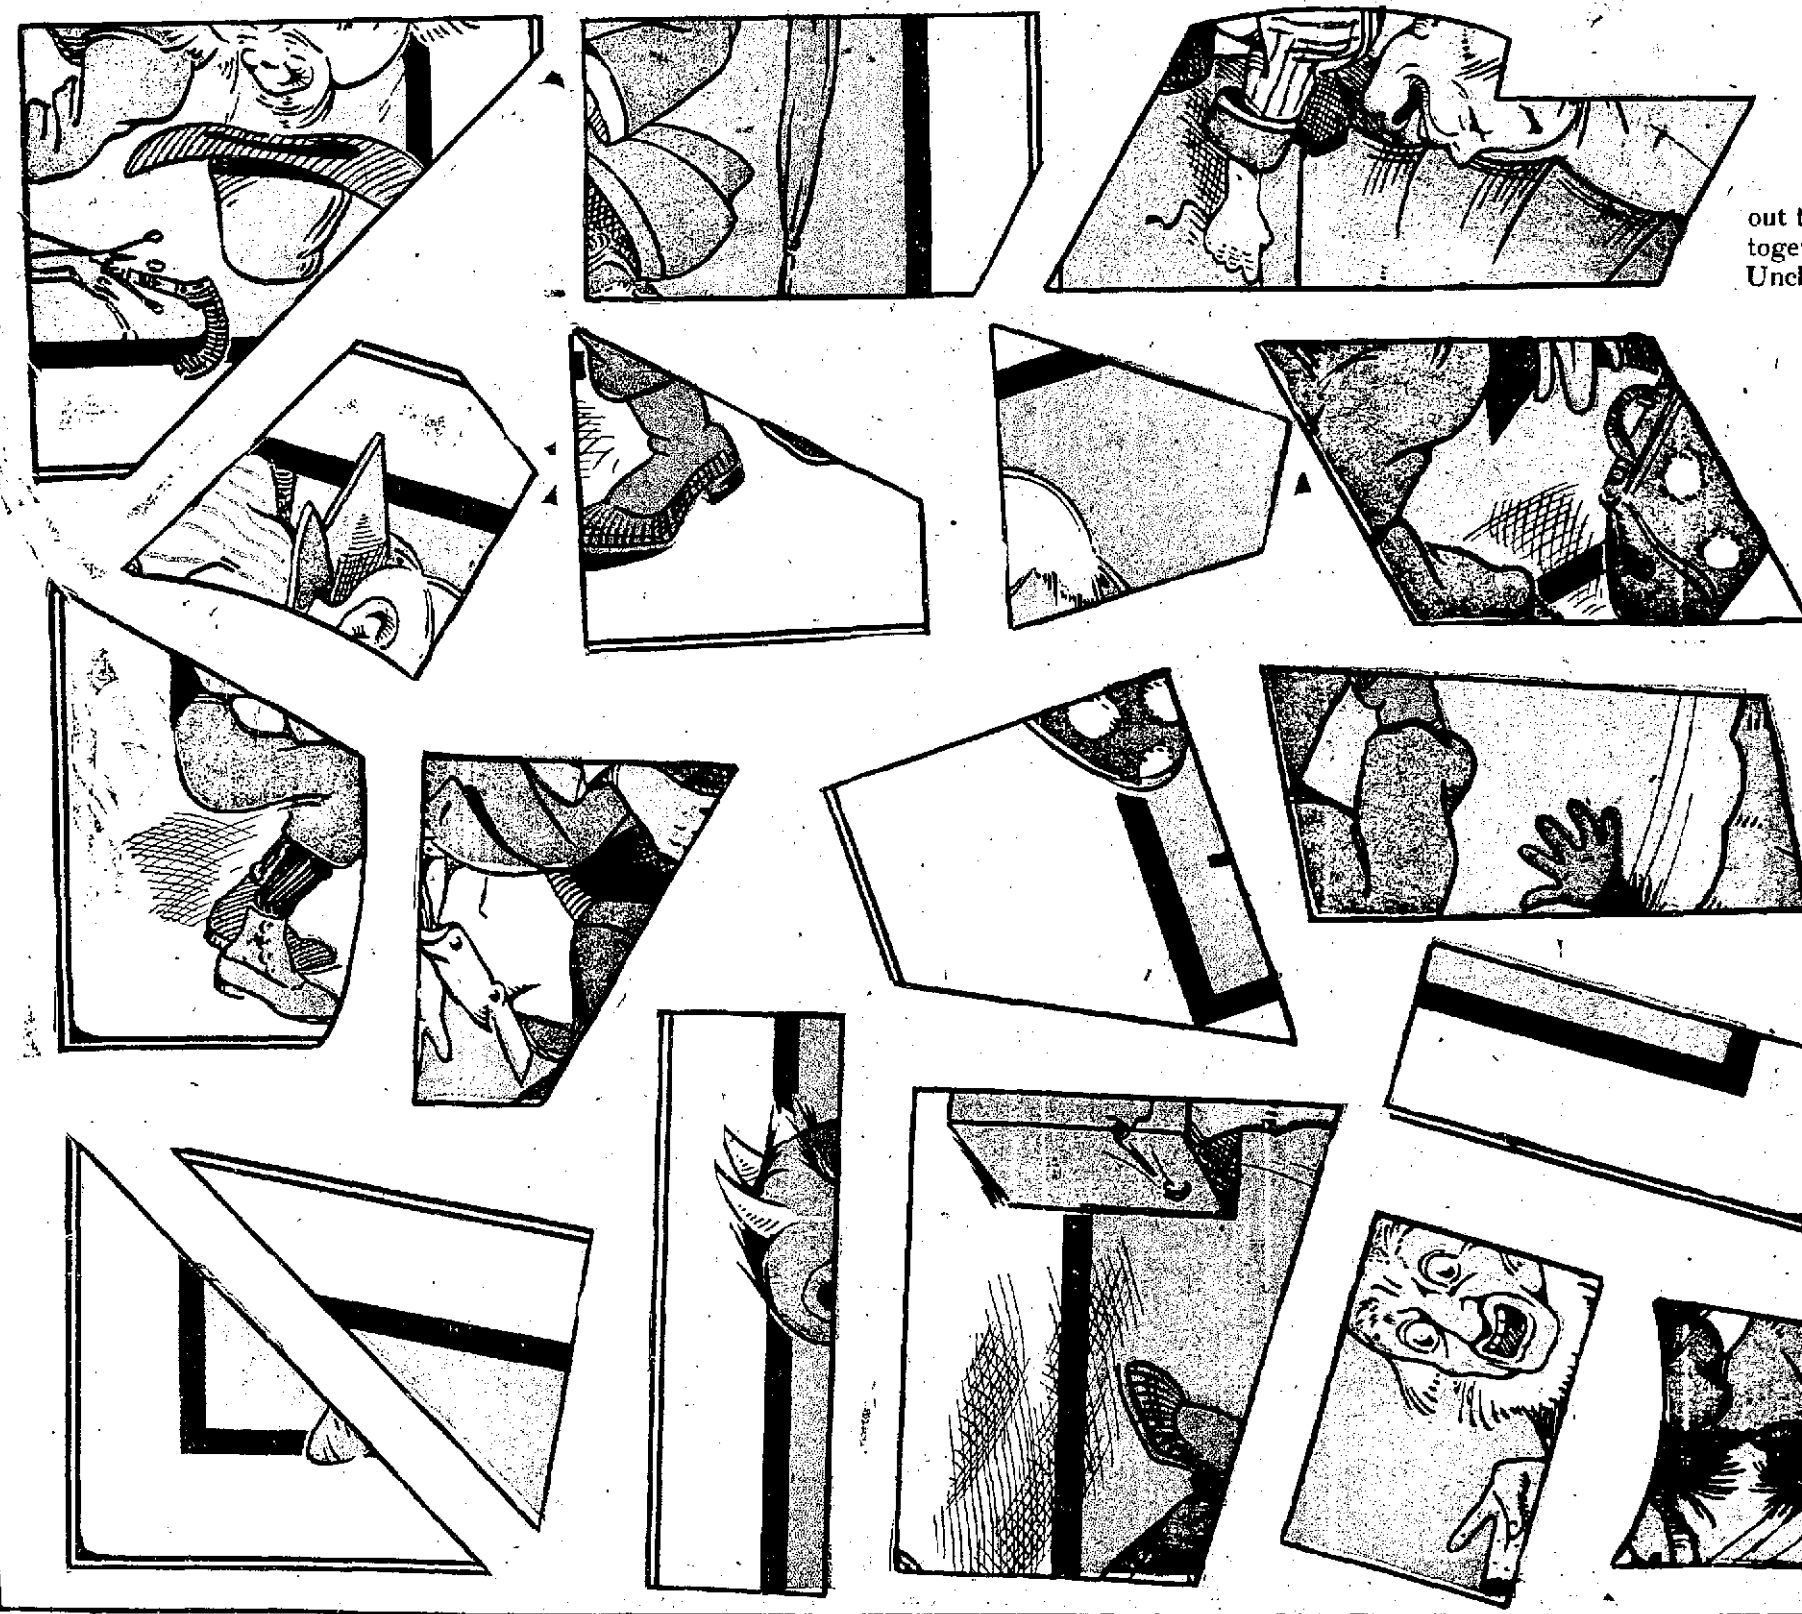

The Disappointed Dog

"And do you do a great deal of walking, Mr. Shirley?" "I do a long walk. Of course I cannot run," he added, laughing, "and that reminds me of a rather amusing incident which occurred to me in Cape Town. One day I was walking in the main street, when there was a sudden shout of 'Mad dog!' and everybody scooted as fast as they could. Unfortunately I could not get out of the way quick enough, and the dog gripped my leg. But he was a sadly disappointed dog, for he must have broken one or two teeth on the artificial calf while the kick which I gave him with the other foot could not have been altogether pleasant. "The astonishment of a few people when they saw the animal run away howling was almost as amusing as that of the Cape Town policeman who rushed to my rescue when I was knocked down by a vehicle which passed over my legs. He stood gaping with astonishment when, instead of collapsing, I got up with the remains of my legs and asked him to be kind enough to help me to the nearest surgical appliance establishment."

Eastman Lured Many to Death on Farm, Belief of Officials

MRS. GOULD TO DEVOTE LIFE TO ORPHAN BOYS

Will Establish School on Blue Gap Farm For Their Education

HOW SHE PROPOSES TO EXIST ON $100 A DAY

Will Do Without Tea Gowns, Yachting Costumes and Costly Jewels

NEW YORK, June 26.—"I don't know words to describe the joy that comes to a woman over getting her good name—signed, sealed and delivered in open court by a Supreme Court Justice."

Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould, radiant with smiles left in this way this afternoon in the only full discussion of her case she has ever made for a newspaper. "I would rather have the character vindication Justice Dooling gave me yesterday than the million dollars in cash my husband offered me for absolute divorce. I can live on $36,000 a year, the alimony allowed by the court, but I could not have existed much longer with those horrible husband-inspired charges hanging over my head."

Mrs. Gould sat in the office of her lawyer, Clarence J. Sherman, at a desk where she had worked night and day in the preparation of her case and in studying the testimony of her husband's witnesses after court hours. She wore the same black satin gown in which she came to court on each of the twelve days of the trial, but her expression was a brand new one. The stress and strain were gone, replaced by the smiles and assurance of a woman set right before the whole world.

Plans for Future

With convincing frankness she told the details of her fight for a legal separation from the second son of the late Jay Gould, and one of the richest men of the country. She outlined her plans for the future, which include the establishment of a school for orphan boys on her Blue Gap farm, for which she proposes to sacrifice some of her jewels. She told of the economies a woman must practice "who suddenly has her allowance cut from $10,000 a month to $100 a day. "How are you going to worry along on that sum?" Mrs. Gould was asked. "Perhaps I shall farm it," she said with a smile. "Perhaps I shall raise onions on my Virginia farm."

Has Vaudeville Offer

"I can't go back on the stage, to be sure," she went on briskly, "but I don't think even Howard Gould would ask for a discount from my farm earnings. The chance to return to the stage came quickly enough on the heels of the decision. It was not dark before an agent for a theatrical firm came along with an offer."

Mrs. Gould showed a written proposal that she go on the vaudeville stage for forty weeks at $1,000 a week, cash in advance.

"You are not going to take it?" was asked.

"I have already declined, although $1,000 a week would come in handy in helping out a poverty-stricken orphan like myself. No, I wouldn't go into vaudeville for anything, and you can say that I have no present intention of returning to the stage in any capacity. I shall economize."

It was suggested that the public might like to know how she proposed to economize.

Begins to Economize

"Why, I've already begun," she said. "Look at this dress. I've worn it three weeks in court and still have it on."

She smoothed out a wrinkle in the shining satin skirt and with a deft movement untied a knot in the cable rope of pearls that hung about her neck.

"And this hat," she said, taking off the black toque with its bobbing aigrette and showing a wealth of chestnut hair. "I have worn this hat continuously since the trial began. Now, if it had been a succession of garden parties, as in the golden $10,000 a month Palm Beach days!"

It might have been a place for sighs, but instead there that same rimpling laugh that so often disconcerted Delaney Nicol during her cross-examination.

"One of the first things I will give up will be what the English women call

VANDERBILT IGNORES RUIZ

LONDON, June 26.—"Ruiz is out of it and has no say. I don't care what he says. In fact, I don't care what anybody says."

When Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, after driving from Brighton today, left his coach at the Victoria Hotel a correspondent told him of the interviews a Paris correspondent had there with Antonio Ruiz, in which Ruiz said: "I firmly believe the woman I divorced was driven to kill herself by the neglect of this selfish man, Vanderbilt." Vanderbilt's retort is quoted at the beginning of this dispatch. He declined to talk any further about the death of Mrs. Ruiz.

Coroner Danford Thomas still absolutely refuses to permit representatives of the press to copy the depositions made at the Ruiz inquest. He says there are 300 coroners in Great Britain, and he could not set a precedent by giving to the press access to the depositions.

RECOVER TREASURE BY CHART DRAWN BY CONVICT

Directions Given to Fellow Prisoner Lead to Securing Stolen Silverware

HALESY, Or., June 26.—With a chart drawn by Ed Tracy while he was in jail at Roseburg awaiting trial, a quantity of silverware, stolen by Tracy from McCully Bros. and Sturdevant's store in Halesy on the night of May 18, was recovered today. The silverware is valued at $300. Tracy was sentenced to the penitentiary on another charge and gave the chart to Harry Rohrberts, a fellow prisoner, with minute instructions for recovering and selling the silverware.

Rohrberts was to have a part of the proceeds. Rohrberts told the sheriff about it and the officer brought Rohrberts and the chart to Halesy today. Several fields were visited and finally the prisoner announced that the pasture of Dan Hayes looked like the place. They followed the directions of the chart located a straw stack, dug into it and found the silverware.

VIENNA IS A BALM FOR HARRIMAN'S BODILY ILLS

Delighted With People and Thinks Semmering is a Veritable Paradise

VIENNA, June 26.—E. H. Harriman is much better today. Before he left he walked a mile with Mrs. Harriman. He is delighted to find that nearly all the Viennese speak English. Speaking of this, he said: "Our American boys begin earning their living too early. It would be better if they stayed in school to learn some other language. Semmering pleases me greatly. It is one of the finest spots on earth."

His afternoon drive to the old castle of Klamms, Mr. Harriman spent some busy hours arranging a hundred letters and forty cables, mostly from America. Professor Struempell will arrive here tomorrow.

BEATS DOWN WIFE WITH HEAVY IRON

Hits Stepson Over Head When He Rushes to Rescue His Mother

OWNER OF HAYWARD RANCH IS IN JAIL

Woman Falls Senseless Under Blows, But Injuries Are Not Fatal

SANTA ROSA, June 26.—Madly insane with jealousy over attentions he imagined his wife was receiving from other men, John Watson, living in Eleventh avenue, Richmond District, San Francisco, brutally assaulted his wife with a heavy iron bar early this morning in their tent at the Richard Isaacs summer resort, near Guerneville.

As the woman fell to the floor her son by a former husband entered the tent and was set upon by Watson, who struck him upon the head with the iron bar. Finally leaving his wife for dead, Watson fled.

Woman Unconscious

The screams of Mrs. Watson had attracted Richard Isaacs and Policeman Callahan of San Francisco, who is staying at the resort. Rushing into the street, they found the unfortunate woman lying unconscious and her son, still dazed from the effects of the blow he had received, standing by her side.

Summoning assistance for the woman, Isaacs and Callahan started in pursuit of Watson, whom they overtook a short distance from the resort. Accused by his captors of trying to murder his wife, Watson shouted back: "I don't care if she does die! I am willing to go to the gallows if I have to. After the life I have been leading death is preferable. I meant to kill her, I guess, but then I hardly knew what I was doing."

The woman is Watson's second wife and she has two grown sons. He owns property on Clay street and in other portions of San Francisco and also has a ranch near Hayward.

Tonight it is believed that the woman's wounds are not fatal. Watson is in the Santa Rosa jail.

RELIEF PROMISED FROM GREAT HEAT IN EASTERN STATES

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Substantial relief from the present hot wave which has prevailed over the country east of the Rocky Mountains during the past week is promised for Monday in a special bulletin issued by the weather bureau today, which also says the week beginning June 28 will as a whole be cooler than the present week. The sweltering heat continued unabated here today with the government's downtown thermometer in Pennsylvania avenue registering 88 degrees at noon. The next well-defined barometric disturbance, says the weather bureau, will cross the United States from west to east about June 28 to July 3, attended in districts east of the Rockies by general rains.

Governor Wears Jeans At His Inauguration

ATLANTA, Ga., July 26.—Clad in a suit of jeans, "Little Joe" Brown today succeeded Hoke Smith as governor of Georgia.

The suit Brown wore was altogether Georgian. The wool was clipped from Georgia sheep and was manufactured into cloth by a factory at Marietta, where Brown lives. Brown walked to the state capitol accompanied by a few friends who, like himself, wore suits of brown Georgia jeans.

The inaugural ceremonies were very simple in accordance with the wishes of Brown.

Lonely in Mountain Cabin, She Ends Life

SANTA ROSA, June 26.—Her husband away and herself with the colic and moaning the death of her baby, who had been her sole companion in a lonely cabin home on Duncan's Peak, seven miles from Hopland, Mrs. Louise Lee, aged 22, committed suicide, leaving this note: "Farewell, dear ones. I cannot stand this any longer. LOUISE."

A traveler passed the cabin and looked in. He found the body and communicated with the coroner of Mendocino county.

Sixteen U. S. Ships to Be At the Portola Festival

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Navy Department has made selection of the following vessels to be present at the Portola Festival: The Albany, Buffalo, Yorktown, Cheyenne and twelve torpedo vessels.

The Navy Department will write the Portola committee stating that the greater vessels will not be available. The shore of warships, it is declared, is the best that could be had under the previous appointments for the Pacific fleet.

Initial Plans Call for the Employment of From 600 to 1000 Men

ALAMEDA, June 26.—The New Jersey Steel and Iron Company of New Jersey is likely to locate on a site on the north side of this city, facing the estuary. The entire plant, it is estimated, will cost $11,000,000.

It will consist of wharves and other accessory equipments. A report favoring this location was forwarded by special agents after two months' investigation of sites here, at Martinez and Point Richmond.

If a decision favorable to this city is reached by the eastern capitalists the company will commence construction of a big works at once. Initial plans call for the employment of from 600 to 1,000 men.

WOMEN SHOULD MARRY AND REAR HAPPY FAMILIES

BOSTON, June 26.—Dr. Charles W. Elliot, former president of Harvard, in a letter replying to the question: "What shall we do with our girls?" propounded by Samuel Lipinsky, a street car conductor, says:

"The best occupation for women is marrying and bringing up a family, but other occupations do not interfere with this ultimate, happiest life for a healthy woman. After marriage the business occupation may have to be abandoned for a term of years and in the most fortunate cases it is not resumed, but in many cases it is resumed later to the great advantage of the woman most nearly concerned and perhaps of other people dependent upon her."

Gets Money for Heart That Kutner Damaged

PORTLAND, Or., June 26.—Leon Kutner, heir to the millions of the late Adolph Kutner of Fresno, Cal., whose marriage in England to Miss Elizabeth Fabnestock of Philadelphia is announced, was engaged two years ago to Miss Marie C. Hurlburt, a Portland beauty. He had given her an engagement ring and had even bought the matter in a license and wedding ring, when his relatives interposed strenuous objection and he was sent off to Europe.

Palo Alto Woman Hurt in Runaway

YOSEMITE, June 26.—Mrs. J. F. Parkinson, wife of the president of the First National Bank of Palo Alto, and Mrs. John H. Lee, also of Palo Alto, were badly injured this afternoon as the result of the overturning of a runaway stage between El Capitan and the Cascades.

Mrs. Parkinson sustained a fracture of the right ankle and Mrs. Lee was crushed under the stage, receiving a broken rib and internal injuries.

VANDERBILT IN AUTO WAR

BAR HARBOR, Me., June 26.—Rather than be the sole champion of the losing cause in the automobile war which is harassing Bar Harbor's summer colony this season, George W. Vanderbilt has forsaken his big Bar Harbor estate, which is valued in millions. Feeling during the past winter months has been growing very bitter and the much-discussed automobile question threatens to wreck the social peace of the famous summer resort.

From the outset George Vanderbilt has been the only one of any prominence in the summer colony who has supported the autoists.

The summer residents have been using their utmost efforts to preserve the drives and keep automobiles off the island. During the winter a lobby was maintained at the State Legislature at Augusta, and as a result the Legislature has granted the towns on Mount Desert Island the privilege of excluding automobiles. Practically all the big taxpayers except the Vanderbilts joined in this movement. The question is to come up for decision by the voters July 10. The result is practically certain.

PONTIFF HONORS GRAND OLD PRIEST

Father Prendergast Raised to Dignity of Domestic Prelate by Pius

HAS SERVED CHURCH
FOR HALF A CENTURY

Vestments of Office Will Be Bestowed at Churchman's
Golden Jubilee

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The solemn high mass in honor of the golden jubilee of the Very Rev. Father Prendergast, to be held this coming Tuesday morning at St. Mary's Cathedral, will be invested with a special significance because of its usual import. Father Prendergast has been raised by the holy father, Pope Pius X., to the dignity of Domestic Prelate.

The untiring labor of fifty years in the priesthood, the self-sacrifice and devotion whose flame-time could not flicker nor extinguish, have received this signal recognition at the last. The other garb of a Domestic Prelate, the Monsignore dress—purple cassock with train, mantle, ruff, and stockings of purple; the rochet, the black biretta, purple tufted—all this may fitly symbolize the peaceful triumph within Father Prendergast's heart.

Distinguished Honor

It is a distinguished honor that the holy father has conferred upon the finely aged, finely dignified priest. The rank of Domestic Prelate means much the same in the church as the rank of General or admiral in the army and navy of the world. On celebrating "pontificate," the Domestic Prelate wears a white mitre, ring and pectoral cross.

This honor to Father Prendergast, conferred at the special request of Archbishop Riordan, comes at the most appropriate of times. For on this Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock the cathedral, the Vicar General celebrating a solemn high mass, commemorating his fifty years of service. At this mass the clergy of the diocese and the public is invited to be present.

Father Prendergast will receive no purse from the thousands who have come to admire and love him. Whenever he was approached or inadvertently heard of such a movement, he shook his head, and pointedly remarked he would prefer nothing of the kind be given him.

Father Prendergast wishes the day to pass with little to be said. He finds, when he enters the cathedral Tuesday, that the edifice has been decked with flowers, and a great number of priests, two hundred or more, will be assembled in the sanctuary when he prostrates himself at the altar steps.

At the close of the mass a luncheon will be served in the basement of the cathedral to the visiting clergy. In the evening Father Prendergast will be the guest of the children of the cathedral Sunday school, who will offer songs, recitations, tokens of affection.

Honor a Secret

The fact that the Vicar General has been made a Domestic Prelate has so far been concealed from him. Archbishop Riordan intending to cap a memorable day with the surprise. Nor is it likely that Father Prendergast will be more touched than the multitude crowding the cathedral, who have known him for decades, whom he has baptized, prepared for confirmation, married; to whose people he has administered the last rites.

The Vicar General is resolved not to take a vacation. His last respite from work was in 1875.

Father Prendergast is esteemed one of the best-read men in the city, and somewhat of a classical authority. His memory in respect of dates and events, particularly events in San Francisco, is profound. It is expected that hundreds of Catholics will make of Tuesday a holiday and an occasion for thanksgiving.

While the fire was raging up Van Ness avenue, there was no one in the city more self-possessed than Father Prendergast. He watched the enervating ruin the father expressed a wish. It was that his life might be spared until he should see St. Mary's parish as rich and populous as before; a wish shared by many another with this sincerely beloved priest.

The fire department was called on last night to extinguish a small blaze in the rear of 925 Myrtle street. The loss was about $200.

WISE MEN WAX WROTH OVER MORAL LAW

Cardinal Gibbons Refuses to Enter McFall Controversy
Without Careful Thought

MAY SAY SOMETHING ON SUBJECT LATER ON

Churchmen and Educators Continue Agitated Over Condemnation of Universities

NEW YORK, June 26.—"I do not feel able now to discuss these most important, most fundamental questions. The reason is that I am not well enough informed concerning what these college professors are saying about Christianity as quoted in the public prints to register my own views."

"If it is true that some of them are attacking the very basis of our faith, then it is still more necessary to understand completely their arguments, their full scope and reach before making answer."

Moral Law the Issue

Thus did Cardinal Gibbons take up the controversy over the moral law which, started by Bishop McFall of New Jersey upon the teachings in the colleges of this country and a defense or reply by university presidents and other noted educators.

The cardinal was leaving New York on his way to Baltimore after three days here, crowded with social and official functions. He received the reporter in his drawing room on the Washington limited this morning as the train was leaving Jersey City. With him was Father Judge, who, as the cardinal talked, was packing a valise.

"It is not enough for me simply to read an article in which the opinions of various men are given in paragraphic form," he said further. "I desire still further knowledge of these things. I would welcome the opportunity to obtain this knowledge, so that then I might be able to give the statements full justice."

Pessimism Hinders Achievement

Reference was then made to the statement of Bishop McFall in which the New Jersey prelate said: "I shall instruct every Catholic I can reach that to send his son to one of these universities is comparable to committing his soul to hell."

Whereupon the cardinal said gently: "I do not care to discuss what Bishop McFall is quoted as saying. Perhaps later I may have something to say."

The cardinal seemed to be on the point of carrying his theme further at once, but he checked himself and with a still kinder expression, turned the conversation to the more peaceful theme which he had emphasized at the commencement of St. John's college.

"Let me say again," he remarked, "that at the present time, when our country is exposed to many evils unknown to its founders, we should not become pessimistic. Pessimism only hinders achievement. We should not lose sight of the good that exists in our country."

"Our freedom of speech brings to view many evils which would otherwise not be publicly known. It is good to know these things that we may be better able to combat them. Certainly our knowledge of them should not make us pessimistic but more anxious and hopeful to bring about better conditions."

Blood Will Out

Rev. Charles F. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, in this way entered upon a discussion of the controversy as to the moral teachings in the institutions of learning in this country: "The English blood in me will out. The stout, solid, stolid intellect I share with my countrymen cannot leap with such astonishing swiftness to such amazing generalization. I should have thought it necessary to read the books of these professors myself. Edwin Burke declared he did not know how to frame an indictment against a nation. Bishop McFall shows us how to form an indictment against a whole world—the world of culture and progress."

Eddie Foy and His Family in Auto Wreck

NEW YORK, June 26.—Eddie Foy, the comedian, and two of his children, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured today when their machine was run into by another big touring car on the city street. Mr. Foy and his children were shot out of their car, Eddie Jr. turning a complete somersault and landing on his back on the sidewalk. Foy was not injured. The little girl received a painful cut on the head.

United States Attorney Confirms Report His Appointment Is Held Up

TELLS OF CONNECTION
OF BURNS WITH CASE

Prosecutor Gives Out Statement of His Version of Prosecution

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—United States Attorney Robert T. Devlin, who returned from Washington today, confirmed the report that his reappointment has been held up in the Senate committee. The Senators wished to look further into the prosecution of Dr. Perrin and his subsequent conviction of frauds before they agree to Devlin.

Devlin was summoned to Washington by the Senate committee to answer charges filed by Perrin. Perrin asserted his indictment was brought about by former President Roosevelt through Special Agent Burns.

Devlin's Version

On arriving today Devlin gave this version of his affairs: "Perrin has some strong friends at Washington who would like to see him out of trouble. While as a government official it became my duty to prosecute him, I have always felt a certain degree of sympathy for him on account of his age, but of course sympathy cannot enter as a factor in the trial of cases."

"Detective William J. Burns was in the beginning connected with this case. Snell had been employed by Perrin and Burns either took Snell to the office and introduced him, or Snell went alone and introduced himself. This case was assigned to Mr. Black, my assistant, who had charge of the preparation of the case and presented it to the grand jury."

"I was not present at any time before the grand jury, but it is said that Burns, who was a witness, made a statement to the effect that President Roosevelt wanted Perrin indicted. I have asked my deputies as to this and they declare that no such statement was ever made."

"While it is vigorously asserted that Burns said the President wanted Perrin indicted, I have been unable to find any foundation for the statement and I do not believe that there is anything in it."

Tells of Snell Evidence

"After the case had been tried, Snell, a former employee of Perrin and a government witness, made an affidavit in which, among other things, he gives a different version to some of the facts testified to by him and reflects on Burns."

"Before the case was presented to the grand jury Snell had made out a complete statement of his evidence, typewritten and initialed by himself, which is in our possession, and his testimony on the stand was in accordance with the evidence. The statement is signed by him, is dated October 6, 1908, while the indictment on which Denison and Perrin were tried, was not found until October 30, 1908."

"There are some senators who desire to investigate Burns' connection with the case and we are anxious to ascertain whether President Roosevelt exercised any influence in the matter. As far as Mr. Burns and believe, nothing of this kind by the president was done or attempted."

WHITE REPUBLICANS
DOMINATE IN TEXAS

GALVESTON, Texas, June 26.—That the white Republicans are dominating the party in Texas in spite of the numbers outnumbering them three to one is evidenced by the actual or prospective retirement from government positions of all negroes of Texas. More than 100 negroes who have been serving as deputy marshals, internal revenue collectors, customs inspectors and other offices have not been reappointed as their terms have expired today. It was said today that all the negroes have received notice that they will not be reappointed.

AGED BURGLAR IS RELEASED ON BAIL

STOCKTON, June 26.—A. C. Derwent, who has been in jail for eighteen months, was taken before Judge Nutt today and on motion of Attorney Bucktorney Renison, was released on $2000 bail. The aged prisoner was sentenced to three years in San Quentin for robbing his tenant's store, but the Supreme Court granted him a new trial.

James Halstead, a cab driver, declares that Ling paid him $7 to haul the trunk from Newark to an address on Eighth avenue, near Forty-ninth street, supposed to be the house in which the body was found later. And Li Sing, the Newark Chinaman, has told the police that Leon Ling brought the body to his restaurant June 9 and kept it there twelve hours before taking it away.

Leon Ling, according to Li Sing, asked permission to leave the trunk there in the night. He was told there was no room, to which Ling replied that if Li Sing would take care of it until the next day he would come and take it away. Leon Ling then departed. He came back in the afternoon on June 10 and took the trunk away. The statement of Halstead, the cabman, coincides with this.

Asked to Be Married

Strangely enough, this new development might be made to coincide with another revelation that came today in the form of a statement from a Washington Heights minister, who is said to have told the police that a girl answering the description of Elsie Sigel, accompanied by a Chinaman, came to him on the night of June 1 or 2 and asked him to marry her.

When the minister refused to marry them, the girl said: "All right, if you won't marry us here, we will go to Philadelphia."

It is believed the Chinaman may have been Chu Chin, the Chinese restaurant keeper.

There is now nothing to indicate that Elsie Sigel was murdered elsewhere than at the Eighth-avenue Chinese lodging house. The time that the girl reached San Leon's restaurant, over which Leon Ling and Chong Sing had their rooms, is now fixed at 10 o'clock on the morning of June 3.

Saw Girl Enter

A policeman attached to the West Forty-seventh-street station, who was on duty near the restaurant that morning, has testified that he saw the girl enter the place at that hour.

It was stated today that the coroner's report will say the girl died of asphyxiation. The chemical analysis of the been offered. The local authorities declined to give up the body.

In an interview tonight Rosenthal declared that Eastman and Mrs. Woodill had acquaintance of long standing, and that as Eastman's lawyer he knew that his client had visited the woman at her California home.

If this were the secret of Eastman's making a home here is divulged. He wanted to be near Mrs. Woodill, knowing that she was coming to Maryland to spend the summer.

Heard Woman's Voice

Witness William Sutton, who, it was last night said, had heard a party of men and women merrymaking in a bungalow on Sunday night, declared today that it was late Saturday night that he heard only the voice of one man, and one woman in the bungalow, that the voice of the woman was that of Mrs. Woodill. Sutton did not make his presence outside the house known and went away.

When the cabin was searched following the discovery of the body, plates, cups and saucers were there and unused.

Eastman, when he returned on Sunday morning with the team he had borrowed to meet Mrs. Woodill with on Saturday, spoke to his neighbor of the fact that he had had a girl visitor at his bungalow the night before. There was no mention of a party. Passers-by saw lights in the bungalow windows of the bungalow as late as 11 o'clock Saturday night.

The two were heard to quarrel as they drove away from Royal Oak station Saturday afternoon.

The girl knew much of Eastman's past life—know him as an accused swimmer and embezzler and a fugitive from justice—and the theory is advanced that in the course of their quarrel the girl threatened to disclose the identity of the man who had taken the name of Robert Woodill.

While Mrs. Woodill's theory then that in the East than either she or her husband had intended, because of her association with Eastman, she had decided at last to go away and see the man no more.

The disclosure of this purpose may have led to her death in the bungalow. The only definite clues in possession of the authorities indicate that not more than two persons were in the bungalow at any time Saturday or Sunday.

Relatives in Doubt

LOS ANGELES, June 25.—Relatives here of Mrs. Edith May Thompson Woodill, when questioned about the conflicting reports concerning the manner in which she met Lyman J. Gage, former Secretary of the treasury, stated today that they were not sufficiently informed to say whether Mrs. Woodill's life and her youth to explain the matter clearly. While Gage has stated that he met Mrs. Woodill through the late President McKinley at Washington, Colonel Charles H. Thompson of McKinley, who was the former Secretary of the Treasury knew her when she was a 2-year-old child in Minnesota.

"Both of these statements may be correct," said Woodill. "Mrs. Woodill's mandate of speaking of Mr. Gage would indicate that she had known him in early childhood. But I do not know that to be a fact. She once told me of having met Mr. Gage in Washington through President McKinley and I had in some way gathered the impression that it was their first meeting."

"Yet Mr. Gage may have known her, as Colonel Thompson says, when she was a child."

In nothing to refute the statement that the Chinaman was in Newark with the body except the Washington telegram.

BEATS LABORER WITH IRON BAR

John Carroll Inflicts Possibly Fatal Injuries on H. Johnson in Drunken Brawl

H. Johnson, a laborer employed by Rocky-Thibbets Construction Company, was beaten last night with an iron bolt in the hands of John Carroll, who says he is a brother to the Chief of Police of San Jose, and possibly fatally injured. Both men had been drinking hard during the day at the Clinton Hotel and afterwards in East Oakland. A quarrel arose over some trivial matter. Johnson sought to avoid trouble by going to his bunk house. Carroll followed him, armed with an iron bolt, twelve inches long and three-fourths of an inch in diameter. A fight ensued, in which Johnson was badly beaten about the head.
It is thought his skull is fractured. The injured man was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where it was ascertained that he was seriously if not fatally injured.

The police were notified and immediately went in search of Carroll. He is described as a man 50 years of age, weighing 165 pounds, with gray hair, his left eye is affected and one of the
wore the clothes of a laborer and had a soot hat.

CONSTABLE TO BE RELEASED

David Sheehan Granted Probation if he Secures $1000 Bond

SACRAMENTO, June 26.—Deputy Constable of Alameda County David Sheehan, who attempted to kill his wife several weeks ago when he found her hiding from him in this city, was given an opportunity today to be released on probation, providing that he secured a $1000 bond and agreed to furnish his wife and three children with $25 per month. Sheehan was unable to raise the required bond, but he says he will have the necessary amount by Monday. After searching for three weeks for his wife and children, Sheehan found them in apartments in this city. Enraged because she refused to return with him, he fired at her, the bullet narrowly missing her head.

MARKET STREET HAS NEW LIGHTS

United Railroads Furnish Both Poles and Electricity For Historic Thoroughfare

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Workmen yesterday began erecting a monumental lighting poles in Market street, which the United Railroads has agreed to donate to the city and maintain the lighting. The ornamentation is from the plans of D. H. Burnham and is copied from the lamps on the Alexander III bridge at Paris, with such modifications as are applicable to the traditions of the West.

The base consists of a heavy octagonal casting about six feet in height, in which three typical Western scenes are portrayed. One is of the early days when a pioneer drives a mule with pick and pan and a bear is portrayed.
while a third scene shows a collection of animals. Above this ornamental casting is a pole rising to a height of twenty-three feet, relieved by two or three rings. The pole is capped with an ornate casting, containing a circle for an arc lamp. The entire standard is about 30 feet above the sidewalk. An American eagle surmounts the apex of the mast.

The ornamental masts will be set at a distance of 100 feet on both sides of Market street from the ferry to Valencia street. Similar ornamental poles will be placed in Sutter street between Market street and Van Ness street, and in Valencia street from the junction of Market and Haight to Twenty-eighth street.

The cost of placing the poles and the lighting will be borne by the United Railroads. Patrick Calhoun, who the cost the company $60,000, while the lighting will cost the company $25,000 a year.
The company only furnishes poles in Valencia street and the city will pay for the lighting.

GAMBLING MEN WILL TEST LAW

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Sporting men anxious to make wagers on events that interest them have passed the validity of the anti-betting law passed by the legislature. The law, passed after the New York state and intended to put the racetracks out of business, has been enforced with such rigor that betting in any form has served as a cause for arrest.

In order to expedite a decision, habeas corpus proceedings have been brought on behalf of George Adams, arrested for acting as a stakeholder for a bet on the Faulk-Ketchikan fight. The case will be taken to the appellate court, without need for a decision in the lower court. Attorney Carroll Cook has charge of the case, and says there are fatal defects in the law. He will file a written argument before the appellate court on Monday.

Murder Planned

murdered girl's stomach is being made by Professor Ferguson of Columbia College.

Assistant District Attorney Ward made the following statement:

"We have sufficient evidence to convict Leon Ling of murder in the first degree. We have been seeking to establish the motive for the crime, and consider beyond a doubt that it was jealousy.
I think Ling had premeditated the crime for many weeks. He may not have planned to kill his sweetheart on the morning of June 9 until he heard her tell of her fondness for Chu Chin. It can be established that Ling had expressed a determination to do to anything to prevent her marrying his rival."

Detectives in the District Attorney's office believe that if it was not Leon who carried the trunk to Newark, it was Chong Sing, his roommate.

CONVICTS AFTER LAWYER FELON

George D. Collins is Much Sought After by Jail Birds
For Advice

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Guards at San Quentin have been kept busy since the arrival of George D. Collins in preventing him from being harassed by convicts in search of free legal advice.

Collins, who is serving a fourteen year sentence for perjury committed during his trial for bigamy, managed to prolong his fight to keep out of jail more than four years.

The convicts regard this record as convincing proof of his address as an attorney and they are continually importun-ing him for counsel in their own predicaments.

Collins has been put at work as a picker in the jail since the wicket of San Quentin slammed to behind him.
He wears his striped worsted without complaint and has given the prison authorities no trouble. Collins in fact is beginning to be regarded as a model prisoner. For a man who fought so determinedly to keep out of jail, he remains in jail with an easy complacency and professes to be grateful to the guards for saving him from the rage of convicts who would make him their corporation counsel. Collins still lives in hope of obtaining a pardon from Governor Gillett.

By good behavior he can shorten his sentence to a little more than eight years of imprisonment.

OF CARDINAL
IS VERY GRAVE

ROME, June 26.—The condition of Cardinal Sottili, who has been ill for several past weeks, is reported tonight to be critical. One of the Pope's special physicians examined the cardinal tonight and reported him to be suffering from nephritis and a stroke of the right lung. The physician refused to express any opinion as to the cardinal's chances for recovery.

J. P. MORGAN TO VISIT THIS STATE

Financier to Be Present at Laying of Episcopal Church Cornerstone

TO TOUR ALASKA WITH SENATOR PERKINS

Party to Inspect $40,000,000 Railroad Into Copper River Region

NEW YORK, June 26.—J. Pierpont Morgan, multi-millionaire master of American finance and banker for some of the most gigantic enterprises in the world, is going to visit Alaska this summer for the purpose of making a personal inspection of his interests there and investigating for himself the wonderful resources of that northern empire.

The trip will be made in addition to his visit to California, when he will participate in the laying of the cornerstone of the new Episcopal cathedral in San Francisco and incidentally make a close-range study of California as an investment field.

This information was imparted here today by one who is closely in touch with Morgan's plans and who was able to furnish some details of the financier's proposed journey, which will be an unusual one for Mr. Morgan, and unique in many ways.

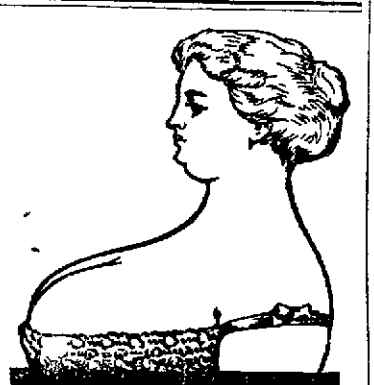

The exact itinerary of Morgan has not been definitely settled, but it is understood that he will be accompanied on his trip by United States Senator George C. Perkins of California, who is president of the Pacific Coast Steamship Company. Mr. Morgan and his party will embark on one of the Pacific Coast Company's steamers either from San Francisco or from Seattle, and the voyage to Alaska waters will be made through the scenic wonders of the island passage, while at Valdez the party will disembark and board a special train over the new copper river region line which is being built under the direction of Michael J. Henry, the constructor of the White Pass Railroad.

Interested in Copper

Morgan and his associates are also interested with the Guggenheims in this vast mineral wealth, and it was to open up the copper river country and make its mineral output easily accessible to tidewater and the outside world that the Copper River Railroad was planned and built. It is well known that Morgan in common with his unbounded faith in the future of the far west, as evidenced by his recent acquisition of gas and telephone bonds in California to the extent of twenty million dollars believes that the development of the fabulous resources of Alaska has only just begun. That the administration at Washington is equally alive to the future of Alaska is evidenced by the fact that President Taft has projected a tour of inspection of Alaska this summer and will carry out his plans if congress sees fit to grant him the $25,000 allowance for traveling expenses which was cut off several months ago when the President's salary was increased by congress. It is not unlikely therefore that if President Taft visits Alaska he and Morgan may meet at some point during their travels there.

Special Steamer

It is understood that a special steamer is being prepared at Seattle for the accommodation of Morgan and his party. A steamer is virtually being remodeled and fitted with every convenience. Spacious staterooms and cabins are being constructed for Morgan and his guests and these will be furnished in a sumptuous style. It is understood also that an elaborately equipped kitchen will be installed so that Morgan will be enabled to gratify his well-known propensities as a gourmet.

Take Off the Fat Where It Shows

Most women suffer much humiliation because of great quantities of fat, so located that no matter how they dress, everybody sees that they are abnormal. This is the day of the slimmer figure, and fat women are simply not tolerated either in business or social affairs. Women must not know that but men when they see a fat woman pass them on the street make all manner of sympathetic remarks about her. They do not mean to be unkind or to seem unkindly, but it is natural for a man to dislike fat on a woman. Where fat shows the most there is where it must be removed and as quick as possible. The hot water dressings seem to be made for the purpose of removing fat from the body. This has been proved. The famous Marmola prescription which has met with such phenomenal success and has so many of our society women as its adherents, is now being sold in tablet form to meet the demand of the public for this style of treatment. These little tablets go into your system just like food. They stop the stomach and displace the fat upon the body at the rate of from 12 to 15 ounces a day. There are no more aches and pains in your joints and you can be carried in your purse and taken with you wherever you have indulged in a hearty meal away from home. They are sold at all drug stores at 75 cents a box, or if you prefer you may write the Marmola Company, Dept. 22, Detroit, Mich.

BEATS MAN WHO INSULTS MOTHER

Chester Plotz Arrested for Assault on Painter is Out on Bail

ALAMEDA, June 26.—Defending his mother against the alleged insults of a painter named Norman, Chester Plotz today landed in the net of the police station on the charge of battery. Plotz has been released from custody under $75 bond furnished by F. T. Scott. Plotz makes the following statement: "I was sitting at the dinner table when this man Norman, who was employed by my mother to paint the house, entered the room. My mother remarked about the manner of Norman's painting and he began to abuse her. I got up from the table and proceeded to thrash him. I could not see my own mother insulted by a man of his caliber. Plotz' trial has been set for Tuesday at 10:30 o'clock before Justice Tappan."

SUBSTANTIAL PEOPLE THE ONES WHO ENDORSE FER DON AND HIS TREATMENTS

Scores of Suffering People Avail Themselves of Generous Offer and Accept Fer Don's 30-Day Free Treatment.

At the office of the Great Fer Don at 1069 Broadway the people of Oakland and San Francisco have witnessed sights such as have never before been seen in this or any other city. This unique character promised that the people would be made to marvel at the remarkable cures that would be made and the almost miraculous relief from pain and suffering that many hundreds who had hitherto given up hope would experience. Accompanied as the people have grown to expecting the unusual things from Fer Don and his wonderful corps of European medical experts and bloodless surgeons, yet the public mind now confesses that his work is positively without a parallel in the history of diseases and their treatments.

The men of medicine, the most skillful surgeons, the trained scientists, all agree that Fer Don has done more for suffering humanity than any other human being.

A tree is known by its fruits and a man by his works. The Good Book says one cannot dig for riches and thistles, and no more can the results achieved by Fer Don's skilled experts be traced to any other sources than that of the thorough, far-reaching scientific research made by Fer Don's specialists, and an intimate knowledge of the origin and treatment of every ailment that flesh is heir to.

30 DAYS' FREE TREATMENT.
Fer Don has astounded the medical fraternity and the men of science, and has completely dumfounded the wisacre and know-it-all with his miraculous achievements. Men and women bent and racked with rheumatism have been taken from their crutches and canes; the blind have had their sight restored; the deaf have heard anew the voices of their loved ones. Chronic ailments of all kinds have been dispensed and bodily health restored through the European methods known only and practiced exclusively by this famed corps of experts.

With a record of this marvelous character behind them, Fer Don, out of the fullness of his heart and a desire to alleviate suffering and distress, now makes the phenomenal offer to treat every one—man, woman or child—for 30 days free of all charge—not a penny paid for that period and each case will be given the most complete treatment of one of the European Experts and Bloodless Surgeons that Fer Don, at enormous expense, has brought to America.

THOUSANDS CURED.
Since Fer Don first came to Oakland thousands have been treated—thousands have been discharged and there is no need of Fer Don's Experts' services.

"You know," said Fer Don, "it's human nature to procrastinate, and since we came to Oakland there have been many who called and consulted our doctors who promised that they would cure them in the near future for treatment. Well, the offer is directed toward that class also to some extent, for we believe that if we make our terms for a thirty-day treatment absolutely nil we can demonstrate to those who are ailing and depressed with disease that our methods of attacking and overcoming cancers, tumors, gall stones, rheumatism, stomach trouble, neuralgia and catarrhal deafness, and thousands of other maladies, are so unique and so certain of cure that it is remuneration enough to us to have these people fully satisfied, as we know they will be."

SUBSTANTIAL CITIZENS TALK.
Mr. D. Raper, who lives at 2913 Opal street, had the following to say: "Fer Don has cured me of a disease that it happened to me some time or two of my friends were trying this Fer Don treatment. They urged me to do the same, but I only laughed at them. They were persistent and I obtained the treatment about two months ago. I had been taking the medicine about four days when I began to realize that at last I had obtained something that was helping me. I was sleeping better and the liquid food I was living on began to taste better and seemed to digest. Every day I was more improved. A few days ago I ventured to eat some beefsteak. Every mouthful tasted good, but I feared the consequences. It is the only diet that did not trouble me, but seemed to give me strength. I have continued to eat solid food since then. I now eat three hearty meals a day. I have gained close to fifteen pounds. I can do a day's work with any man, and there is no more thankful or grateful individual on earth than I am. I would not take the money in Alameda county and be where I was four months ago. I would be willing to devote two months in talking with people of this city about Fer Don's treatment, as I feel I owe it to him to do so."

MORE STRONG TESTIMONIALS OF FER DON'S SUCCESS.
Here are a few more of the hundreds successfully treated by Fer Don's experts:

Get at the bottom. See and judge for yourself. Consult Mrs. W. H. Harvey of 264 Eureka street, San Francisco, whom Fer Don relieved of over two hundred gall stones after one treatment.

See Joe Goldberg of 715 Market street, Oakland, who was cured of his joint disease, and who now walks without crutches, which he previously had used for seven years.

Consult Mrs. M. A. Newberry of 1805 Turk street, San Francisco, who was relieved of going to Fer Don's Bloodless Surgeons without causing a bit of pain, without the use of a knife or without the sight of a drop of blood.

Call on or phone Mrs. C. Mattson, living at 1920 West street, Oakland. She was troubled with stomach disease, tried several doctors, but all failed until she consulted the European Medical Experts. After taking one dose of their medicine she was relieved of a tape worm over one hundred feet in length, a monster that was fast eating her life away. These occurrences are not unusual with the European Experts. Cures fully as remarkable are chronic daily.

Then there is little Esther Goodman, who has been greatly benefited of a form of paralysis that affected her neck to the extent that she could not house her head upright. She is now able to turn and twist her head and neck for the first time since she was born. Many others have been treated with wonderful results.

Consult the Hon. A. McKee of 1041 J Magnolia street, Oakland, who was relieved of a registered cancer on his lip by Fer Don's Experts.

These are facts—these testimonials can be verified—these are no mythical persons. They are stories of the phenomenal success of the Great Fer Don, a marvelous record of a marvelous man.

In speaking of his wonderfully liberal offer to take all cases and give 30 days free treatment, Fer Don's representative said:

"I am especially glad to have helped these people, because, first, they are prominent and well-known people in their home towns, and secondly, because they are so discouraged when they come to see me. Experience of this character, thousands in the aggregate, permit me to make the free offer I have. My success has been wonderful here in Oakland, and to show my appreciation I permit my Experts and Bloodless Surgeons, whom I pay a fabulous salary, to take these cases for 30 days absolutely without charge for treatment or medicine."

BUSIEST OFFICES IN OAKLAND.
At the offices of Fer Don's European Medical Experts and Bloodless Surgeons, at 1069 Broadway, many gather daily from all parts of the Pacific Coast. These physicians treat and cure all curable chronic and nervous complaints, remove tumors, cancers and gall stones without the use of a knife. Thousands have been cured, testifying to the powers of the European Experts to really cure when others have failed.

HEIRE'S TUE OPPORTUNITY.
A few days under the expert eye of these European Specialists at a cost of absolutely nothing and you may avoid a lifetime of sickness and suffering.

Bring the attached coupon to the offices at 1069 Broadway and begin your course of treatment at once. Several doctors are in attendance and the utmost privacy is guaranteed.

FREE TREATMENT COUPON.
This coupon entitles the holder to one month's treatment with Fer Don's European Experts and Bloodless Surgeons at their offices, 1069 Broadway, Oakland, if presented on or before June 30, 1903.

Cure Your Rheumatism Costs Nothing to Try

Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Pain in the back, have been cured in the real meaning of the word, by a little Sulfing. Iodine of Potassium, Pepsin, Root, Gualac Resin and Sarsaparilla. These remedies, even a young child, can take these remedies with perfect safety, and the results have been found to be astonishing. It has been proven that this combination makes up the best rheumatism remedy in existence, having actually cured many cases of over 40 years' standing—even in persons of old age.

The five ingredients mentioned above prepared with great accuracy and skill not only in regard to proportion but also in selecting the best material, have been put up in compressed tablet form, and are called "Gloria Tonic."

If you suffer from any form of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, this is the way to drive it out of your system in quick time.

Test this great remedy for yourself by sending for a trial package to J. A. Smith, 5130 Smith Edge, Milwaukee, Wis. Send this notice with your name and address on a slip of paper and you will receive a trial package by return mail absolutely free. It is only in "Gloria Tonic" that you can get the above combination ready for use.

For sale and recommended in Oakland by Owl Drug Co., Thirtieth and Broadway, Washington and Tenth Sts. 113 Thirtieth St., Sixteenth and San Pablo.

OREGON EASTERN PLANS EXTENSION

Bids for Construction of Sixty Miles of Track to Be Received

PORTLAND, Or., June 26.—According to advices received here by the local officials of the Harriman system, bids for the construction of practically sixty miles of the Oregon Eastern Railroad projected from Natron to Klamath Falls, this State, will be received at the Southern Pacific Company's offices in San Francisco during the next two weeks. Of this mileage about twenty-five miles will be built northward from Klamath Falls and the balance southward from Natron.

Local Harriman officials will make no estimate of the probable cost of the two sections, but it is believed the improvement will cost about $2,225,000. While the Oregon Eastern will be located entirely in this State, its construction will be directed from San Francisco. The two extensions combined cover about one-third of the length of the proposed road from Klamath Falls to Natron. The object in projecting this road is to provide a better grade for the Southern Pacific between here and California by avoiding the Siskiyou mountains.

JUDAENS TO HEAR
PROFESSOR POPPER TALK

Professor Popper, of the Sematic Department of the University of California, will address the Judaens Society at an open meeting to be held next Wednesday evening in Zion Hall, Ninth and Castro streets. The event is evoking much interest among the members of the society, who are arranging a literary and musical program for the evening.

Definite arrangements have been made for the first annual picnic to be given by the Judaens in East Shore Park, Stages, July 11. Many interesting forms of amusement have been planned for the day.

CONBOY'S VICTIM MUCH IMPROVED

Surgeons Fear, Though, That if Lagan Recovers He Will Be Cripple

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The condition of Bernard Lagan, the young Mission business man who was shot down by Captain Michael Joseph Conboy of the Harbor station early Wednesday morning, continues to improve. At 9 o'clock tonight the surgeons at St. Francis Hospital, while unwilling to declare positively that their patient was out of danger, gave it as their opinion that his chances for recovery were very favorable.

It is probable, however, that the young man will be unable to walk. The surgeons have as yet been unable, because of Lagan's weakness, to make an extensive examination, but Dr. Pinkham of the Central Emergency Hospital, and Dr. Perry of St. Francis Hospital, believe that all of his lower limbs will be paralyzed. This condition is the result of the lodgment of the bullet in the spine.

Conboy is Restless
Captain Conboy is extremely restless and unable to settle down to being a gentleman of leisure. He has been so used to the regular routine of police duty that he could not remain quiet today and was around town as usual consulting with his attorneys and receiving the sympathy of his friends.

The fact that Dr. Lagan, the uncle of the injured man, was Conboy's private physician for several years, and a close friend, together with the fact that the officer was in an intoxicated condition when the shot was fired, leads many to believe that the family of the injured man will not prosecute. So far no criminal complaint has been filed against Conboy, though he has been booked on a charge of assault to murder and instructed as to his rights. The case against him has been set for July 5. This, however, is a legal holiday and will necessitate a continuance.

WOMEN PURCHASE A LIBRARY SITE

Work in New Building Will Begin at Once—Trustees
Are Appointed

The City of Richmond is to have a Carnegie free library which will equal any library to be found in the interior towns of the state.

Nearly two years ago the members of the Women's Improvement Club of Richmond began laying plans for such an institution. Last fall the matter was presented before Mr. Carnegie, who agreed to donate $17,500.

The clubwomen then set about to secure a site. Against victory crowned their efforts, and at a recent meeting of the town trustees the women presented to the city deeds to three lots in Nevins avenue.

Thus prepared, the trustees engaged Architect Weeks of San Francisco to prepare plans and specifications for the building, which will be of a classic design.

The site provided by the Improvement Club was in the middle of a block, and not altogether satisfactory to the town trustees. Last Monday night the board purchased two lots adjoining the site, thus giving a good quarter block for the location of the building.

The site and the building when completed will represent an investment of about $25,000.

The library trustees were recently appointed by the board and consist of E. B. Smallwood, Mrs. George W. Topping, L. L. Brown, J. L. Bedwell and Harry Adkins.

WOMAN RANCHER

Death of Man Wounded by Mrs. Laguna Results in Her Arrest

SACRAMENTO, June 26.—Mrs. J. Laguna, manager of the Galt ranch, was placed under arrest today when Joseph Orvina, the Italian whom she shot over a year ago, died at the county hospital as a result of the wound.

The only explanation given by the Italian was that when he asked for a drink of water she hurried into the house, armed with a shotgun, which she aimed at his head and discharged when within a few feet of him.

Coroner Gornley will hold an inquest Monday and at that time the charge which Mrs. Laguna will have to answer will be decided. The woman made a statement to the District Attorney in which she said that Orvina was crazed with drink and that she shot him in self-protection.

ENTERTAIN 100 GUESTS AT WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

On their fifteenth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. J. George Smith entertained over one hundred friends at an "old-fashioned dance" at "Willie Hall," East Berkeley, Saturday evening, June 26.

Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Corwin, Mrs. H. L. Chandler, Miss E. Cannon, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cottle, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Denison, Mr. E. J. Bamford, Mrs. H. Bousal, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Codrington, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Crocker, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. H. Pollard, Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Schmidt, Captain and Mrs. H. R. Oakley, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Grimm, and Mrs. F. E. White, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stout, Mr. and Mrs. Elton Brown, Mr. and Mrs. F. Pierce, Miss A. Strange, Mr. H. Rankin, Mr. Henry C. R. Petersen, Mr. Henry Tuohy, Mr. A. L. Trever, Miss Florence C. Smith, Captain and Mrs. Wellington, Miss H. Godfrey, Mr. and Mrs. C. H.

Are Dangerous.

Ladies should be most particular in choosing a hair remover and learn first what reputable authorities know about it. In treating superfluous hair it is of vital importance that the agent to be employed should be absolutely non-poisonous, antiseptic and germicidal, because if it is not so with frequent use it will produce burning and itching.

Do Miraclo is the only hair remover that offers proof that it is harmless, safe and sure. Don't be deceived by startling statements made by fake PRB advertisers and others. Do Miraclo is sold by Owl Drug Co., 12th st. and Broadway, 10th and Washington st. 10th st. and San Pablo ave., and all other good stores, or booklet in plain sealed envelope by Dr. Miraclo Chem. Co., Desk H, 19, 1903 Park ave., New York.

Capwell's July Clearance Sale Opens Monday

Clearance here means the complete closing out of many lines of seasonable goods—a clearing of counters, shelves, show cases and tables of summer merchandise. No half-hearted or half-way measures are permitted at this store. The edict has gone forth to all department heads to clear the decks. The backward spring caused assortments to be greater than they should be at this time—hence, prices are cut lower than usual. THESE VALUES ARE UNPRECEDENTED.

In each of the twenty four departments there will be daily special offerings. All specials are from regular stock, were most reasonably priced in the first place and the reductions announced are bona-fide savings.

TRAVELED FAR AND WIDE

Woman Declares Letters to Her From Famous Cook
Were Destroyed

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Mrs. Margaret Averill, mother of E. H. Averill, a young stockholder in the steamship Kona, who claims to be related to E. H. Harriman, the railroad magnate, underwent three hours of cross-examination at the hands of attorneys in an effort to prove that young Averill is the son of Auguste Artot, the rich French chef who died recently, leaving a large estate to his widow, Mrs. Marie Artot. Mrs. Averill did this in the interest of her son for whom she is endeavoring to wrest half of the Artot estate from the widow.

Being the target for the questions of a trio of quick-witted attorneys is not a pleasant position, but Mrs. Averill spent three hours of grilling examination, during which she untold the romantic story of her life with the celebrated chef.

Known as His Wife

She met Artot while attending the Notre Dame Academy in Philadelphia during the year 1884 and she became enamored of him so deeply that when he asked her to go to Cape May, N. J., she consented. From that time on, until Artot became the pet of the late E. J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, as chef in the famous hotel, she was known to the world as Mrs. Artot, although she admitted to the attorneys examining her that she knew the real Mrs. Artot and the chef's son, George. But that did not deter her in the least, and the young woman traveled all over the United States as the wife of this famous chef. She stopped at the best hotels where her husband was employed and because he was an excellent chef he could not be out of the social distinction, which was also visited upon the young woman.

Married for Protection

But Artot became jealous of her, so Mrs. Averill testified, and when he threatened to shoot her if she did not return to his home, Mrs. Averill married her present husband, C. A. Averill, at Martinez, for the purpose, as she testified, of affording her the protection of a husband.

The most important detail ought to be established by the attorneys in their examination of Mrs. Averill was the facts concerning the birth of young Averill. According to the witness the son was born November 26, 1888, at a Mrs. Knight's home in Turin, Italy. The witness recalled that Dr. Alfred Perry, a well-known physician was summoned and she stated that if he could be found and called as a witness she would have no difficulty in proving young Averill's paternity.

Promised Her His Name

The advent of a son into the world, according to Mrs. Averill, brought great joy to Artot. He promised to marry Mrs. Averill at that time and to give the son a good education, according to her testimony.

When the estrangement came, she took her young son with her. She asserted today that she did not hear from Artot for some time after she left him, but it was not long before she received letters, so she declares, from the father inquiring after the son. Artot gave her money for the support of the child, she asserted, and he wrote hundreds of letters. All of these letters, she later testified, were destroyed in a railroad accident.

In a final answer she declared that she would furnish abundant proof that the celebrated chef was the father of young Averill. Her deposition after completion was filed with the county clerk and will be opened in court when the contest of Artot's will is begun in Judge Coffey's court.

BOY BURGLAR GIVEN HIS LIBERTY BY JUDGE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Moses Levi, a youth over whose head a charge of burglary has been pending for five years and who, since that time has been on probation, is not to be called a Lawlor's court today. Judge James J. McLaughlin, who presided over the case, dismissed the charge against Levi. Judge Levi told the lad that, as he had not violated his probation and had reformed, the charge would be dismissed and "henceforth it would be as though he had never committed the crime."

REPLACE DISEASED
WITH CHICKEN BONE

OMAHA, Neb., June 26.—An interesting surgical feat was reported today from St. Joseph's Hospital in this city, where a portion of the jawbone of little Lucinda Norris was removed and a piece of chicken bone inserted in place of the diseased portion. An examination of the wound today showed adhesion, and the operation was pronounced a success. The operation was performed a week ago, but was kept a secret.

The girl is 6 years old and was born with a malformed jaw. It was to remedy this that the diseased portion was removed and bone from a freshly killed chicken inserted.

New President
Is Broad-Minded

Prof. Ernest F. Nichols.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Professor Ernest F. Nichols of Columbia University, who has just been elected president of Dartmouth College, belongs to the most distinguished class of broad-minded scholars whose interests are not confined by the boundaries of any one field of thought or activity but extend over all fundamental problems of human concern.

Dr. Nichols was born in 1869 at Leavenworth, Kan., and was graduated at the age of 19 from the Kansas Agricultural College with the degree of B. S. The next year was spent in teaching, and the three following years as a graduate student in mathematics and physics at Cornell University, where he held the Ernest Brooks fellowship. He received his Ph.D. from Cornell in 1892. In 1892 he was appointed to the chair of physics and astronomy in Colgate University.

Dr. Nichols was at Colgate for six years, but in 1897 and a half years of the time were spent on leave of absence, studying under Planck and Rubens of the University of Berlin.

Machines Occurs at Morris Park Aerodrome

NEW YORK, June 26.—Everything within the realm of things aerial flew or tried to fly at the Morris Park race track this afternoon. It was the annual tournament and exhibition of the Aeronautical Society. Two thousand people were present.

An aeronautical record for the track, which is now known as the Morris Park Aerodrome, was made by Glenn H. Curtiss for a machine especially constructed for the society.

His machine, a bi-plane, circled three-quarters of the way around the mile track at an altitude of twenty feet, in 1 minute 4.2 seconds. This is unofficial time. The machine was always under perfect control.

Inventor Has Narrow Escape

William Martin of Canton, the inventor of a non-power airplane, miraculously escaped death when, in being towed in his machine behind an automobile, the rope broke and he was dashed into a fence. He escaped with slight abrasions of the hand, while the machine was wrecked.

Martin had gone about fifty yards and was just the other side of the grandstand when the accident occurred. His wife was in the automobile in front of him. The rope broke the machine was jerked forward and then suddenly crashed into a picket fence at the entrance to the aerodrome garage.

BEGINS SUIT AGAINST PROMOTERS OF MINE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—M. Vander Beugle began suit today against Ernest H. Wilson, a mining engineer, T. H. Bradbury, Thomas Bradbury, N. C. Lawson, James Mundy and Mrs. James Mundy, who are interested in mines in the Allegheny district near Nevada City, asking that a receiver be appointed to look after two mines which are in possession of Wilson, through the alleged false representation of the latter as to their value.

In the complaint filed by Beugle, he alleges that in June last year Wilson, representing himself to be a mining engineer, reported adversely upon the two mining claims in which Beugle was interested. Shortly after making this report, Beugle alleges Wilson began to work the mines. Beugle seeks a dissolution of the partnership existing between himself and Wilson, and also asks that a receiver be appointed to look after the affairs of the company pending litigation.

MISS LAZARUS WINS
VARSITY READERSHIP

Miss Irene Lazarus, a graduate of Oakland High School of the class of '07, was recently appointed to a readership in the University of California summer school. She was the valedictorian of the local high school and was considered one of the most brilliant students of the graduating class. Miss Lazarus is a student in the university, where she is excelling in English and German, and is extremely popular there. She is very ambitious and great success is forecasted for her future in the literary world.

PROBLEMS

New Discovery by Wizard Will Revolutionize All Street
Traffic

WILL DO AWAY WITH THE GASOLINE MOTOR

Test to Be Made on Street Cars Then Orders Will Be Filled

NEW YORK, June 26.—"The storage battery is now an accomplished fact," said Thomas A. Edison, at Orange, N. J., tonight. Edison was luxuriating in a big wicker chair on the broad veranda of his home in beautiful Llewellyn Park, in the foothills of the Orange mountains. It was in fine humor. There was his manner every indication of pride over a great achievement. For years he has been patiently, hopefully, doggedly working out the problem of the storage battery. Four years ago he thought he had solved it. But he was too cautious to make positive announcement of victory then. Now he has absolutely no doubt about it.

"Why," he said, as if surprised that everybody did not know of his victory, "I have had the storage battery completed for a month or two. There has been no exploitation of it, though, because I am not prepared to meet the rush of orders that is already coming in. I shall give the final test on the cross-town street-car line here in West Orange in the next few days, and then the experimental stage will have been passed."

No Longer Doubt

"After we have had our last test here we shall begin to fill orders for the cross-town and belt lines in New York," he declared.

"I no longer have any doubt of the practical utility of the storage battery as now constructed. Why, Macy's, in New York, equipped one of its delivery wagons recently with a battery we made at our factory, and the wagon ran around Long Island the entire day."

"Our battery solves one of the growing problems in street traffic in New York and other big cities. It will do away completely with the horse there in a little time. Its introduction will eliminate the horse in crowded centers and will reduce the space occupied by the horse and carriage or truck."

"This of itself means a big saving of space. I should say nearly half. In turn, this saving will permit of the multiplication of moving vehicles in a given space. Then, too, the power of a team of truck horses will be doubled at least. This factor depends, of course, upon the size of the battery that is installed. The speed will also be more than doubled. So you see we have something worth while."

Battery's Life 4 Years

Edison explained that the cells of his perfected battery vary in size from 1 1/2 to 18 pounds. A 60-cell battery of 13 pounds is the kind that will carry a motor truck from New York to Philadelphia in less than a third of the time it would take a team of horses to haul the same load.

"I expect soon to see every taxicab run by the new storage battery," he said. "Automobiles, too, and other pleasure vehicles can be equipped with them. I estimate that the life of a battery will not be less than four years. They will simply have to be recharged whenever their electric fluid has been exhausted."

"This process is as simple and easy as pumping a bicycle or automobile full of air. All that will have to be done is to carry the pump along and hitch it to the nearest valve."

"The compressed gas of the gasoline motor will then disappear. Vehicles charged with the new battery will be about as noiseless as it will be practical to make any rapidly moving thing."

Inch-and-a-Half Strip of Pataluna Realty Causes Bitter
Legal Strife

SANTA ROSA, June 26.—An inch-and-a-half strip of land, running 100 feet in the cause of a big legal battle now in progress in the Superior Court here before Judge Henry C. Gessford of Napa, is the subject of a lawsuit between Williams, a wealthy woman of Petaluma, is the plaintiff and S. J. Canavassini, a lawyer, is defendant, and the strip of land in controversy is in Petaluma.

Many of the pioneers who have known the property in dispute for fifty or sixty years have been called as witnesses and surveys have also been called.

INDIANS ARE GATHERING
FOR ANNUAL SUN DANCE

WATONGA, Okla., June 26.—Hundreds of Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians have been gathering here for the past two days preparing for their annual sun dance, which now is in progress. The dance will last probably until July 6, and all the Indians of the reservation will be present to participate in the big celebration of the year.

There will be more than 2000 Indians at the festivities and people from all parts of the country will come to witness the novel ceremonies.

SUFFRAGETTES TO HOLD NATIONAL CONVENTION

CHICAGO, June 26.—Advocates of woman suffrage—national champions of the cause—arrived in Chicago yesterday in large numbers. The delegates came from almost every Eastern and Southern State and also from Canada, to meet here on their way to Seattle, where they are to attend the forty-first annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association. The convention is to open July 1 and will continue a week.

Famous Beauty
Of Quaker City
To Wed Artist

Mrs. Elaine Bohlen.

NEW YORK, June 26.—Mrs. Elaine Bohlen, it is authoritatively reported, will marry Julian Story, the artist. It is said the wedding will take place some time soon in London.

Mrs. Bohlen recently obtained a divorce from her husband, Dr. Murray Bohlen, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. It is understood that the grounds for the suit were in the nature of mutual incompatibility, but the exact legal wording of the petition is not generally known.

Mrs. Bohlen, who is the daughter of Victor Sartori, formerly consul at Leghorn, is a strikingly handsome woman of the dark type and as clever as she is beautiful. Her mother was an English woman. She and Mr. Bohlen were married thirteen years ago, and until recently lived at Ingleside, a beautiful home on the Bethlehem pike, Chestnut Hill. They have no children.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Initiative to an extensive plan to replace Japanese laborers on the Hawaiian plantations, sixty-three Porto Ricans were shipped to Honolulu on the steamer Albatross, which sailed today. The shipment of strike-breakers to the plantations, although insignificant in numbers, was the beginning, it is believed by some familiar with conditions there, of what may be serious social and industrial complications on the islands, where the Japanese outnumber the people of any other nationality.

Japs Lead in Numbers

According to the last authentic estimate of the population of the Hawaiian Islands, out of a total of 150,000 inhabitants, 65,000 were Japanese, which was much in excess of the native population. R. P. Spaulding, son of one of the wealthiest plantations on the islands, was also a passenger on the Albatross, and although he would not outline his plans, he let it be known that his trip to Honolulu was to give his aid in settling the strike troubles there.

To Wipe Out Disturbers

One of the officers of the Albatross, who has been sailing between Honolulu and San Francisco for years and is acquainted with all the plantation owners, stated today that he had received information to the effect that Porto Ricans and others are to be shipped to the islands as rapidly as they can be secured, and that it is the plan of the plantation owners to eventually do away with Japanese labor altogether.

Spectacular Fire Visits the "Great White Way" of

CAUSED BY SPARKS
FROM ELECTRIC WIRES

Efficient Work of Firemen
Saves Valuable Property
From Total Destruction

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The crowds of Saturday night sightseers were treated to a spectacular fire in the neighborhood of Fillmore street and almost directly opposite the Alcazar Theater, at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Three alarms were turned in by box 214, and the blaze, which could be seen from some distance, was thought by many to be either the Auditorium dance hall or one of the theaters in the neighborhood.

Just how the fire originated is not known for certain, but it is believed that crossed wires started a spark among some shavings in the flat of L. C. Coleman, a capitalist, at 2155 Sutter street. Coleman is at present spending a vacation with his family at Medford, Ore., and his nephew states that he believed spontaneous combustion was responsible for the blaze.

The fire spread rapidly and soon the roofs of the entire row of flats, which are owned by the A. Walterstein estate, were on fire.

Firemen Get Control

Chief Shaughnessy was soon on the scene and directed the work of the fire-fighters. The three alarms brought twelve engines, three trucks and a battery to the scene of the fire, and after a stubborn fight it was subdued with a loss of approximately $10,000.

The other flats concerned were those of Dr. H. A. Frederick, 2152 Sutter street; Miss Ida E. Squires, 2150; William Smith, 2148; James Stanton, 2148; and Miss E. Littlefield, a schoolteacher, 2170.

Mr. A. Muller, the aged mother of E. Muller of 2156 Sutter street, was carried from a bed of sickness by Policeman Wood, who forced the front door and rescued her.

The police had difficulty in controlling the crowd that rushed to the scene from every direction, and it was considered dangerous for pedestrians in the block in which the fire occurred because of the mass of power wires concentrated in the region of the burning building. The attention of Fire Marshal Tove was called to this fact and he stated that he would make an investigation.

Miss Marie Bush—Spending
Honeymoon in South

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—A social event of more than usual prominence to Los Angeles society was the marriage of Albert G. Gage, son of former Governor Henry T. Gage, to Miss Marie Mcintosh Bush of Mobile, Ala., in that city, June 19. The elaborate wedding and reception which followed was one of the marked events of the season in the southern city. The bride and bridegroom arrived in Los Angeles today.

For the present Mr. and Mrs. Gage are making their residence at the Gage ranch. A number of charming social events are being planned for the entertainment of the young couple by their friends.

WAGON STRUCK BY CAR;
TEAMSTER BADLY HURT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—While driving along Howard street without a near light, shortly after 8 o'clock tonight, William Tindin, a teamster of 3224 Seventeenth street, was pitched from his wagon in a collision with a street car at the intersection of Seventeenth street. He was taken in an ambulance to the Mission Emergency Hospital and treated for an abrasion and contusion of the right knee, severe bruises of the left leg and probable internal injuries. The motorman in the car failed to see the wagon until he was almost upon it and was unable to avoid the accident.

WHITE RATS THREATEN STRIKE OF 4000 ACTORS

CHICAGO, June 26.—A strike of more than 4000 actors playing on the American stage was threatened by Harry Mumford, secretary of the board of directors of the White Rats, at a large mass meeting held after midnight in the Coliseum theater. The trouble, according to a number of speakers who addressed the audience, is with the managers, who are not giving the actors a fair deal. It was declared that the actors have not been receiving a "square deal" and that conditions did not change in the near future, a "walkout" of the entire organization of White Rats would take place.

What Congress
Did Yesterday

WASHINGTON, June 26.—What Congress did today:

In the Senate: Consideration of dutiable and free lists completed with exception of two or three schedules. Corporation tax and income tax to be taken up Monday.

Agricultural implements and lumber kept on the dutiable list to be changed to free list.

Senator Jeff Davis attacked Senator Aldrich, the tariff bill, trusts and monopolies.

There was no session of the House.

Secretary Wilson
Quits the Cabinet
After Long Term

Secretary James Wilson.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—James Wilson of Iowa, secretary of agriculture, who will retire from office in December, according to reliable information, holds the record for length of cabinet service. Charles Frederick Scott, representative in Congress from the Second District of Kansas, has been asked to succeed him. He is chairman of the house committee on agriculture.

Scott is one of the few newspaper men in Congress and is 47 years old. He is editor and one of the proprietors of the Iola (Kan.) Register. He is familiar with Washington for he was at one time a Washington newspaper correspondent. He is a graduate of the University of Kansas. Directly after his graduation he was thrown on his own resources and he went West, spending a year and a half in Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona, "working at whatever his hand found to do," as he says. He has been for many years agent of the State University, and was for four years a member of the State Senate.

NEGRO, KNOWN TO

Robert C. Turner, Who Served Hearst Family 28 Years,
Dies of Bright's Disease

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Robert C. Turner, a negro widely known among public men of the last generation, died at Washington, D. C., and throughout California, was buried at Woodlawn Cemetery June 18, having succumbed at the age of 53 to Bright's disease. He was years in the service of the Hearst family. He attended the late Senator George Hearst at Washington, and in later years accompanied Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst and her friends on visits to the United States, Mexico, Europe and Egypt.

Born at Norfolk, Va., in 1857, Turner came to California while in his teens and found employment at the Palace Hotel when the famous old hostelry was sheltering guests from all parts of the world. There he attracted the attention of Mr. Brown, who was connected prominently with the Southern Pacific Railroad in its earliest history, and entered his private service. In 1881 he was engaged as valet to Senator George Hearst, since whose death he was a faithful servant to Mrs. Hearst. He rose to the place of butler, and he held up to the time of his death, though the meantime he had married and had a son, the fact that he was by no means a poor man and was well known to people of his own race.

BURNS' SLEUTH
USES REVOLVER

Arrested and Though Well Known Pleads in Court Under Assumed Name

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Despite the fact that he shot up a roadhouse and terrorized the entire neighborhood, a Burns sleuth and brother of Jack Burns, one of Burns' bodyguards, was allowed to appear in court under an assumed name and pleaded guilty to the murder of a man recognized by many in the court room. Errors were also made to hush up the affair by the prosecuting attorney.

Runs Amuck With Gun

McCarthy was visiting a roadhouse just beyond the Mission district yesterday morning and is said to have imbibed too freely of the liquid refreshments that he became so excited that he suddenly jumped up, and with a wild whoop started shooting recklessly with a large revolver.

He was arrested by a mounted police officer, Charles P. Robinson, at 3 o'clock, and taken to the Mission police station, but he was not booked. He was immediately sent to the central police station and there he was allowed to be booked under the name of Daniel Ryan.

Attempts to Confess His Crime, But is Overcome
With Fright

MODESTO, Cal., June 6.—Testimony at the coroner's inquest which was held over the body of murdered Theodore Hopkins, aged six, today tended to show that Frank, the twelve-year-old brother and slayer, was subject to insane and melancholy periods, and it is believed to foreshadow a line of defense that will be pursued in the subsequent trial. The coroner's inquest resulted in the following verdict, which was rendered at this afternoon:

"We, the Coroner's jury, find in the case of Theodore Hopkins that said deceased Theodore Hopkins came to his death from gunshot wound by his brother, Frank Henry Hopkins, with intent to kill."

Frank, the youthful slayer, was placed on the stand, but became confused and could say nothing.

Fright Overcomes Him

Frank informed his father and mother before entering the Coroner's office that he intended to tell everything. When questioned by District Attorney Maddux before the jury came on the stand, he was apparently seized with stage fright and forgot everything he intended to say. He could not even tell his name or spell it when asked to do so by the District Attorney.

Among the witnesses examined was George Pippenger, who first discovered the corpse buried behind the hopper. He testified that he heard Frank bark like a dog for five minutes one time when driving a cow. This is believed by many to be a complete refutation made by the father on the stand that the boy had been bitten by a mad dog when three years old and never fully recovered. The father said the boy of often barked at the mouth when angered. Criminalists, who have examined the boy, find him normal in all respects, with the exception that he will never look a person squarely in the eye.

Dr. W. F. Green, dentist of this city and ardent student of criminology, made plaster casts of boy's jaws and teeth, finding them normal and practically perfect. This upsets the theory of Dr. Henry J. Jalusz, the eminent Pittsburg dentist, who attributes criminal tendencies to bad conditions or malformations of teeth.

Victim is Buried

The body of the murdered boy Theodore was laid at rest in Citizen Cemetery in this city today. No time has been set for the preliminary examination of Frank, a 12-year-old murderer. District Attorney Maddux says a body will be filed against him and he will be proceeded against just like any other murderer. He says there is nothing on the statute books to the effect that a boy could be hanged. The law in effect on this point is any one who knows right from wrong accountable under its provisions. "If this boy is found to be in full possession of his faculties and is old enough to know right from wrong," says District Attorney Maddux, "he can be tried on the murder charge and dealt with accordingly." The case has attracted countrywide interest, and will doubtless come up for trial in the Superior Court in a few days.

CARPENTERS AID
JULY CELEBRATION

Will Make Formal Application
For Admittance to Chamber of Commerce

ALAMEDA, June 26.—At a meeting of the Carpenters' Union, held last evening, matters pertaining to the advancement of the city were discussed. It was clearly demonstrated that the increasing efforts of the city are being felt in the pockets of the people. A spirit of progression among the members manifested itself when they decided, without solicitation, the sum of $10 toward the Fourth of July celebration. If requested additional assistance will be given.

At the next meeting, to be held July 2, the question of making formal application for membership to the Chamber of Commerce will be taken up, and a representative selected. This body is a regular quarterly meeting, the customary banquet will be served and visiting members will be welcomed.

BONE OF A LAMB
GRAFTED ON BROKEN LEG OF A HUMAN

CHICAGO, June 26.—Grifting of a bone of a lamb into the right leg of a broken leg of a human being has been reported as a successful operation, said to be the first of its kind in America.

Townsend, who is an elevator operator, was reported as "getting along well" with all attempts of progression towards recovery. He was suffering from a compound fracture of the leg when taken to the hospital. After three months of operation, the grafting operation was decided upon. The patient's leg is still in a cast.

Forced Big Sugar Refinery to Give Up Some $2,000,000

GEO. H. EARLE JR.

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—George H. Earle Jr., whose most recent achievement in the legal field where he has been accorded rather more than his share of publicity, is the settlement with the "Sugar Trust" of a suit brought by him under the Sherman act, under which the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company will recover from the trust about $2,000,000.

Earle won the suit in his usual spectacular manner and almost single-handed. He forced a settlement with the trust, which threw up its hands on the testimony that Roosevelt's Attorney-General Bonaparte turned down.

Earle was born in Philadelphia July 26, 1855, and entered Harvard University with the class of 1872.

Two years later his health failed and after a trip in the mountains he entered the law office of Earle & White, which his grandfather had founded. His first work as a financier was reorganizing the Pennsylvania Warehousing and Safe Deposit Company, of which he became president.

He was receiver for the Chestnut Street National Bank and paid the depositors dollar for dollar. In 1903 the real estate trust company closed its doors. Earle was made receiver, opened the doors and is now president of the company. On November 9, 1908, he resigned a directorship in the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company which he had held about a year.

COL. JAMES HASKELL, POLITICIAN, IS DEAD

COLUMBIA, S. C., June 26.—Colonel James Haskell, soldier, planter, legislator and financier, grandson of Langdon Cheves and son-in-law of Wade Hampton, died here today. He suffered a stroke of apoplexy last Friday. Colonel Haskell and his brother were for years the chief figures in the State politically.

BABIES BENEFIT BY NEW SKIN DISCOVERY

Stops Itching Immediately, Soothes and Comforts the Little Ones.
A demonstration of the efficacy and entire harmlessness of poslain, the new skin discovery, is afforded when it is applied to the tender skin of infants who are tortured with rashes, chafings, sores and crusted humors and other skin aggravations. Its effect is soothing, the itching stops, the oozing skin heals and is quickly restored to normal condition. In the various forms of skin troubles in both infants and adults, poslain produces beneficial results from the first application. Eczema, acne, herpes, rash, teller, etc., yield readily to its remarkable curative properties. Occasional applications will quickly banish pimples, blotches and complexion blemishes and will relieve and cure itching feet, scaly scalp, humors, etc.

ROBBED THE MAN WHO HELPED HIM

Plight in Pittsburg of Curtis Stewart, Who Says He's a Californian

PITTSBURG, June 26.—Curtis Stewart, 25 years old, by his own acknowledgment the son of one of the best known and wealthiest families of California, yesterday was sent to the county jail here for thirty days after pleading guilty to larceny, consisting of the theft of a revolver, gold watch and a small amount of money from the home of F. Sidney Nisbet of Clareton.

Although Stewart refuses to tell the exact residence of his people, his general appearance indicates that he is telling the truth when he declares he comes from a refined family. According to his story he left San Francisco about nine months ago, went to Portland, from where he worked his way around the Horn, recently landing in New York, stranded. He was returning West overland, arriving in Pittsburg without funds, and applied for and obtained a position in the Nisbet home. He attributes his downfall to over-indulgence in liquor. Unless his people come forward and pay the cost of the prosecution Stewart will have to remain an extra thirty days in jail.

VAUDEVILLE MANAGERS FORM GREAT COMBINE

NEW YORK, June 26.—Announcement was made yesterday that Walter Gibbons and Thomas Barnard, directors of thirty-six European vaudeville theaters; Harry Rickards, a wealthy Australian amusement man, and William Morris, who controls a number of vaudeville theaters in this country, rounding in cooperation to the Keith-Flicker-Williams-Hammerstein circuit, are about to combine, giving them the booking privileges of a chain of houses extending from New York to San Francisco, and swinging around to Great Britain, Paris, Brussels and Australia. The object of the merger is said to be to combine with actors for seasons lasting two years without "lay off," and with the same salary in all countries.

WHO HIT HIM? I DID, SAYS FAY

Furthermore, Says He Told Sullivan He Would Knock Off His Block

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Nearly everyone who moves about in San Francisco, except Frank J. Sullivan and the local daily newspapers, knew who struck the brother-in-law of James D. Phelan and candidate on the Union Labor side for Mayor within a very short time after the incident occurred.

Sullivan himself talked of "thugs" and a "brick," but Stanley Fay, a brother of Charles Fay, once the private secretary of Phelan, made no attempt to conceal the fact that he was the thumper of the handsome Francis. He represents the story of Sullivan that the latter was assailed from behind by a stranger and declared that they met face to face and discussed their differences for fully ten minutes before the physical assault took place.

Gave Him Notice

Fay objected to some remarks Sullivan had made in a speech about the former's brother Charles. According to Stanley he also filed due notice with Sullivan that he was going to "knock his block off" before the festive festivities began.

Of the three Fay brothers, Philip and Stanley are the scrappers. Charles is made of less stern stuff and readily filled the part of private secretary to Jimmy Phelan. Stanley and Philip are both credited with "lightning fists" and "punishing rights." Stanley is a much smaller man than Sullivan, and this fact may have contributed to the failure of the millionaire to recognize him, or at least make public the fact that Stanley was his assailant.

Head Hits Walk

In the melee Sullivan went to the sidewalk and sustained a scalp cut at the back of his head. Hence the theory of the assault from the rear and the story of the brick.

The Fays are still belligerent, even Charles being willing to assume the responsibility of the recent scrap, and more encounters are probable. While Stanley Fay is not possessed of that fatal gift of beauty that has proven such a political handicap to Sullivan, he evidently has the punch that goes with a countenance that would give pause to a blue ribbon Boston bull terrier.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY OUT TO AID HENEY

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the League of Justice, one of the various political side-shows with which this city has been infested during the past two years, has developed a new occupation. The main purpose of the organization, the sending of people to jail without a fair trial, not having met with a marked success, the ladies are now devoting their energies to collecting money to defray Henev's expenses in his campaign for district attorney.

Apparently these matrons and austere ladies do not think the large fees paid Henev by the Federal government and Rudolph Spreckels were sufficient to warrant the special prosecutor paying his own expenses, so they are making up a purse for him.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL WILL RETURN TO OLD HOME

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—In September the sisters and children of the St. Francis Technical School will return to their old home at Geary and Gough streets. Soon after the fire Sister Louise, executive head of the school, leased the building to the relief committee and the Native Sons as their headquarters, and the sisters and children moved to the former residence of Frank J. Sullivan in Oak street. Sister Louise conceived the plan of tearing down the old building when the relief committee moved out and erecting a substantial building. Although there was a financial stringency at the time, Sister Louise was undaunted and now the building is nearly completed. The sisters and children, as has been the custom for years, will leave in a few days for the country, where they will camp for six weeks or two months. The little girls always look forward to their vacation and the change to the open air and country scenes lends both the children and the sisters.

HYLAND BEATS CROSS IN FORTY-ONE ROUNDS

WONDERFUL ENDURANCE OF HYLAND WEARS CROSS OUT

By EDDIE SMITH.

ALL the contest yesterday been most any other athletic event the affair would go down in history as a record-breaker. As it was simply a boxing contest, however, the record will simply read that Dick Hyland won from Leach Cross in the forty-first round by a knock-out. Simple as it may sound and though the fighters will never get any credit for establishing a new record, it took the greatest amount of grit to stick to their work and the pace they set and the grueling each took makes the gameness of Marathon runners and the like fade away into insignificance. The battle was one in which a sturdy little son of the soil was mated against a wiry youth whose ancestors, and especially his parents, no doubt taboored manual labor many years before his birth. The son of the soil, "Fighting Dick" Hyland, had as his chief asset an indomitable grit and an almost everlasting endurance, his boxing from a scientific standpoint being badly over-matched. He was shorter than his opponent in the matter of height and reach, and during the early rounds was sadly outboxed.

Hyland Has Grit

"Fighting Dick," and no name ever suited a man better, had that one asset, grit, however, and although it took some time to assert itself, in the end it conquered. Cross had as his chief asset a cultivated cleverness, a lightning-like punch and his brain worked with greater activity. Leach is not the natural fighter, though, and his cultivated fighting spirit deserted him when the face of a severe beating and kept trying to land a punch, being miserably satisfied if he could land but one to the other fellow's two. It took Hyland forty-one of the toughest kind of rounds to finally conquer that cultivated fighting power of the New Yorker, but although it came slowly, it came surely, and the victory was all the sweeter owing to the fact that it was well earned. The contest as the excitement which has been fought in San Francisco for about eighteen or twenty years and it tops the much-talked-of Tom Stanley-Ketchel battle in the same arena by nine rounds and falls short of the famous Gans-Nelson championship battle at Goldfield by one round. The day was anything but an ideal one for an open-air athletic event, as the fog hung heavily over the ring and a cold southwest wind was blowing.

Possessed Interest of Marathon Race

As to whether or not the contest was highly interesting, it might be said that from a standpoint of sensationalism it was a failure, for during the early rounds, when both men were fresh, there was nothing sensational about the affair, and many became convinced that Cross would eventually show that he was a streak that is so often talked of. From an interest point of view the battle took on the excitement which has been fought in San Francisco for about eighteen or twenty years and it tops the much-talked-of Tom Stanley-Ketchel battle in the same arena by nine rounds and falls short of the famous Gans-Nelson championship battle at Goldfield by one round. The day was anything but an ideal one for an open-air athletic event, as the fog hung heavily over the ring and a cold southwest wind was blowing.

One of the best proofs that this interest held the fans was the fact that although it grew later during the last rounds not a man left the building until the last round had been fought and this means much as proof of the interest the spectators had in the ultimate result. After Billy Jordan had introduced the contestants and they had posed for their pictures the men returned to their corners, and when the bell rang for the first start both hesitated about taking the initiative in the matter of pace.

Cross Delivers Punishment

Their start could very easily be likened to that of any exhibition wherein the contestants realized that a long grueling test was before them, and as one looks back at that start it almost seems as though each had a premonition of the long route they were to travel. Hyland, with his lips closed tightly together and his teeth clenched, right up to Cross and tried to close in from the start. Cross, who had met the little fellow in the corner of a severe beating immediately shot out his left hand and Hyland ran smack into it, the force pushing Dick's head backwards. Hyland reached up with his right and pulled the unwelcome hand down and Cross cleverly stepped away without getting hit. In this manner the contest proceeded for some few rounds, Hyland always "boring in" but Cross delivered the greatest of his blows in the seventh round, he had backed Hyland with the idea that he would land a severe blow to the head and tear into the New Yorker's forehead, but for Dick plodded on in the most patient manner and with great fortitude stuck to the task of wearing the other fellow down with his superior strength.

Cross Not Anxious to Mix Matters

Cross displayed no desire to mix things and very early in the game it was apparent that he had serious doubts as to his ability to go the route. The visitor jabbed and hooked, ripped and crossed with both left and right swings, and in doing so indicated that he was not a puncher, but wherever he shifted to inside the roped square he always found that game little Cornishman after him like a shadow, and there can be no denying the fact that this had much effect on the nerve of Cross during the early rounds. When Hyland crowded the dentist-pugilist the hardest the latter would turn sideways and back away ready to strike as the aggressive little fellow came in. Any number of times Hyland was shaken up a few times but not badly and it was apparent that Cross was not the possessor of a knockout punch. By the time the tenth round had been fought it was easy to see that Cross had to jab Hyland into submission and that Hyland had only the chance of wearing his opponent out. Cross held tightly to his man in the clinches and in this manner greatly handicapped Hyland, whose only chance was the landing of blows at short range.

Cross Fights at Long Range

Referee Billy Roache was forced time and again to pull the fighters apart, and each time he did so Cross quickly backed away and tried to box at long range. By the time that the tenth round was reached half of the people in the house were of the opinion that Cross would win, but it was proven beyond any doubt that he would never do as an opponent for Nelson. After the tenth Leach seemed to fear the fighting Cornishman more than over and he backed away more when he was being forced. In fact, it seemed as if the only chance Hyland had to land a punch was to force the dentist to the ropes and there land his punishment before the clever Hebrew could tie him up in a clinch.

Twelfth Round is Turning Point

Round twelve seemed the turning point of the battle, for when Cross left his corner he seemed desirous of finishing the job. He displayed more fighting spirit than he had previously and for a time he planted his punches on his man at will. Hyland kept coming just the same and near the end of the round Cross weakened and Hyland shot over his left to the head and down went Cross to his knees. He started to get up without taking the count but again slipped back to the floor for the time allowed him, which Roache would not permit, claiming that he had gone down the second time without being hit, which was right. From then on Cross had little chance for victory, and at times he gave every evidence of wanting to stop, and not ten men in the house could be found who would not have said the New Yorker was about to quit.

One round was a repetition of the other from then on, for although at times Cross made rather sensational sprints, it seemed as if Hyland would wear him out much quicker than he did. Cross at times made believe he was worse off than he was, in the hope that Hyland would fight himself out in an effort to stop him, but the plodding little Cornishman kept at his work relentlessly, without any more ruses, and when Cross backed to the ropes and covered up with his arms wrapped about his face and body, Hyland patiently waited for the openings before wasting his punches.

Time after time Cross was either put to the floor with a punch or pushed to the floor after backing to the ropes, but never would he stay down, and at the present he would smile and wave to his seconds every time he went down. During the last five rounds it was apparent that Cross was trying to stick the limit and probably win with a knock-out punch. Both men were so tired, and weak that they could hardly hold a balance, and even though Cross was very weak, it looked as if Hyland had also shot his bolt.

Cross' Final Collapse

With his manager's, Jack Perkins, smiling face as an encouragement, and Willie Britt, who had gone to the corner to help earlier in the contest, shouting words of encouragement, however, Hyland kept at the job and Cross was given an awful beating. All the remarks as to the lack of courage that the Easterner might have by this time dispensed with, for he had put up as wonderfully game a battle as has been witnessed here in years and he was much admired for his staying qualities. The end had to come, however, and in the forty-first round he finally collapsed after having been to the floor several times in the last five rounds and had proven the most rugged of the pair and victory was his. Hyland's uphill fight made during the early rounds. It was a great battle, and the best man truly won. It was a fair test and Hyland must be considered the best of the two at the long distance game.

Ralph Rose Breaks Two Records at Healdsburg

HEALDSBURG, June 26.—Before an immense crowd of visitors at the Healdsburg Water Carnival, Ralph Rose, the champion shot-putter of the world, today broke two world records. Rose, with the 16-pound shot, bested his former record of 49 feet 8 1/2 inches to 50 feet 4 inches, and also broke Flanagan's record of 174 feet 11 inches to 178 feet 4 inches. Although there were no representatives of the A. A. U. at these events, they probably will not stand, but nevertheless he broke these records.

Remarkable Tennis Tourney in South

LOS ANGELES, June 26.—The third annual tennis tournament of the Venice Country Club is now a matter of history, as is also the fact that the hundreds of spectators at the meet witnessed one of the most remarkable games of doubles ever played in a tennis tournament on the Coast. It was the final match between McDougall and Duncan on one side and Bell and Tom Bundy on the other, for the championship of the tournament. This first set took thirty-four games to decide and McDougall and Duncan finally won by the score of 16-18. Duncan and McDougall were defeated in the end, however, Bell and Bundy taking the next two sets, 7-5, 7-5.

Tom Bundy, the defender of the Montgomery cup, surprised the audience by defeating Maurice McDougall in the challenge round by the score of 6-2, 6-4, 6-3, 7-5.

Milwaukee Boy Mayor Witnesses Long Fight

Ex-Mayor Sherburn M. Becker of Milwaukee, known the country over as the Boy Mayor of Milwaukee, sat at the ring side in company with Billy Papke yesterday and enjoyed the contest between Hyland and Cross. It was the first time Becker had witnessed a contest of more than 10 rounds and he announced that he was proud of the fact that he had seen the long battle. The gentleman from "suds town" seemed greatly interested in the condition of the two men after the long hard-fought battle and when he had examined both men and found that they were both no worse off than men who had gone through any kind of a hard athletic struggle he expressed himself very strongly for the game and said that he knew of no other sport so fascinating. Mr. Becker advocated ten-round boxing when he was mayor of Milwaukee and it was under his administration that a referee of well known ability was hired from the city for an alleged unfair ruling. Becker will remain with us until after the Papke-Ketchel fight.

Motorcyclists Join in San Jose Hill Climb

Although not a regular club run, the San Francisco and Oakland motorcyclists will make the trip to San Jose today to witness the hill climb which is to be held under the auspices of the San Jose Motorcycle Club at the Garden City. Some of the new seven-horsepower machines will be in this contest, and some fast times are expected. Five of the Oakland motorcyclists will shortly leave on their machines for the exposition at Seattle, going through the northern part of this State and Oregon. After reaching Seattle they will return on the steamers from that city.

McVey Gets Decision Over Barry on Foul

PARRIS, June 26.—Sam McVey got the decision over Jim Barry of Chicago in the fifteenth round on a foul.

Miss Hotchkiss Now U. S. Tennis Champion

PHILADELPHIA, June 26.—Miss Hazel Hotchkiss of California today won the women's lawn tennis championship of the United States on the courts of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, defeating Mrs. Barger-Wallace of New York, who won the championship last year. The scores were 6-0, 6-1.

The event was the principal match in the national tournament, being held on the grounds of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. The victory was a hollow one, last year's champion being at no time able to play the Western girl. In fact, Mrs. Barger-Wallace gave her opponent less trouble than did either Miss Louise Hammond of New York or Miss Edith Rösch of Boston.

Mrs. Barger-Wallace showed fine sportsmanship in standing up to what was practically a hopeless task from the start. Not in the best practice herself she tackled an opponent who outclassed her rather than let the title go by default.

She was only six points in the first set. In the second Mrs. Barger-Wallace made some resistance, she also made some effort in the third and fourth games, the last of which she won after she had been called four times. Miss Hotchkiss playing was strong throughout, her volleying being invincible. She had apparently no difficulty in getting Mrs. Barger-Wallace out of position and then making a kill.

Women's doubles, semi-final round—Miss Hotchkiss and Miss Rottch beat Mrs. W. H. Pouch and Miss Claire Johnson—6-2, 6-2.

Harvard Oarsmen Beat Yale Easily

GALE'S FERRY, Conn., June 26.—Harvard's oarsmen in the curtain-raiser of the Thames regatta tonight, defeating the Elm second varsity four by a length and a half in the time of five minutes 32 1/2 seconds. Yale's time was five minutes 38 seconds. Most of the enthusiasm of the race was furnished by the members of both rowing squads, who occupied the Harvard launches which followed the crews.

Both fours slipped badly but none of the oarsmen in either fell from exhaustion.

The race was the first contest of the second varsity four over rowed in regatta week. The innovation will possibly be permanent.

Third race, mile and one-sixteenth—Nor-bitt, 4 to 1; won; Lad of Langdon, 8 to 1; second; Lord Stanhope, 9 to 1, third, Time 1:52.

Fourth race, mile and one-eighth—Nor-bitt, 4 to 1; won; Lad of Langdon, 8 to 1; second; Lord Stanhope, 9 to 1, third, Time 1:52.

Motorcyclists Join in San Jose Hill Climb

Although not a regular club run, the San Francisco and Oakland motorcyclists will make the trip to San Jose today to witness the hill climb which is to be held under the auspices of the San Jose Motorcycle Club at the Garden City. Some of the new seven-horsepower machines will be in this contest, and some fast times are expected. Five of the Oakland motorcyclists will shortly leave on their machines for the exposition at Seattle, going through the northern part of this State and Oregon. After reaching Seattle they will return on the steamers from that city.

MILK BOTTLES CUT OUTSLOT MACHINES

Crusade to Pure Food
For Babies

Exit slot machines. Enter milk bottles. San Francisco's poor babies are playing in luck at last. When the slot machines go out at the stroke of midnight Wednesday their milk bottles come in. July 1st means first aid to the city's hungriest, tiniest dwellers.

On July's first day thirty of San Francisco's leading cigar stores will replace the late lamented machines for empty bottles, labeled:

"Save the babies."

A poster attached to each glass receptacle will explain that the women of the Collegiate Alumnae, California branch, have undertaken to supply every needy infant in this city and county with a quart daily, for one year, of certified milk, nature's perfect food. Instead of gambling for tobacco gains the cigar store patron may drop his coins into a bottle and know that he has bought pure food for a little child's half starved body.

Save the Kids

Six milk dealers carrying the certified article have donated to the alumnae committee one quart a day for a year. This means that six infants will take a new lease of life.

Two thousand coin cards were sent out last week asking for contributions. Within five days Dr. Adelaide Brown, treasurer, had received $212.25. The largest sum donated was $20. Hundreds who couldn't afford to send gold pieces or greenbacks sent half dollars. The committee wants to start work with at least $500. Infants now being supplied with three dollars a month milk by the Associated Charities will be furnished the $4.50 certified quality, the alumnae paying the monthly difference of $1.50 from its $300 starting fund.

The credit of being first to subscribe to the pure milk fund belongs to a 10-year-old San Francisco lad, Lloyd Levy, who wrote this letter from his home, 354 Ashbury street, to Dr. Brown:

"I enclose is $1 from my savings bank to help along the good work for the dear little tots."

Mrs. Adolphus Graupner, 2060 Jackson street, is chairman of the alumnae committee. Dr. Brown, treasurer, lives at 2520 Sacramento street. Mrs. Ernest J. Mott, 412 Ashbury street, is secretary.

MANILA FAVORED AS NAVAL BASE

General Board at Washington Will Submit Its Finding to the President

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Following full discussion by the general board of the navy of the question of the establishment of a permanent naval base in the Philippines, Secretary Meyer soon will take up the matter with President Taft for final decision.

The permanent location, it is believed, rests between Manila and Olongapo, other places like Cavite and Corregidor having practically been eliminated.

Should Manila finally be decided upon, which is regarded as quite probable, it is stated that Olongapo will not be abandoned, but be utilized for such purposes for which it may be best adapted.

YOUNG MEN'S INSTITUTE
TO HAVE OUTING SOON

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Arrangements have been completed for the annual summer outing of Igration Council No. 25, of the Young Men's Institute, at Fernbrook park, Niles canyon, July 25. The committee in charge of the event is as follows: Frank L. Smith (chairman), John P. Duffy, John Conyn, W. F. Miner, William H. Greene, J. P. Heast, William J. Brann, J. P. Powers, Elmer Gallagher, J. J. Sharkey, P. W. Meheran, H. W. Boyle, J. J. Holland and John McCullough.

TRI-CITY CLUB CHANGES DATES

During the Summer Months Meetings Will Be Held on Thursdays

Dr. E. R. Tait presided at the regular meeting of the Tri-City Rotary Club at the Forum Cafe. H. C. Montgomery acted as secretary.

Secretary Stearns of the Chamber of Commerce told enthusiastically of the high regard that Oakland has received in the East, and the number of capitalists and investors who are coming to live in Oakland. He also spoke of the great success promised for the Industrial Banquet on July 1, the tickets for which are going rapidly. Table "B," twenty-six seats reserved for the members of the Rotary Club, have already been filled.

It was ordered that hereafter the meetings of the club be held on Thursdays instead of Fridays, as during the summer months so many members go out of town on Fridays.

On account of the Industrial Banquet of the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, July 1, it was ordered that the meeting of the club will be on July 8, at Key Route Inn. John Aubrey Jones will talk on "Grievances of Realty Business."

Liberator's Son Speaks

Giuseppe Garibaldi, grandson of the famous Italian patriot and liberator, spoke on labor conditions governing work on the canal zone. He also touched on his plans for the foundation and maintenance of a colony for foreigners coming penniless to this country.

It is the purpose of the promoters of the project to buy up a number of large tracts of land in this state for the purpose, until the state funds are made out, no definite statements will be given out.

Short talks were made by the following:

J. D. Waterhouse spoke on the safe method of buying fire-proof and burglar-proof safes. Rev. W. D. Simonds, minister of the Unitarian Church, E. C. Dyer of the Key Route Inn, J. B. Jordan of the Hotel Athens, Kismet Bar, Robert Robertson, Cape Point.

RATTLER SLAIN BY FAIR CAMPER

Unaided and Alone She Kills Serpent in Dead of Night

CAMP GLACIER POINT, Yosemite, June 26.—Miss Eva Yorker is at present receiving the congratulations of her friends on having killed, unaided, a rattler that had in some way gotten into the tent occupied by Miss Yorker and Miss Elsie Wilson. The girls were out in all the tents. Miss Yorker tells, and she, like the rest, was sleeping soundly when she was awakened by a rattling sound, the like of which she had never experienced hearing before, and which she immediately concluded must be due to the presence of a rattler.

The sound was twice repeated before Miss Yorker lighted a candle, and saw at several paces from the bed post, a coiled rattler of no small size. Without so much as making any outcry, or even awakening her companion, Miss Yorker reached for her walking stick, and from her position on the bed directed several telling blows at the reptile. She felt that there were no longer any signs of life. Miss Yorker carried the snake outside the tent. The snake had five rattles and a button.

HEACOCK IS AGAIN A COMMISSIONER

Judge De Haven Re-appoints Popular Official to Important Office

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Judge H. E. Heacock was today reappointed to United States Commissioner by Judge De Haven for a term of four years. The commissioner has served in that position for the past fifteen years and has made a record during that time as a most conscientious official and the most impartial of judges.

He has been called upon to pass upon many important cases and his decisions have been almost universally sustained.

His courteous manners have endeared him to every member of the bar who has practiced in his court, and his many good qualities are appreciated by men of all ranks in life, professional and otherwise.

During his incumbency he has in some way been connected with nearly every important matter brought before the federal courts, and it is seldom that a defeated attorney does not compliment him on his judgments which are generally approved.

Livermore News Notes

LIVERMORE, June 26.—Mr. and Mrs. J. O. McKown and Mr. and Mrs. D. MacDonald will attend the Elks' celebration in Los Angeles the early part of July.

Dr. Henry Jensen has sold his 160-acre ranch on Dry Creek to J. C. Spencer of San Francisco. Dr. Jensen has gone to Rutherford, Napa county, and will leave shortly on a three months' trip through Germany.

Frank Davis has purchased from J. L. Callaghan the old Callaghan place on McLeod street and will improve the property and make it his home.

Mrs. Mary L. Fernor has sold her home place in the Northern Addition to Thomas of San Jose.

W. F. Davis and wife of San Francisco came up this week to spend a couple of months' vacation at their recently purchased mountain ranch, the old Tickell place.

Company I, N. G. C., will hold their first shoot Sunday on their new range, the Nevil place, under the superintendence of Lieutenant Newton Armstrong.

Captain York Chamber Young and Lieutenant-elect Newton Armstrong of Company I successfully passed their examination last Thursday evening before the National Guard examining board at the Hotel Argonaut, San Francisco.

Miss Ivy Galloway of Crockett is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. S. I. Graham.

WAGE EARNERS URGED TO VOTE

Council of San Francisco Has Eye On City Election--
Labor Notes

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The Labor Council has adopted a resolution submitted by Delegate Shuttleworth, urging wage-earners to register and vote at the primary and municipal election in November. A committee of fifteen was appointed to visit the different unions and request a compliance with this resolution. The committee consists of Charles A. Shuttleworth, C. A. Ross, Charles A. McIntire, E. Brown, J. J. McLeod, John O'Connell, B. L. Rosenthal, James A. Wilson, Charles A. Skelton, Andrew J. Gallagher, Charles Schilling, Eugene Perrot, D. C. Currey, W. H. Terry and James Fitzgerald.

Fostering Industry Pays

At the request of the Coopers' Union the home industry committee was instructed to urge brewers and wine makers to purchase home-made barrels. The coopers stated that many Eastern barrels are being bought to the detriment of local mechanics. They suggested that a general effort should be made to promote home manufactures.

In a discussion on the same matter, Delegate Manser told of the good work accomplished in fostering local manufacture in the new industry. He said that, through the efforts of the committee and city officials, a contract for 500,000 barrels for the military water system has been awarded to a local rolling mill, thereby benefiting members of the Housemiths' Union, affiliated with the Building Trades Council. He asked that this body be invited to co-operate and promote home industries.

Delegates Guinness and Casey also spoke of the good that could be done in fostering home manufactures. It was decided to ask the Building Trades Council to appoint a committee to co-operate in the movement.

Orphanage Plan Presented

H. B. Andrews and B. McMillan, of the Central Labor Council of Alameda county, addressed the meeting, explaining the purposes of the Union Men's Orphanage of Alameda county and urging the delegates to be present to assist in buying land at San Lorenzo and erecting cottages thereon. They asked that the members of the council endorse the project and purchase a share of stock each. A motion to endorse was referred to the executive committee, as likewise a motion that the council donate $100 to assist the proposition.

A communication was received from Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor stating that steps have been taken to have the local Bundry Women's Union affiliate with the local council.

Union Officers Elected

Upholsterers' Union No. 28 has elected B. B. Oestlund delegate to the convention of the international union to be held at Buffalo, N. Y. in July. Officers were elected for the ensuing term as follows:

President, S. Engelberg; vice president, R. T. Barry; financial secretary, J. H. Peacock; recording secretary, M. Boepfle; treasurer, A. J. Estrella; secretary, J. Lynch; executive committee, L. Harris, A. Jackson and J. Morris; trustees, M. Davis; delegates to Labor Council, B. B. Rosenthal, M. Kruger, A. J. Estrella; business agent, C. C. Rosenthal; delegates Asiatic Exclusion League, T. Ehlers, C. Melskow and P. Hauck.

Gasworkers' Union No. 284 has elected the following officers:

President, D. Cameron; vice president, J. H. Peacock; recording secretary, A. F. Colman; financial secretary, Philip Knell; treasurer, Peter V. Kearns; guide, George T. Graham; guardian, Charles Hewthorne; business agent, George W. Bell; executive board, C. W. Assmusen, George W. Bell, John J. Breslin, Robert C. Conner, J. J. Galt, J. J. Sasso, E. English, B. Griffith, William Henry and William Steele; delegates Labor Council, George W. Bell, John J. Breslin, Daniel Cameron, Philip Knell and Edward Moran; delegates to Asiatic Exclusion League, P. V. Kearns and Philip Knell.

Butchers' Picnic

Journeymen Butchers' Union No. 1 will hold its eighth annual reunion and picnic tomorrow at Fairfax Park. Martin Johnson, president of the union, has a fine programme of sports and games, including a tug-of-war between teams composed of the giants of the union. Prizes will be awarded to winners of the races and games, and gate prizes will be given to the holders of lucky tickets.

The executive board of the State Building Trades Council will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at its headquarters in the Metropolitan Bank Building, Market and New Montgomery streets, when the San Jose lockout and other matters of importance to building artisans will be considered. A number of appeals from decisions in jurisdictional controversies will be acted on. The board probably will be in session three days.

FATHER KIDNAPED CHILD, SAYS WIFE

17-Year-Old Mother of Two Children Files Charges Against Spouse

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Seventeen-year-old Mable Tuck, child wife of Jules Tuck and mother of two children, who filed suit for divorce in March through her mother and legal guardian, Louise Pedenboy, charged in an affidavit filed today that her husband had kidnapped her 2-year-old child. Acting upon the charges made in the affidavit, Superior Judge Morgan ordered that Jules Tuck, the father, appear in court in ten days and inform his wife as to the whereabouts of the little girl.

On June 24, the young wife alleges, her husband called at the home of Mrs. E. Pina, 1243 Union street, and under the pretext that he wanted to buy the child clothing, took her from the house. He has never returned the child.

LAUNDRYMEN WAGING WAR AGAINST ASIATIC LABOR

At a meeting of the Laundry Workers' Union, Alameda Local No. 55, Wednesday night in Foresters' Hall, the members discussed means of combating the inroads in the number of Oriental laundry workers in this section.

Addresses were made by Organizer Walsh, International President Ward, President Overshiner, Vice President Metzger, and M. C. Carlin, secretary of Local 24, San Francisco.

RESTORED CHURCH HAS MANY GIFTS

St. Mary's of San Francisco Is Rich in Interior Donations

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The sermon at the 11 o'clock mass at St. Mary's Church (Faunist) Sunday morning will be made by the Rev. H. H. Wyman, C. S. P. In the evening the Rev. Oliver A. Welsh, C. S. P., will be heard at 7:45 o'clock.

Among the gifts to the restored St. Mary's Church was the high altar of statuary marble, the presentation being made by Mrs. Margaret Irvine in memory of her son, Callahan Byrnes.

"The Immaculate Conception," a reproduction of the old painting, which was St. Mary's most precious decoration, was the gift of Frank J. Sullivan.

The oak pulpit was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Murphy.

The baptistry window was the gift of Miss Helen Bryan in memory of her father, a pioneer who helped build the church.

The sanctuary window is a memorial presented by Frank J. Sullivan in honor of his father, John Sullivan, and his mother, Katherine Sullivan.

Other Gifts

"Preaching of St. Paul to the Athenians," a memorial window, was the gift of James D. Phelan in memory of his father and mother.

"St. Augustine" was given by John and Joseph Kelly in memory of their brother, Tobias Kelly.

"St. Bernard" was a gift from Mrs. D. T. Sullivan in memory of the late Dennis Sullivan, former chief of the San Francisco fire department and in his lifetime a regular attendant of the church. "St. Dominic" from Mrs. M. H. de Young and Miss Mary A. Deane in memory of their father, James B. Deane, of San Francisco, and "St. Augustine" from Mrs. A. H. Loughborough in memory of her husband, "St. Francis Xavier" from Mrs. Mary A. Tobin in memory of her husband, Richard Tobin, "St. Patrick" from James and Katherine Shea, "St. Columbkille" from Mrs. J. Cogan in memory of her two daughters, Josie and Mary Driscoll; "The Immaculate Conception" from George D. Shadbourne.

The church was given by Mrs. Sam Rainey in memory of Captain James Rainey, and Mrs. Andrew Welch made the Paulist fathers a present of the clock in the church tower.

PICNIC ON THE FOURTH TO BE SAFE AND SURE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—If you would have a quiet day on the "Glorious Fourth" and escape firecrackers, the opportunity is offered by attending the picnic of the parishioners of St. Patrick's church at Cedar Brook park, in San Jose. It has been decided to prohibit the use of firecrackers, pistols and explosives on the grounds, thereby insuring the physical safety of children and securing visitors to the park in a quiet and enjoyable time, away from the noise.

CHICAGO MAN IS GREAT GRANDFATHER AT 54

CHICAGO, June 26.—Father at 18 years of age; grandfather at 38; great-grandfather at 54—this is the record of George Alfred Fair, of Norwood Park, formerly a widely known theatrical manager, now in the advertising business in Chicago. Ethel Meyers, the youngest of Fair's descendants, is two days old.

TO FOUND LAW SCHOOL.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Articles of incorporation of the San Francisco Law school were filed with the County Clerk this afternoon. The new organization plans to establish a school of law in this city. The directors are James A. Harrison, Charles R. Stevens and Robert W. Harrison, lawyers in this city. Harrison is an assistant district attorney and also an instructor of law in several law schools.

It gives me much pleasure to recommend to you the person named Mr. George Mayerle, the German expert optician, as a skillful and reliable expert optician. I have consulted several opticians for the last ten years, but not until I had Mr. Mayerle's German Eyewater at my disposal, did I get entire satisfaction. Mayerle's German Eyewater has also done my eyes wonderful good.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

M. E. SILVA at the Top of Buena Vista Hill in His "Thirty Cadillac."

Golden Gate Park and the automobile have at last really joined forces. For many years the motor car has been but an outcast knocking at the gates. There were some roads and some hours, 'tis true, that after long negotiations and much special dispensation, the machine-driven buggies could buzz their way along the boulevards, but in effect and in the heart of the park commissioners' rules the ordinary motor car was the pariah without the walls.

But now the scene changes. The park commissioners, in serious meetings assembled, started the resolution until working to the effect that it was provided that that brawling Scot, Superintendent Jawn MacLaren, should have an automobile for all of his official and daily duties. Jawn's life was made unutterable for over a month sitting in all makes of cars, low gearing and high gearing over hills, low speeding and low speeding over levels until by process of logical elimination the car best suited to the continual running and manifold needs in superintending the park was chosen. This was a Chalmers-Detroit "30," and now fully equipped with top and glass front and bright lamps, with "Golden Gate Park" proudly spelled in gold on each door panel, it has taken up its duties.

To the users of automobiles in San Francisco this is probably as important a single event as has occurred since motor cars have been put in use. It is a fact that more people in automobiles make use of the park and can make use of the park than in any other vehicle. The park is a pleasure place. Today there are more automobiles used for pleasure in San Francisco than horse-drawn vehicles—many times more. Hundreds of people and families have provided themselves with motor cars which never would have thought of affordable horses.

Yet, after all, it was the business sense of the park commissioners which was stirred that caused the buying of the park auto. Efficiency in operation is the business slogan of the day. The superintendent is a high-priced man—with a machine he covers and directs twice the number of jobs a day as he could with his buggy and horse.

The only one who gets the worst of it, "the people get twice the work out of him, but he doesn't get his salary raised. And now between meetings and at meetings the collectors and pencils are busy over the auto regulations for the park. Most of the commissioners, and this board is one that works very happily together, make Commissioner James D. Thelma take the lead in automobile in splendid condition; that this may be said of the city proper and those on all of the islands, especially on the island of Kauai, where motoring for many miles is one of the pleasures afforded by that, the garden island.

Mrs. W. J. Hughes, one of the enthusiastic women motorists of the State who has been running up thousands of miles with her Studebaker touring car between Oakland and Stockton and up and down the San Joaquin valley, says the roads are delightful, and that the only thing necessary to thoroughly enjoy them is to be the possessor of a reliable motor car. Mrs. Hughes tersely adds: "I have one, and I am having the time of my life. So are my friends."

Delightful touring is in store for motorists who journey from here to Gazelle, Cal., according to J. A. Denny of the latter town, who has been using his Studebaker for many months. The roads from Dunsuir on the south to Helt or Gales on the north are good. Particularly so are the roads from Edgewood to Ager, a distance of forty miles for automobiles.

All the roads in the vicinity of Selma, Cal., have good foundations, but are not smooth, says G. S. Bloss Jr., who has been drumming the San Joaquin valley with his Studebaker suburban for the past eight months. In and about Selma the roads are all passable, but are rough and choppy in places. The main roads are good.

Mr. Frank O. Renstrom and friends and Mr. James Patterson and party made a trip to San Jose Sunday in their Pullman automobiles. Mr. Patterson recently purchased a Pullman from the Frank O. Renstrom Company, and states that he is more than pleased with the machine. The trip was without a mishap or single delay.

Mr. and Mrs. Putnam of Berkeley returned a few days ago from a three weeks' trip to Porterville in their Oldsmobile. The party had a most enjoyable time and the roads this side of Fresno, through Tracy and the Livermore valley, are in splendid condition. Rough going was encountered between Fresno and Porterville, where the road is in wretched shape. They made a trip to Fresno the first day, which proves Mr. Putnam a very consistent driver. Others in the party were Miss Ila Putnam, Miss Knutt and Mr. Reginald Knutt.

The Detroit-Cadillac Motor Car Company, New York dealers for the Cadillac, made delivery May 1 of four Cadillac Thirty chassis, equipped with special ambulance bodies, to the municipality of New York. These four cars are the first delivery on an order recently placed for thirty Cadillac Thirty chassis fitted with ambulance bodies, to be used by the various metropolitan hospitals. The remaining twenty-six cars are to be delivered during the next three months.

When the city authorities determined to supply the hospitals with motor ambulances, a board of expert engineers was appointed to examine the leading makes of motor cars, as to their general construction and ability and their particular fitness for the service intended. The board began a systematic and exhaustive examination and inspection of practically every chassis made in the United States which is represented in New York, including chassis of cars selling as high as $3200.

The final decision of the engineers was in favor of the Cadillac Thirty, because of its superior general construction and the splendid satisfaction given by six of the same cars now in use by the several city departments. Its easy riding qualities were also an important consideration.

The six Cadillac Thirty cars now in use by the municipal departments are distributed as follows: One in the Department of Health; one in the Department of Charities; two in the Department of Finance; two in the Department of Water.

Dr. D. C. Potter, commissioner of charities, has for his personal use a Cadillac Thirty, which he purchased last February. Dr. Potter was formerly pastor of the Fifth-avenue Baptist church, the church regularly attended by John D. Rockefeller and the members of his family when they are in New York.

INITIAL CHANGED; SEEKS FREEDOM

'T' Altered to 'D' in Complaint Against Popkins for Forgery

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Alleging that the original complaint on which he had been tried in the Police Court for forgery had been altered to correct a mistake, D. W. Popkins appeared before Judge Cabanis today and asked him to set the charge aside. Judge Cabanis announced that he would decide the question Tuesday.

According to Henry F. Marshall, Popkins' attorney, the original complaint against his client was made out May 15th in the name of "T. W. Popkins" and that the name was later discovered to be incorrect.

Assistant District Attorney Hanley suggested that Police Judge Daniel C. Marshall and the Police Court officials before whom Popkins appeared be called into court and an explanation obtained. Judge Cabanis stated that the alteration constituted a felony.

H. P. Wood, secretary of the Hawaii promotion committee, who has been doing considerable touring in the islands, in a letter to the Studebaker Bros. says the roads of the city of Honolulu are quite dusty.

LEPERS WANDER AT WILL IN CUBA

Steps Will Be Taken Immediately to Eradicate the Great Evil

CHICAGO, June 26.—Hundreds of persons suffering with leprosy are allowed to wander unrestricted through the island of Cuba, according to a statement just issued by Dr. Matthias Duque, Secretary of Health and Charities, of the island. The statement was given out in Chicago by L. Valin, Cuban Consul in Chicago. It tells of the phenomenal success of the Cuban government in suppressing the diseases of yellow fever, malaria and the like. Similar steps are to be taken at once for the suppression of leprosy and tuberculosis.

"There is one problem of great importance to us which we often look upon with unparaphable neglect—the matter of leprosy," says the bulletin. "We have no exact statistics concerning the number of cases which actually exist, but they are considerable, and the lepers who wander about the island freely may be reckoned by hundreds."

BOND ELECTION LAW IGNORED

Six of Propositions Submitted to Voters Were Faulty in Construction

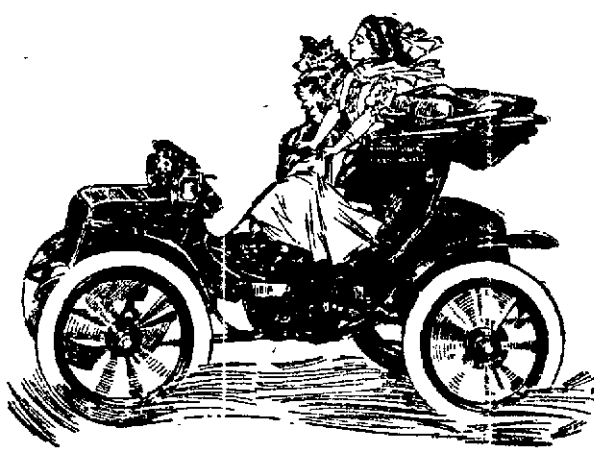

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—The submission to the voters of this city last Tuesday of nine propositions to authorize the incurring of bonded indebtedness aggregating $11,005,000 was another inning of the political game which the present administration is playing with a view to returning themselves to office at the next election. But one of the propositions, that to issue bonds to construct and equip a Polytechnic High School, relieved the two-thirds requisite to make the issue effective.

Six of the nine propositions ran to the issuing of bonds for the purchase of land for a civic center, public parks and playgrounds, and had they carried would have been inoperative, except for the purposes of political buncombe, for which they were intended by this impotent and job-chasing administration.

Charter Ignored
It is not probable that the bonds could have been marketed for the reason that the Supervisors failed to comply with the provisions of the charter requiring that every ordinance involving the purchase of land of more than $50,000 in value must be submitted to a vote of the electors. The provision follows:

"Except as otherwise provided in the constitution of the State, or as otherwise provided in this charter, every ordinance involving the granting by the city and county of any franchise for the supply of light or

HIT BY LOCOMOTIVE BUT IS NOT INJURED
SANTA ROSA, June 26.—Stations Oudella, a San Franciscan spending the summer in the Sonoma valley, had a narrow escape from death by a passenger train on the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Thursday. The rear of his buggy was hit by a locomotive. He was hurled out and the buggy was smashed, but the horse escaped without a scratch. Oudella was hurried to a sanitarium, where it was found that he had no bones broken, suffering only from the shock.

DESPOUDENT WIFE INHALES GAS

Estrangement From Husband Causes Woman to Attempt to End Life

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—In a fit of despondency, caused by an estrangement from her husband, Mrs. Grace Smith, 31 years old, residing at the Hotel Kensington, attempted to commit suicide about 8 o'clock tonight by gas asphyxiation.

The odor of the fumes attracted the attention of another roomer, the woman's door was broken open and she was conveyed to the Central Emergency Hospital. After Dr. Topham had worked over her for half an hour he declared that she was out of danger.

ARRESTED FOR LOOTING STORE

Former Morse Patrolman and His Alleged "Fence" Held For Crime

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Joseph Kenny, formerly a patrol driver for the police department, and later a Morse patrolman, was arrested yesterday and charged with grand larceny.

Kenny is accused of stealing over $3000 worth of articles from the store of Langley & Michaels, 468 Third street, while he was a watchman in that block, and selling a portion of the goods to Roy H. Morey, a merchant on the water front. Morey was also arrested and charged with receiving stolen goods. Both men were arrested by Detectives Regan and O'Connell.

NOTED STALLION DIES FIGHTING

Keene's Imported Glenwood Killed by Radford's Champion in Fearful Battle

LYNCHBURG, Va., June 26.—Glenwood, a famous stallion which was imported by James E. Keene, engaged in a battle at Forest, near here, on the farm of David Radford, with Champion, a heavier stallion, and was killed. The animals got together by accident, and immediately began fighting, roaring like wild beasts. Champion finally secured a hold on the other stallion's throat, which he held until he dropped dead.

CONGRESSMEN TO VISIT THE YOSEMITE

Trip Expected to Result in Big Appropriation for Improving Roads of the Park

YOSEMITE, June 26.—Headed by Representative Towner of the House committee on appropriations, a sub-committee of Congressmen will visit the Yosemite National Park this summer with the object of studying the situation and receiving suggestions relative to the improvement of the roads and trails in the valley.

Already nearly $40,000 has been turned over to the military authorities in the park, and without delay work will be begun on macadamizing the dustiest portion of the highway from Hotel Sentinel bridge to El Capitan bridge, a stretch of four miles.

Look For Appropriation

The visit of the congressmen, it is expected, will bring about the appropriation of several hundred thousand dollars, enough to carry out the ambitious scheme of widening, macadamizing and watering the whole road from the heart of the valley to El Portal, fifteen miles of mountain road, which has received scant attention and which is the most heavily traveled highway in the park.

The War Department recently detailed Lieutenant Ehrnsbeck of the engineer corps to prepare a comprehensive road and trail project for the whole park, and he is now on the scene, prepared also to superintend the work when it is begun. His plans are not to depart from the existing routes, but to improve the grades, straighten out the crooked places in the roads and make both highway and trails safer for travel.

To Widen Road

The road to El Portal will be widened to three times its present dimensions. It will be paved with Telford macadam and watered through a pipe line system and hydrants.

In addition to correcting the defects in the present roads and trails the military authorities intend to build new roads throughout the park, rendering it possible for visitors to go to places which at present cannot be reached except on horseback.

A road which will prove not only interesting but serviceable, in view of San Francisco's plan to bring water from the Sierras, is the contemplated highway from Yosemite to Hetch-Hetchy valley.

READERS OF FATE LAND IN PRISON

New York Police Start Crusade Against Fortune Tellers and Palmsters

NEW YORK, June 26.—The failure of eighteen fortune tellers and palm readers to foretell their own fate resulted last night in their arrest by a squad of detectives who carried out the suggestions of District Attorney Jerome that the "mediums" be freed of them.

Following many complaints to the District Attorney by persons who claim to have been swindled, three young women detectives connected with the "mediums" staff obtained the evidence on which the places of eighteen seers were raided last night. It is not legal to tell fortunes in this State, but until now there has been no active suppression of the practice, from which many palm readers and others derive sufficient income to warrant them in spending hundreds of dollars daily in advertising.

In the night police court most of the offenders were placed under bond not to continue the practice for a period of six months.

AUTO ACCIDENT CAUSES NOVEL COUNTER SUITS

NEW YORK, June 26.—A. H. Flint, a Wall Street broker, was riding in his automobile on May 5 when it knocked down Gutman Rubin of the East Side. Rubin got up and kicked the machine in the side and then brought the suit against Flint. When the case was called, Flint served notice of a counter claim of $100 against Rubin for knocking the varnish off the automobile when it knocked him down, and the case was postponed until September.

Two years ago JACKSON'S recognized the fact that thousands more would appreciate the comforts of a home—that is, working people—if they could furnish in a modern style without the necessity of large cash payments and without paying extra for the privilege. And as a solution of the difficulty Jackson's dignified credit system—one price, cash or credit—was created. Merchants said that it could not be done, that we would go broke. But we haven't. Our business has increased greatly; that we have furnished thousands of homes for people who could well afford to pay cash is evidence that it has won the confidence of the public. Suppose you let us furnish your home. If our credit prices are not as low, if not lower, than you can get elsewhere for cash, why, don't buy. That's fair.

LACK OF LABOR HURTS FARMING

Secretary Wilson Says Scarcity of Hands Causes High Price of Foodstuffs

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who has just returned from a trip through the Western States, says that lack of farm hands is the chief cause of the high price of foodstuffs.

"All through the West and Northwest the same situation exists," said Mr. Wilson. "The country is as healthy and prosperous as ever it was, but thousands of acres of valuable and fertile land is lying idle because the owners cannot hire labor, although wages paid far in excess of those in the States where the laborers are in the majority."

"The immigrants who land on our shores all flock to the great cities, and those of them who have done farming in their own countries are incompetent and nearly useless to the American farmer because they do not understand the modern machinery used on the farms in this country."

"Prices of grains and vegetables, therefore, are bound to be high, and of course with these staples selling at high prices the value of meats is thereby raised."

CHICAGO BEGINS CRUSADE FOR A SANE 4TH OF JULY

CHICAGO, June 26.—"Sane Fourth" pamphlets have been sent to ministers, priests, Sunday school superintendents and others in a position to warn the public of the independence day perils. The papers were distributed by "The Sane Fourth Association," which also will hold a mass meeting next Thursday.

MEN'S CLOTHING RAISES IN PRICE

Anticipating Aldrich Tariff Merchants Send Them Sky-High Within Week

NEW YORK, June 26.—Anticipating the effect of the present provisions of the Aldrich tariff bill, the prices of men's clothing have been sent sky-high within a week.

Clothing dealers report that suits that could be bought a week ago for $20 are now being marketed at $35. Staple worsteds and woolsens have all taken a 25 per cent rise in the last few days.

Coupled with the tariff anticipation is the increased cost of secured wool, which a year ago cost 45 cents a pound and which today is quoted at 75 cents.

Clothing sellers look upon the situation with much satisfaction, their position being much stronger than it has been in many years.

Candidate Suggested to Represent Don Gaspar de Portola at Festival

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—What a lot of Don Gaspar de Portolas we are having served up for our inspection and consideration. Every day or two there is a suggestion from somewhere. First Ned Greenway was put forward, but there came up against him Lan Mizner's descriptive phrase: "He walks like a ruptured hotel porter." Somebody suggested Ned Hamilton, who immediately declared that masquerading as Portola was one kind of jackass that he couldn't be persuaded to make of himself. Then we had Joaquin Miller, but Queen Virgilia objected to his whiskers. Frank Mathieu, the society actor, has been under serious consideration, and he certainly would grace the role.

But let me put forward the name suggested to me this week by a beautiful woman. My candidate is Don Nicholas Covarrubias of Santa Maria and Santa Barbara.

There's an ideal Don Gaspar—the very type of the caballero we imagine the discoverer of the bay to have been. Don Nicholas is one of the finest-looking men in the State. He is of a commanding figure and exhales a geniality that charms all who come in contact with him. On horseback he is a picture of manly grace. Few can excel him in feats of horsemanship.

And his is a fine old Californian family—he is a don of the dons. Under Cleveland he was United States Marshal for Southern California. In those days we used to call him Fannus, because, like Donatello in Hawthorne's immortal story, the hair grew in his ears.

However, those who know Don Nicholas will admit in a moment that he is just the man for Don Gaspar, for he is full of the romance of the role, and could dispense the favors and hospitalities of the festival with a kingly hand.

In our society there is a lot of gossip running the rounds, but nobody can seem to tell anything definite about any of the stories that pass from mouth to ear. For instance, there is a persistent rumor that two young people, prominent in social life, have been wedded for some time. Hardly a gathering but this subject buzzes on the tongues. But who are the young couple? Two matrons are said to know, but they will not tell, and as a consequence the curiosity of our 400 is likely to consume it before the secret is out.

Then there is the constant tale that a millionaire connected with the graft prosecution was detected in a liaison with one of the leading young matrons of the innermost circles and that on the strength of her discovery the wife forced him to deed to her some very valuable securities. But though this story is persistent, no one can be found who will stand sponsor for it, and this mystery renders it more and more a delicate morsel for the gossip-mongers.

Then, too, we continually are told that there has been a separation in a family prominent in the Burlingame set. The beautiful wife is said to have at last objected to her dashing husband's attentions to a very fetching divorcee. But the separation is indignantly denied by some of those concerned, while others insist that the husband has been put on probation, and that if he will cease his attentions to the pretty woman the wife will return to him.

So, with all this to chatter about, our bridge parties and week-end gatherings have had much to spice their conversation.

Much has been said about the poverty of E. H. Harriman's parents when he was a boy and of how he started his career as a curbstone broker. James J. Hill, his great rival, in the western railroad world, had an equally humble beginning. A guest at the Pacific Union Club last week from St. Paul has been telling some of the clubmen a story about Hill illustrative of his shrewdness in money matters over forty years ago. He was a young man then, living in bachelor quarters with five other young men in St. Paul, all of whom have since become wealthy, or famous, or both. A young woman kept house for them. After three years of faithful service, Hill suggested that they each contribute $200 and give her a well-filled purse as a Christmas gift. Another of the bachelors suggested they each make it $300. Hill lost no time in consenting to the increase. This was a week before Christmas. On the eve of that festal day the $1800 in an expensive pocket-book was presented to the young woman by Hill as spokesman for his companions. The following day he and the housekeeper were married much to the surprise of the rest of the bachelors. They had been engaged for six months without the rest of the household being any the wiser. Mrs. Hill is alive today and is enabled by reason of her distinguished husband's affluent circumstances to spend much money in charitable work and other good deeds. Her liberality in money matters has been of much assistance to Archbishop Ireland in building up his St. Paul diocese.

Your readers may have noticed that I predicted the Sutor case decision some weeks ago. Now that it has at last "come down" the hard-pressed Supreme Court justices can draw their March salaries.

Chief Justice Beatty has a way of holding up decisions that distresses the other justices a great deal. The law forces the justices to make oath before they draw their pay that no case has been under submission before them for more than ninety days. Well, "the old man," as they call him, doesn't like to decide anything as long as there is a shadow of doubt in his mind. So he hangs on to the decisions written by the others and chews over them at great length. He doesn't need the money himself, but some of the other justices are by no means on easy street, and they cuss the old chief and his delay with anything but judicial words.

And now that the Sutor case is out of the way, they wonder what will come up next to block their salaries when they need the money.

There is a general notion that San Francisco made a bad break in failing to vote for the improvement bonds. Though there was no special need for a civic center or for the parks and playgrounds, the fear is that Eastern capitalists will get the idea that San Francisco has "quit"—that the burden of rebuilding has been too much for her, and that she has lain down under the load.

Then, too, the merchants who went to Seattle last week were made ashamed of their fear of the old bugaboo of high taxes. For they found the merchants of the brisk northern city paying $3.25 taxes, while our merchants and capitalists have moaned and groaned about $1.60. The contrast between Seattle's well-paved streets and San Francisco's rough-and-ready thoroughfares was also a lesson in spending tax money for public improvements. So most of the pilgrims feel that it was a mistake to defeat the improvement bonds, even though a lot of the money might have seemed wasted.

As for the narrow margin by which the Geary street railroad project was knocked out, a lot of people voted for those bonds on a theory that is rapidly gaining ground—that it is high time to explode the municipal ownership theory once and for all.

The thinking people see that municipal ownership is becoming more and more of a fad. The notion gains ground. As long as there is no municipal ownership example at hand, the people look with approval upon the glittering fancies of the theorists.

"Some day the people may get hysterical and try to put everything under municipal ownership," say these reasoners. "That would be a very expensive blunder. But if we vote for the Geary street bonds and put that road under municipal ownership the people will see that in practice such ownership is not what it is in theory. They will see that municipal ownership is a failure. That will put an end to the agitation for municipal ownership of other public utilities, and the bugaboos will be laid away forever. The experiment will have cost the city only a million or two, and the lesson taught will be worth all of that and a great deal more."

The people who reason this way are growing in numbers, and I shall not be surprised to see them carry those Geary street bonds the next time they are submitted if the submission is under a more popular municipal government.

Mrs. Howard Gould's successful separation suit in New York will bring that lady again to the mind of many of your Oaklanders, who will remember her as a dashing girl in your city. She was then known as Viola Dayan, having taken her stepfather's name. The Dayans kept for a time a fashionable boarding house at Thirteenth and Jackson streets and the two daughters, Ella and Viola, were accepted in the younger set of the fashionable Lakeside district.

The first I remember of the fair Viola was when she took part in a young ladies' drill corps at a church function in Germania Hall. She was then a tall, slender girl, with blonde hair, a peaches-and-cream complexion, Hattie Brewster, who afterward cut a dash in San Francisco and the Orient, was another of that drill squad of maidens. Ella Dayan, who afterward married Charlie Overacher of Niles, and then, after a divorce, married a Chinaman in San Francisco, may also have been in that beautiful military company.

Viola early evinced a desire for the stage. She tried hard to get the late Dr. Samuel Merritt to back her in her ambitions, but he had no notion of becoming a stage angel. "Buffalo Bill" Cody afterward filled the role for her and she appeared in elaborate productions. Then came the marriage to Howard Gould and now the separation, with $100 per day on which to live. That isn't so bad for the little Jackson street girl after all.

There is going to be some stir in the liquor business. People who watch for trade events expect something to happen when J. Frank Moroney leaves the Jesse Moore Hunt Company and takes hold of the A. P. Hotelling business.

Moroney is one of the most widely known men in the State, and his wit and ability as an entertainer have made him very popular with club men and those who see the brighter side of life. So he has built up the business of the Jesse Moore-Hunt Company to large proportions. But those in control seemed to want to push young Harry Hunt to the front and Moroney began to feel dissatisfied with the outlook.

At this time Kirkpatrick of "Old Kirk" fame severed his relations with the house of Hotelling and Charlie Conlisk, who didn't know the liquor business, was running it the best way he knew how. The news reached Dick Hotelling and Conlisk that Moroney might be secured. No sooner said than done. A mighty fat offer was made and accepted, and in August the popular head of the model license movement in California will take charge of the Hotelling business.

Alexander Garnett's friends are still pressing Governor J. N. Gillett to pardon him. Relatives and friends, together with many members of the Daughters of the Confederacy, have assured the Governor that if he pardons Garnett, who is about 68 years of age and in poor health, he will be sent to some Confederate Soldiers' Home in the South to spend the rest of his days. Garnett, who is still an inmate of the county jail, was convicted of murder in the second degree before the April fire of 1906 for having shot and killed Major John McClung, his friend, in the rooms of Mrs. Lillian Coit in the Palace Hotel. He was in a drunken frenzy at the time. Mrs. Coit went to Paris a few days after the tragedy in order to avoid being a witness and has never returned, although she has extensive property interests here. A strong showing as to the mental incompetency of Garnett has been submitted to Governor Gillett. He has also been informed that it was the express wish of Mrs. McClung, the widow, that Garnett, owing to his mental and physical condition at the time of the shooting, be not punished. The Governor has asked for a letter to that effect from Mrs. McClung. She is now in the Philippines with her daughter and son-in-law, Lieutenant Horne, of the navy. She has been cabled about the matter and his relatives and the Governor are awaiting her reply. What Gillett will finally do in the case cannot be predicted. The jurors who tried him and the attorneys on both sides have interceded for him with the Governor.

Who is responsible for the names of a lot of new Pullman cars recently sent out here by the Pullman Company of Chicago? Here are some of them: Tulenasa, Quanna, Sicocco, Pinaleno, Ascura, Florayme, Lorciano, Brazito, Adapta. A number of years ago, when George M. Pullman was alive, his daughter, Mrs. Francis J. Carolan, of Burlingame, used to select names for the cars, and is said to have been paid by him $500 for every name chosen by her which met with the approval of himself and his general manager. It is said she still keeps that work up at the same remuneration, it being a fad of hers to hunt up or invent queer and unusual names for every new Pullman the Chicago shops build. Her friends do not approve of this last bunch of names, and to their questions as to where she managed to get them, she is said to give the same laconic reply: "I got them in my dreams." The Spanish names of towns and localities on this coast were a great source to draw from for a long time in designating Pullmans. But that well, so to speak, is getting dry. Seemingly hodgepodge letter combinations are being resorted to in order to get odd effects both in appearance to the eye and in sound to the ear. If Mrs. Carolan is responsible for these latest names, she is doing harder mental work than of old and no doubt makes a better showing of laborious employment in earning her $500 per name.

"Talk to most of your navy officer friends these days and either their fear of the 'plucking out board' or their delight over its existence will ring in your ears. The fear comes from those who have reached the grade of commander or captain. It is all due to the fact that a week from tomorrow this 'plucking out board' must, if necessary, forcibly create nineteen vacancies. Against these nineteen vacancies to be created will be placed the applications for retirement, and every effort is being made to induce officers to apply for retirement, their voluntary action entitling them to retirement at the next higher grade. Officers who fear selection are apt to apply, but in the meantime the Secretary of the Navy has decided that no information shall be given out covering such applications. The applications come sealed and will not be opened until the last day of June, when it will be made known how many officers the 'plucking-out board' will have to recommend for enforced retirement.

This system continues to engage severe criticism, especially from senior officers who cannot rid themselves of the fear of being selected for retirement. Those who advocate the system are junior officers. Naturally those who would be benefited by such retirements believe that this process of elimination has undoubted merits, regardless of the fact that an officer selected out may feel that he has a right to entertain a grievance, especially as the retirement carries with it the unjust suspicion that the officer so retired has outlived his usefulness for one or another reason.

Paul Morton, ex-secretary of the navy, and who as president of one of the great life insurance companies of New York is a power as a financier in the East, will arrive here in a day or two for a brief stay. Morton is a familiar figure in San Francisco because of his previous connection with the Santa Fe as its traffic chief. His forthcoming visit is causing some excitement in circles of the occult. Those devotees claim him as their own, the same as they do another ex-cabinet member, Lyman J. Gage. The latter has for some years been an interested member of that organization of ghost-hunters, the Society for Psychical Research, and recently he built himself a cottage near to Mme. Katherine Tingley's temple within the Theosophist colony at Point Loma, near

San Diego, where the much-discussed Raga Yoga School is located and where A. G. Spalding, the ex-baseball star and sporting goods man, also went into retirement lately. Upon its being announced that Mr. Gage had joined the Theosophists in response to a dream suggestion, he gave out the statement that he had not been invited to join the society, but would consider it an honor to be.

Morton is well along in the occult mysteries and associations. Some litigation recently revealed the fact that he had been the president of the Association for the Study of Ancient Wisdom, organized by the followers of Sri Agumya Guru Paramhansa, the dread "tiger Mahatma of India," lately condemned to four months in a London prison for insulting women who had responded to his advertisements for a typewriting. Mr. Morton had subscribed $100 to the cause and another disciple of the seer had been Mme. Emma Eames, the diva. Abroad this tiger Mahatma had found disciples equally exalted. He was introduced in England by the famed Professor Max Muller of Oxford, upon whose recommendation London received him with open arms, and in his "Life and Letters" you will find Professor Muller calling the Mahatma "the only real saint or yogi who has ever come to England." It was after making this splash in London that the yogi came to New York proclaiming: "I am God; I know every thing."

Charles G. Lathrop, the brother of the late Mrs. Jane Stanford, and a trustee and treasurer of Stanford University for life as provided by his sister, has a new $8000 automobile. Lathrop, by reason of the wills of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford, is a millionaire several times over, and in banking circles is credited with having always on hand more ready cash than most San Francisco men of wealth. He takes a keen interest in the welfare of Stanford University and if reports are true is not a very enthusiastic admirer of its president, David Starr Jordan. It is said he has never forgiven Jordan for dismissing Dr. Julius Goebel from the faculty and thinks Professor Lucien Foulet, the new professor of French literature at the University of California; M. Lusinchi, the editor of the local French newspaper, and Doctor G. Vecki of this city are quite in the right in severely criticizing Dr. Jordan for his utterances, both in print and on the lecture platform, to the effect that France, by her own admission, is a decadent nation. Lathrop's views in this regard are said to be shared in by other trustees of Stanford, like Horace Davis, a former president of the University of California and at one time chairman of the Stanford trustees. These men, however, will not openly criticize Jordan and the latter is represented as being indifferent as to whether they do or not. He will not brook any encroachment on his own liberty of thought or expression of opinion, although he is accused of pursuing such action with some members of the faculty of the institution who have either been dismissed or have resigned during the past seven or eight years.

General "Jim" Smith has been feted and dined without limit during the brief time he has been back from the Philippines. By his general demeanor he has made a most favorable impression, too. His friends have seen at a glance that he is not suffering with an attack of the swelled head. Smith is frank to the extreme. He is telling his friends that he is not a great man, never pretended to be and never will be. At a banquet at the Fairmont held the other night he said among other things to about 150 ladies and gentlemen: "My friends, if anybody tells you I am a great, famous personage, don't believe him. Just believe he is mistaken. For eleven years I've been haunted by one great fear. That has been that some one would come along some day and prick the bubble and I would go up in smoke." Smith is shortly to go to Washington to confer with President Taft at the latter's request. Rumors that the two men are not on cordial terms do injustice to both men. Taft is fond of Smith and has an abiding faith in his honesty and devotion to duty. Those who know are confident that at the proper time the President would like to make General Smith a Federal District Judge. Smith, after eleven years in the Philippines, returns home a poor man. As Governor-General he had to "keep his end up." He is not an extravagant man, but the positions he occupied at different times, together with the support of his family in this country, called for most of his salary annually. Up to date we have had no wealthy man as the Philippine Governor-General. They have all been men of limited means like Taft and Smith.

Fred English's acquittal in the Federal Court on an indictment charging him with embezzling $18,000 while chief clerk in the office of Receiver Morton of the land office brought out two very interesting pieces of evidence. One was to the effect that in the interior department of the government 15,000 women clerks are employed. In spite of that great number, there have only been three women in the entire history of the department who ever committed an illegal or criminal act. Among the men clerks, however, there have been numerous scandals and many flagrant criminal acts. The other consisted of a part of the testimony of General George Stone, the successor of Morton as receiver. All the clerks in the office are under civil service and are not required to give bonds. The receiver is required to give a bond of $30,000. Stone said he had employed a woman as chief clerk instead of a man. He also told the jury that if his clerks were disposed to do so, he would be robbed as readily as some one in the office had robbed Morton.

"Can't you devise some system to protect the money received by the land office?" asked a juror.

Stone replied that there were only two ways. One was the honesty of the clerical force. The other was for him to be at the office all day from 8 to 5 and personally attend to receiving all the checks and money himself, a thing which he nor no other official head of an office could or would do. Whether English will be tried on the remaining indictment of three counts is not known.

Morton's bondsmen will be sued for the stolen $18,000 by the government.

Willis Polk, the well known clubman and architect, has been elected president of the newly-formed Architectural League of the Pacific Coast, while Myron Hunt of Los Angeles is its secretary. C. H. Schutze and G. A. Applegarth of this city and W. A. Walker of Los Angeles are members of the executive council. The other officers live in Portland and Seattle. The objects of the league are to secure the affiliation of chapters of the American Institute of Architects and Architectural Clubs, the formation of similar organizations in cities where none now exist, a circuit of annual architectural exhibitions, an annual convention of architects and the promotion of scholarship work by draughtsmen.

Polk, who got the first presidency without opposition, was recently initiated as a member of the Stone Cutters' Union of this city and has had several tilts with P. H. McCarthy over building contracts. He is one of the few architects in town who is said not to be afraid of calling a spade a spade in his dealings with McCarthy. It is expected that the second convention of the league will be held either in this city or Oakland.

Next to the earthquake the standing of the Calhoun jury was a jolt to some people in San Francisco. The shock disclosed a "fault" in which was supposed to be the terra firma of municipal politics. It puts people in a reminiscent mood, in which it is recalled that Heney began with a united community behind him. He ends with a community divided and a majority against him. For this he alone is responsible. Instead of going ahead and trying his cases, and confining himself to the duties of a prosecutor, it seems that the private compensation paid to him or his partner required that he enter upon a political campaign and stump the State in the interest of his employers. On the stump he antagonized every one of our members of Congress, flew at that grim old fighter, General Otis, and belimed everybody in reach of his oratorical saliva. This remarkable performance could only result in the creation of antagonisms and a division of the community into two camps, and Heney's camp was under the small-tents of the side show for which he was the professional bawler. In that way the community was divided until now the highest wish of thousands of good citizens is to reduce Heney to the ranks, where his true measure may be taken.

Since the death of H. H. Rogers, L. F. Harkness ranks as one of the heaviest stockholders in the Standard Oil combine. His son-in-law, A. K. Macomber, is in town direct from Paris and en route to Pasadena to attend to some personal and family affairs. As the story goes, he left his wife in New York to watch her father. He is said to have been paying devoted attention to a pretty woman much younger than himself and the family is determined he shall not marry again if a close watch on him can prevent it. Harkness is old, giddy and stubborn and wants his own way. Probably the outcome of the affair will be a sensational story for the daily press ere long. Harkness is the man who took a gay party on a yachting trip several summers ago into the far north Atlantic waters. For some reason the supply of provisions was badly damaged and the members of the party became sick from a diet of salmon for ten days before they got succor in a Newfoundland port. The son-in-law has taken a strong liking to California and already has purchased an 18,000-acre stock ranch near Tres Pinos in San Benito county. He is a shrewd, clever fellow and both men and women vote him an exceedingly handsome man.

The action of the Calhoun jury goes to prove stronger than ever that you cannot predict what a jury will do. The assertions of Jurors C. H. Suydam and Joseph Dixon, two of the ten who voted for an acquittal because of the insufficiency of the evidence, that Juror Theodore Binner, who, with Juror O. T. Hildebrecht, voted for a conviction, was partially deaf and several times made the statement to the effect that he would vote as Hildebrecht did, calls to mind the peculiar action of a juror in the perjury case of Attorney George Collins. Eleven of the jury were for conviction and the twelfth man just three hours before 6 p. m. refused to vote until he had another dinner at the expense of the state. He did not make a blunt statement of that character, but remarked that he thought he could make up his mind after he had had dinner. So the eleven had to wait his convenience. After a hearty dinner he joined the eleven in their verdict of guilty. The Calhoun jury's action also shows that it depends upon whose ox is gored as to how the result is received. Fremont Older and William J. Burns have nothing but words of praise for Jurors Binner and Hildebrecht. In the case of the jurors who acquitted Luther Brown of a charge of having kidnaped Older, however, the latter and Burns emissaries have not yet finished their campaign of hounding them. For awhile they made the life of Foreman Prince of that jury miserable by hounding him day after day and demanding to know how the jury happened to reach the verdict it did: what caused him to vote for an acquittal, what was said and done in the jury room and a lot of other impertinent and bold questioning. Prince does not hesitate to tell his friends of these hounding methods of the graft prosecution crowd, all of which goes to show that the freeing of Brown rankles in the Older and Burns breasts.

Secretary of the Interior Ballinger is coming to the coast this summer to inspect various irrigation projects, public land matters and other propositions. Should he and State Mineralogist Lewis E. Aubury meet some plain talk may be used. Aubury charges that mineral lands in California are being illegally taken up under agricultural and timber patents and that the government officials are not taking the proper steps to prevent these violations of the law which are a glaring injustice to the mining interests of the State. When James R. Garfield was secretary he listened to Aubury and directed Ballinger, the then commissioner of the general land office, to confer with Aubury and take steps to stop the violations of the law. Ballinger reported back that Aubury's charges were too general and not specific enough in their character. This he did in spite of names and localities furnished by Aubury. These violations of the law are still going on and Aubury has finally decided to ignore Ballinger and his department and go with his complaint direct to President Taft. This he is going to do within the next two or three months, for that time he will have whipped into shape for the perusal of the President enough specific charges to fill a large trunk and involving thousands of acres of which are more valuable for mining purposes than anything else. Aubury is confident Taft will back him up in his position and protect the miners of the state against the illegal entries on mineral lands.

The immediate future of three valuable pieces of property in town is cause for much interesting speculation. One is the site of the Huntington mansion on Nob Hill. The mansion, which was destroyed in the big fire, was originally built by the late D. D. Colton and purchased from his widow by the late C. P. Huntington in the nineties for $250,000. The site is now owned by Huntington's widow, Mrs. Arabella Huntington. It is said that before the end of this year she will present it as a gift to some religious denomination or a worthy charity. She has a list of ten from which she is soon to make a selection. Two intimate friends of hers living here at her request are giving her some advice and information for her guidance. The Occidental hotel site on Montgomery street, between Sutter and Bush, has been divided between the two sets of owners. The Richard Burkes of Ireland take the 154-foot frontage next to Bush street, while the Donohoes, of the Donohoe-Kelly bank, take the 121 feet next to Sutter. The Donohoes will no doubt erect on their portion a bank and office structure. Richard Burke will shortly be here from Ireland. Parties in town are corresponding with him about erecting a big hotel on his portion. If he agrees, it will be called the Occidental Hotel, a name favorably known to the traveling public all over the world. Burke and his children got an ownership in the Occidental years ago through his wife, now dead, who was a Donahue, a relative of the late Peter Donahue and his family of this city. The third piece is the water front property near Fort Mason owned by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt Jr. This is all the property she has left in San Francisco and she wants to sell it. It is likely the Law brothers will acquire it, as they own valuable water front property close by.

In spite of General Fred Funston's recommendations to the War Department just before he left the coast for his new command at Fort Leavenworth that the school of musketry at the Presidio of Monterey be removed to a more central location in the middle west, that school is being undisturbed and is doing splendid work. Army officers think its future at Monterey is safe and that it will continue to reflect honor upon the army and especially that part of it on this coast. In this connection it is deserving to mention that the Hotchkiss type of automatic machine gun, known as the Benet-Mercier, which during the past few months has been put through exhaustive tests at the school of musketry, is considered a most efficient weapon by army officers who have had anything to do with it. It is of very simple construction, consisting of only 26 pieces, composed of 114 parts. The gun works much like the present service musket, but the clips hold 30 cartridges and are easily reloaded. Two men can reload 1200 rounds in 45 minutes. In action one man does the firing, while the other loads. The piece can be used, also, by one man, carrying a smaller number of rounds, and single action, semi-automatic action and automatic action may be employed at will. The piece can be as easily concealed as a rifle. In tests made with the gun, in one instance 3500 rounds were fired with only one cartridge jamming and this was remedied in 12 seconds, and at another time 7500 rounds were fired without a hitch.

"Is insurance a profession and is it possible for a man to be a good insurance agent without making it a study?"

This question was asked one of the San Francisco general agents yesterday by an understudy. The latter also asked how many kinds of insurance are there these days of which a general agent should be informed. The veteran insurance man thought for a while. He sought his "hand-book." Then he read: "There are forty-two companies in the United States selling policies covering every one of the following lines: Fidelity, official, contract, judicial and court bonds, robbery from messenger and office hold-up, residence, store and safe robbery, bank and messenger robbery, hall and theater liability, workmen's collective, use and occupancy, tourists' baggage, general liability, steam boiler, automobile, lease-holds, sprinkler, collision, casualty, tornado, patent, credit, teams, rents, life, physicians, druggists, dentists and hospital liability, vessel employers and public liability, tailors and furniture floaters, tourists, burglary and theft, liquor dealers' license, employers' liability, landlords' liability, travelers' samples, transportation, plate glass, contingent, lightning, fly wheel, accident, elevator, marine, health, postal, theft, safe, fire."

Now that it is over, the famous speech of Heney in closing the case against Calhoun takes its place amongst the humor of the bench and bar. O'Gara's speech had laid the flattery on Heney until it was a fine three-coat job. But that did not satisfy its recipient. So Heney took up the subject of his own merits himself, apparently believing that no other could do the subject justice. He compared himself to Washington, Lincoln and Daniel Webster, and placed himself on a dizzy pinnacle and looked at himself in an orgasm of egotism that would win roars on the vaudeville stage. He has in reserve the Admirable Crichton, Alexander the Great and Julius Caesar, so that his next effort need not lack for material for holding the mirror up to nature. Then there is Professor Boke!

Captain A. F. Payson, Edward Chambers, H. K. Gregory and other leading officials of the Santa Fe in San Francisco have been sent by engineers of the company samples of the ballast along the entire new Belen cut-off in New Mexico, and it yields $3 gold to the ton, besides being rich in copper. Following this, prospectors have investigated the mountains in that vicinity and found great quantities of ore assaying $16 and $20 a ton. This is in the region where Quan Quiveha, the deserted Spanish city, is supposed to have been located. There are many legends of rich gold mines thereabouts, all traces of which have been lost for many years, and it is believed the prospectors will soon discover these mines and traces of the famous old city.

Henry E. Huntington, the Southern California multimillionaire, who hardly ever lets his left hand know what the right one is doing, is one of the financial backers of Edwin Hawley in his new ocean-to-ocean railroad combination. With them is also associated Mrs. Arabella Huntington, the widow of the late C. P. Huntington. Within the last week the Chicago and Alton railroad company, which is part of the so-called Hawley system, has entered into a traffic arrangement with the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railway company, which arrangement indirectly includes the other Hawley roads—a combination which will give the Hawley lines a through route across the continent, from the Atlantic seaboard at Newport News to the Pacific at Topolobampo, Mexico, and the Orient road an outlet to the Atlantic coast and to the Great Lakes at Chicago and Toledo, with one link missing, the connection between the Chesapeake and Ohio, the western termini of which are at Cincinnati and Louisville, and the Toledo, St. Louis and Western. This gap is to be filled in.

The Hamburg-American steamship company several years ago entered into a close traffic agreement, which is understood to be still operative, under which it will extend its Pacific service from Hongkong to the Mexican terminus of the Orient road, Topolobampo (the name of this place is to be changed to Port Stilwell on the completion of that road), so that the Hawley-Huntington-Stilwell system will, like the Harriman system and the Hill system, extend not only across the continent, but across the Pacific ocean also.

The strain has been taken off the Jordan-Foulet incident. Jordan has tempered the wind of his rhetoric to the shorn lamb of Gaul, and Foulet has denied that he called Jordan a liar. So there is peace in our highest educational circles. But what will Mayor Taylor do? When he thought he was swimming in the warm lake of the French professor he rose up and denounced the supposed statement of Jordan as "false." After this how can he welcome Jordan "to our city?"

I heard a story the other day anent Judge William P. Lawlor that will give opportunity for a discussion of the adage, "The boy is the father of the man."

A group of Grand Army men were reviewing the topics of the day. One veteran remarked the deep interest Lawlor had always taken in Grand Army affairs and expressed the thought that the jurist served in the Civil War. Another of the group questioned this on the ground of "The Phony's" age. A third old soldier contributed the suggestion that Lawlor might have been a drummer boy—in fact had heard a story to that effect. A proposition that Lawlor be made a member of the G. A. R. brought out the true story of the judge and the "drummer boy," and which Lawlor in his olive season was in the habit of relating with great pride himself. In Lawlor's callow days a city in New Jersey—I think it was Paterson—was the recipient of the advantages arising from his physical and intellectual efforts.

One day there was a picnic parade in which Lawlor and his chum, Little Jimmie, played conspicuous parts. Lawlor selected himself to beat the drum, thinking that he could make more noise and attract more attention battering that war instrument than in any other way. Jimmie wanted to make some of the noise and pleaded with "Little Billee" to let him beat the hollow cylinder for a while. "Oh, g'wan," was the reply of the generous Lawlor. In a short time, however, Lawlor's furious beating with the drumsticks cracked the head of the instrument. A little later the now judge magnanimously passed the drum to Jimmie, with a "you play it for a while."

the drum and upbraided Jimmie for it, which Lawlor thought was a good joke.

Now those who know Judge Lawlor and have heard him tell the story are watching with interest for him to pass the drum again.

Sig Simon, the professional sheriff's cashier, bids fair to play his part in this campaign, as he has in others that have preceded it during the past thirty or more years. The mere mention of Simon's name in a political gathering is the signal for a story about the aforesaid cashier. One recently related runs to Dick Whelan's experience with the genial Sigismund. After Whelan assumed the office of sheriff, Cashier Simon, as was his wont, on the succession of each new administration, was taken sick and did not appear at the office.

Whelan, however, was "next." He visited Sig at the latter's home and expressed deep solicitude at his indisposition, "but," suggested the sheriff, "you might give me the keys to the safes and other receptacles of the office, as you will have no immediate use for them because of your ill health."

Sig offered to accompany Whelan to the office, but the sheriff would not permit him to make the sacrifice and took the keys to the safe instead.

In the afternoon Simon came to the office, but still had a bad cough. "You must go home at once," insisted Whelan. "I will not permit a man as sick as you are to work for me. Your health should be your first consideration."

Simon retired reluctantly, but was on hand the next morning, much improved in health, but still pale and interesting. Whelan laid a persuasive hand on cordial Sig's shoulder and again insisted that he return to his home. At the end of three or four days Simon, having ascertained that the office could be run without him, returned to duty fully restored and, for the remainder of Whelan's term as sheriff the merry-Sig kept his proper place in the office which it had been his practice to dominate to the frequent discomfiture of both its employees and those citizens doing business with the sheriff.

Now Sig is in the fight again and has announced himself as a candidate for sheriff.

That the tide of public sentiment in San Francisco is running strongly against the continued domination of the city by Rudolph Spreckels, James D. Phelan and those associated with them in the graft prosecution is being abundantly demonstrated these days. Much unfavorable comment is being made on their relations with the trial judges—Lawlor and Dunne—with whom such a close intimacy has grown that they no longer attempt to conceal the unseemly association from the public gaze, hobnobbing with them brazenly in the clubrooms and elsewhere. When such men as Spreckels and Phelan and Heney are seen at the Bohemian Club entertaining these judges at lunch, the business and professional men sit up and take notice of the incident and are quick to manifest their disapproval of the indecent association, as is indicated in the following extract from a communication sent to THE TRIBUNE written by a professional man of high standing in the community here who is neither directly nor indirectly concerned in the graft trials: "Today (Tuesday) at the Bohemian Club Francis J. Heney, James D. Phelan, Rudolph B. Spreckels and Judge Frank H. Dunne were luncheoning together at a table in the center of the dining-room. The dining-room was crowded, and one of the members, Jack Crooks, took out his card and sent it to them with his compliments, with this inscription written thereon: 'Weaving spiders, come not here. Let us have peace.' The first sentence, you know, is the motto of the Bohemian Club." It is no wonder that such public exhibitions of the intimacy existing between Spreckels, Phelan, Heney and the trial judges in the graft prosecutions should shake public confidence in the honesty of their purpose, and in the integrity of the administration of justice, and that a revulsion of public sentiment against them should follow.

There has been a very general reduction in rents in this city, particularly of downtown business property. Rents for flats have dropped from $8 and $10 a room to $5 and $6 a room. Small stores in the Western Addition that were renting for $50 a month after the fire now go begging for tenants at $15 to $20 a month rental.

There was a big horizontal cut in office rents in the Phelan building on Market street. There is a mortgage of $2,000,000 on this property and an additional $500,000 raised on other securities by Phelan is reported to have also gone into its construction. Owing to the high rentals charged, not to exceed one-third of the building is occupied by tenants, the returns from which do not meet the interest on the mortgage, much less furnish a sinking fund for its redemption.

It is told among real estate men that the representatives of the mortgagees recently ordered a general reduction of rents in the Phelan building with a view to securing tenants and increasing the returns from the property to a point that will meet the interest on the mortgages.

The Heney Club, an organization secretly effected, the officers of which have not yet been made public, and whose object is to promote the candidacy of Francis J. Heney for District Attorney, is arranging to have former President Roosevelt come to San Francisco as soon as he shall have concluded his hunt in Africa and take the stump for the Special Prosecutor. It is further said that the club is endeavoring to induce President Taft to come here and make one speech for "Me-and-Washington" and "Me-and-Webster." The members of the club express confidence that Teddy will come to San Francisco in the interest of Heney's candidacy, but are not so positive in their claims in relation to President Taft.

Harmony in the Administration. Vitality of California Seeds.

One of the most suggestive and assuring signs of the certainty of the continued prosperity of Oakland for a long time to come is that contained in the perfect harmony existing between the legislative and administrative departments of the municipal government which was exemplified this week at a banquet given to Mayor Mott and other executive officers by the members of the Council, and at which projects of the greatest importance to the municipality were discussed in a friendly manner.

The whole tenor of the after-dinner talk showed that every one present was in perfect accord with the administration's policy relating to future public improvements for the carrying out of long-considered and thoroughly matured plans are pending. Reference was pertinently made to the large proportion of the municipal revenues which has been spent during the past four years in permanent improvements. The reference to it was made with justifiable pride. No previous administration has done as much toward Oakland's material prosperity. With such a record it is natural that the plans formed for future development are along the same line and equally progressive. The community has not begrudged a dollar of the money spent in permanent improvements. To the contrary, it has, whenever called upon to express its views on the subject, heartily endorsed everything that has been done.

At the banquet the other night the announcement was made that the program for submitting bonding propositions for additional necessary public improvements involving $3,500,000 had been perfected and that the people would be asked early in September to ratify it. Public sentiment is so strongly in favor of the various projects of public improvements embodied in the program, that practically unanimous approval is already foreshadowed. The citizens and taxpayers of this city are no longer timid about incurring any reasonable financial obligation with which there is an assurance of its intelligent expenditure for the general good and benefit of the city. They have conspicuously before them the great benefits which their interests have derived from public improvements made with the funds derived through similar processes during the past two or three years and are eagerly waiting the opportunity when they can put themselves on record as being in accord with the administration's plans, and the evidence of harmony which exists between the various branches in the municipal government has been a powerful agent in the establishments of public faith and confidence in its purposes.

Maryland's Dual Tragedy

The dual tragedy in Maryland which has stirred the whole country owing to the relationship between the woman murdered and Ex-Secretary of the United States Treasury Lyman J. Gage, and the former social and business standing of the murderer and suicide in New York, is of a character which does not appeal to the sympathy of the public in any sense. It is simply an expose of a phase of society which betrays human weaknesses and depravity. The unfortunate woman was one of those members of her sex which are possessed of that peculiar magnetism to men of weak self-control which draws the moth into the flame of the candle and leads to its destruction. The murderer is simply one of that class of men who are ready to be lured by the pretty face and form of a siren.

Young as she was, Mrs. Woodill was a woman of experience. She knew of the mysterious power which she possessed over men. She trifled with it and apparently took special pleasure in exercising it. She belonged to the Nan Patterson type of women, although she evidently shunned the same kind of notoriety. But she employed her art to captivate the attentions of men and finally fell a victim to it. She took an interest in luring victims in her toils. There is no escaping from such a conclusion. No virtuous, self-respecting woman, no matter what might be the temptation, would so forget her wifely relations and obligations as to compromise herself with a man with whom, according to the evidence in the case, she had so brief an acquaintance and by her own act place herself in his power. As to the murderer and the suicide his record is merely an exemplification of the scriptural injunction that "the way of the transgressor is hard," and it would be a waste of human sympathy to extend it to him. The only parties entitled to any sympathy are the misguided husband of the murdered woman who had staked his faith on her virtue and purity and trusted her and the wife of the man who, while a fugitive from justice for other crimes, had repudiated his marriage vows and sought escape from the consequences of a graver crime through self-destruction.

The nomination for Mayor in San Francisco is playing a game of hide and seek that will soon require the services of a mind reader to find out where it is. The trouble seems to be that the office has become so identified with poetry and imagination that the reformers are suspicious of every man who ever did any business, or indulged in anything except the great productive industry of writing sonnets. It is said that they are now considering Council Cutler, of the Police Commission, upon the rumor that he once wrote a poem on to-morrow catsup.

The vitality exhibited by many native seeds in this State is almost as phenomenal as the grains of Egyptian wheat exhumed from the tombs of the ancient Pharaohs after at least three thousand years of immurement and when planted in the soil sprouted and matured a full head in due time. Some years ago, for example, the Alameda mole was constructed from the dredgings excavated in the formation of the channel at the entrance of the harbor. The later dredgings which form the surface of the mole came from a stratum eighteen or twenty feet below the level of the bottom of the estuary as it existed when the government began the work of harbor improvement in the early seventies and from twenty to twenty-five feet beneath the ordinary low tide level. The soil thus excavated must have been deposited in the estuary centuries ago; but in less than a year after it had been exposed to the sun's rays on the surface of the mole it developed a crop of strange grasses and willows which have since grown into imposing thickets. The seeds were unquestionably in the spoil of the dredger, where they had lain dormant during the indefinite term of their burial in the formation.

Perhaps there are no California plants whose seeds show greater vitality than those of the native forest timber, the seeds of the manzanita bushes and the grains of wild oats. The latter at one time covered the floors of the great central basin of the State and the foothill slopes in the pastoral period. The cultivation of the soil to wheat, the vine and fruit-bearing trees has never completely eradicated them. Wherever the land remains untilled for a season the wild oats take possession. There is a backyard in the southern part of this city which has been under cultivation for garden truck and other purposes for over half a century, until the past twelvemonth. During the latter period the premises have been untenanted and, as a result, a big crop of wild oats has been developed.

Forest land cleared and cultivated subsequently for years will reproduce the original forest growth, if neglected for a season, and land originally reclaimed from the manzanita, no matter how long it may have been, carefully cultivated for other crops, will return to its native condition if allowed to remain idle for one or two seasons. And none of the native seeds of the State exhibit greater vitality than those of the wild mustard, against which a constant warfare must be kept up by the grain and fruit-growers of the southern counties.

In the opinion of the City Auditor the tax rate will not exceed $1.20 this year. Auditor Gross' estimates are based on possible economies in the Street Department through the passage of an ordinance now pending limiting the number of men employed in it. He estimates that these economies will result in a cut in the estimates equivalent to 15 cents on each hundred dollars of the assessment of property, and that they will in no wise interfere with the plans of the administration to devote 25 per cent of the revenues of the fiscal year to permanent improvements. In his opinion, if the economies he thinks possible without impairing the usefulness of any department of the administration, the latter will be able to do as much work during the coming year on a $1.20 tax rate as it has been able to do this fiscal year with a $1.25 tax rate. We do not believe that any citizen who has the welfare of Oakland at heart desires to hamper the administration in any sense in the work of municipal improvement, but any action taken which will prevent wastefulness and keep down the tax rate will be heartily approved by taxpayers.

While Harriman's health may not be good, the reports which are being circulated that it is bad must be taken by the public with great caution. The evidence is strong that Harriman's physical condition is being manipulated by Wall street gamblers interested in bearing the stock for self-gain of the large and various properties which he controls. That has already been indicated by the false reports of his being in a critical condition circulated in New York a few days ago, which caused a big slump in the Harriman railroad securities, followed a day later with the positive declaration that he was not suffering from any serious physical ailment. Wall street speculators are fertile in the invention of "roorbacks" which will serve their unscrupulous purposes.

If, as Professor See, of the Mare Island Navy Yard Observatory, asserts that the moon is being drawn toward the earth, according to his mathematical calculations, at the rate of one-half inch per year is true, there is no occasion for alarm over the prospects of a collision or a lopsided appendage to this terrestrial sphere which will give the land grabber an opportunity to extend his acquisitive operations.

The Promotion Committee, Mr. Rufus P. Jennings, has returned from Seattle, whither he went occupying a special train. On arrival he announced his presence at the exposition by a telegram to President Taft, who heaved a sigh of relief, saying: "Now I am not needed. Rufus is there."

Dr. O'Donnell threatens to erupt again by being a candidate for Coroner, Mayor or something. Let us hope the rumor is well founded. Nothing will seem so much like the good old days as to have the Doctor howling on the corners from the tail-end of a cart. All was not lost in the fire.

Just a Speech

Black Labor Wanted

By Booker Washington

No one could have gone as Major Morton, Mr. Williams and I went a little while ago through several of the Southern States, without being convinced, as we were, that there is a large group of white people in the South who are just as much interested in negro education as any other group of people in America. We get discouraged sometimes because of the utterances of men who are running for office or writing a newspaper article. I prefer to form my judgment of the case on the every-day actual relations existing between individuals of the black and the white races. And I find that these are just as good in the South as anywhere—and better. Some time ago a white man in Alabama was running for Congress, and he advocated in his speeches compelling black men to leave the trades. At the very same time he was making these speeches, a black man, the best carpenter in town, was building several houses for that white man. The carpenter laid down his tools and went to the white man and said: "I am sorry to have to stop work on your houses, sir." "Why do you stop?" "What do you mean?" the white gentleman asked. "I heard you say, sir, that black mechanics must be turned out of the trades." "Why, Jim, that was just a speech! Go on, Jim—finish up those houses—and then I want you to build six more for me."

They have in Alabama a vagrant law for both races. But they can't enforce it, for, however worthless a black vagrant may be, there's always some white man he can get to go and swear that he is in his employ. There is a certain indefinable, indescribable, indisputable relation of friendliness between the colored man and white man of the South. We understand each other, and this gives me great hope for our future. I am impressed with the responsibility of the white man for the condition of the black man. Wherever in a community the white people are in a condition highly moral, highly cultured, the negro is in the same condition, if in a lower degree. I found it so in Charleston. The white people of Charleston are very high-minded, very aristocratic. The negroes there are all aristocrats, too. If any white or colored man comes from Charleston he lets everybody know it. And in the same way if I find ignorance, drunkenness, immorality, characterizing the white part of a community, I find the negro part in just the same condition.

Doctor Wrote 10,000 Prescriptions for Rum

Drunkenness on the streets of Morgantown, W. Va., is considerably greater than before it went dry a year ago, and District Attorney Boyd declares that the physicians and druggists of Morgantown have been reaping the golden harvest that formerly went to the liquor men.

According to an announcement made recently in court by Prosecuting Attorney Boyd, one prominent physician of Morgantown alone has written 10,000 prescriptions for liquor in the past year. Mr. Boyd announced his intention of making wholesale prosecutions against the physicians. So far it is a question what can be done with the druggists, but the Attorney will make an effort to include them in the prosecutions.

Counting Sundays, the number of whiskey prescriptions written by this one physician reaches twenty-seven a day. The customary price that is paid for these prescriptions is $1 each, so that the physician made $10,000 a year, while the druggist probably made half that amount. Similar conditions are said to exist all through the "dry" districts of West Virginia and Ohio.—N. Y. World.

Wrights and Zeppelin

A race between Wilbur Wright and Count Zeppelin would be rated as one of the sportiest events ever pulled off, on or over the earth.—Washington Star.

"They'll have to look after the preservation of the forests if Count Zeppelin continues to butt into the trees.—Atlanta Constitution.

Aeroplane will never become the sport it is expected to be. There is nothing to run over up in the air.—Augusta Chronicle.

Even though aviation is becoming common, the sky isn't overcrowded yet. When did you last see an air ship or a balloon?—Boston Globe.

Zeppelin's air ship was snagged, or spiked, or punctured, or whatever they call it, on a tree. Oh, dear! And just as we were fearing that he might be impaled on one of the horns of the moon.—Cleveland Leader.

Reflections of a Bachelor

We hate people for the songs they sing. Next to imagination the most important factor in a woman's life is suspicion.

A woman can stand living in most any kind of house by calling it a nest. The thing that makes a man like a girl is for her to convince him he does. The reason a woman is afraid coffee doesn't agree with her husband is it seems to.

The greatest disappointment about owning your own house is you haven't any janitor to fuss over. If there was any other way to be so continually foolish not nearly so many girls would get engaged.

College girls have mighty little fun getting educated because they haven't any trousers to roll up to the knees and can't smoke pipes that need lighting every thirty seconds.

Topics, Timely and Interesting

Chicago's Civil Service Commission recently held an examination for the place of chief gas tester, under a new law, and the results mightily please the Daily News, which remarks that "they are another illustration of the possibility of attracting experts into public service through merit tests rationally applied." The list of eligibles which the commission has posted is headed by Judson P. Dickerman, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, assistant professor of chemical engineering at the University of Wisconsin and a gas expert on the Wisconsin commission which regulates public utilities. The gas inspector of the city of Madison, Wis., is second on the list, the chief of a St. Louis gas company's laboratory is third, a chemist for Swift & Co. is fourth and the chief gas tester of Detroit is fifth. The satisfactory result of this competition is similar to that achieved by the New York State commission in examining for high grade technical positions, including even those of a legal character.

"I spoke on a wireless telephone forty years ago," said a man at a gathering where modern inventions were being discussed, and at once all conversation ceased and the man was asked to explain. "I was a boy of sixteen," he said, "and across the street from our house lived a girl with whom I never tired of talking. I figured up a means of communication, with a piece of stout twine from the third floor of our house to a window on the corresponding floor opposite. The line had at each end an empty spool box, to the bottoms of which it was made fast. These were transmitter and receiver and we used to sit for hours talking nonsense on that line. If you don't believe it ask my wife; she is the girl."

"June 1," says the English Mail of Frankfurt, "was a notable date in the annals of France. It was the thirtieth anniversary of the day on which the hope of the Bonapartists fell under the spears of eighteen Zulus. Little did those savage warriors realize how momentous had been their murder of this pale-faced youth. Born three years before the present Kaiser, whose playmate he was in the Tuilleries in 1867, the prince imperial would now have been in his fifty-third year, and who knows—if he had returned laurel-crowned from Zululand—perhaps Napoleon IV."

The advertising manager of a big business house in this city has invented a postcard which has been patented in this country and all over Europe and will probably be widely used for advertising and souvenir purposes. It consists of an ordinary post card with a round hole in the middle about the size of a quarter and a collapsible figure of rice paper pasted on the back. This figure may be any shape desired and may be printed with the likeness of historic buildings or other things it is desired to reproduce. A puff of the breath through the hole fills out the rice paper figure, which assumes the wanted shape and stays that way until again folded. It is an interesting novelty and particularly well adapted to bear figures of buildings of historic or other interest. The collapsible card will also be made in the form of a bank, with a slot for coins. The inventor happened on this idea while building cardboard figures for his little daughter.

"I see Admiral Schroeder wants to prohibit the use of cigarettes in the navy," remarked a tobacco dealer to a customer. "Well," he went on, "that reminds me of a young fellow who came in here not long ago and bought a pipe and some tobacco. He filled the pipe, lit it and started to smoke. 'I'm trying to break off smoking cigarettes,' he said; 'that's why I've bought this pipe. I inhaled the cigarettes and the doctor told me I had to quit.' I watched him a while and then reversed the physician's advice. 'You'd better go back to the cigarettes, my friend,' said I. 'Why?' he asked. 'Don't you know that you are inhaling the pipe smoke?' I asked. He didn't know it. And I guess he's taken to cigarettes again."

It was said by the Viscount d'Avenel in Paris recently that in 1509 France finds herself ten times richer than she was in the middle ages, and six times richer than she was seventy-five years ago, during the time of King Louis Philippe. This wealth has been acquired almost entirely during the last half century and is in the hands of the army of small landowners who have taken the place of the few owners of vast estates which have been broken up. France has a very small number of people possessing large fortunes. Only 5000 have incomes of $20,000 a year. There are barely ten millionaires who enjoy incomes above $1,000,000.

Our Vanishing Churches

The Rev. Dr. Walter Laidlaw of the Federation of Churches has estimated that in 1905 there were over a million (1,071,981) churchless Protestants in the city. By churchless Protestants are meant people whose antecedents were Protestants and who if they became interested in religious work would naturally associate themselves with some Protestant church.

Dr. Laidlaw shows that the membership in Protestant churches, in spite of rapidly increasing population, has barely held its own in Greater New York, while on Manhattan Island there has been an actual loss of membership.

In the first five years of this decade (1901-05) the population of Manhattan Island increased by 300,000, says the American Magazine, but the number of Protestant church buildings actually decreased by three, the Catholic churches increased only five, and the Jewish synagogues (buildings), in spite of the enormous Jewish immigration, by eighteen.

"The Roman Catholic Church has felt a similar loss of power not only in New York but in other great American cities. Concerning this tendency we have the word of no less a personage than Archbishop Falconio, apostolic delegate from the Pope.

"The Roman Catholic is not more concerned than the Jew. Although the Jewish population of New York city is growing rapidly the same disheartenment exists among Jewish religious leaders as among Christians. The Jews, especially of the younger generation, show a growing inclination to drift away from the synagogues and the teaching of the fathers."—N. Y. Sun.

The National Library

The National Library is a selected library, and its more than 1,500,000 books and its equal number of manuscripts, prints and documents contain about all that is worth knowing, even if there were no other sources of information.

This fact obtrudes itself constantly upon the library authorities, for the library is the copyright bureau of the government, and every copyrighted book, periodical, newspaper article or musical publication in the country is filed in duplicate with the library. The number of books copyrighted average about 10,000 a year. Of this number only a small percentage is regarded as worthy of a place upon the bookshelves.

In attempting, therefore, an actual comparison of the National Library with the British Museum as a storehouse of information, the effort is made from the practical standpoint, and not from that of the bibliophiles, who doubtless would regard it with amused contempt.

The fact, however, does remain that in point of public value the National Library does compare with any other in existence. In equipment and in service it is so far ahead of any other as to be in a class by itself.—Van Norden Magazine.

Pointed Paragraphs

Women and newspapers should never be judged by their wrappers. Some men are homeless and some haven't sense enough to go home.

But for the credulity of some people they wouldn't believe in themselves. Duty calls a man to church on Sunday, and pleasure urges him to go fishing.

It is said that all dogs in Peru have the Peruvian bark.

Strange that a quick lunch joint doesn't dispense hasty pudding.

SOCIALISM and Some of Its Propaganda

It may be worth recording that the Socialist propaganda in the United States is now trying to reach an even more mature intellectual class than that represented so dazlingly by the Hon. Robert Hunter, now or formerly of Grove street; the Hon. J. G. Phelps Stokes of Noroton, Conn., and Mr. Patterson of Chicago. The Little Socialist Magazine for Boys and Girls, published in this town, is the organ of this appeal, an "organ of the American Socialist Sunday School," and it contains original information on a number of subjects. Thus the Little Socialists are told that Tom Paine was "the real father of our country," "the greatest man of the American Revolution, the man who was mainly instrumental in overthrowing British rule." We wish Moncur D. Conway could have lived to see how far the reconstruction of Paine, for which he worked so effectually, would proceed.

A picture of two eagles seizing a little bird is a text for a lecture on "The Struggle for Existence." Why not "struggle together for all we need to live, and enjoy the fruit of our common labor together"? This is what people do when they camp out. This is how the Indians lived.

"They preferred to die rather than to live like the white people, where one man is rich, has plenty to eat and drink, while thousands are in poverty and thousands are starving. The white people call themselves civilized, and they term the Indians ignorant savages, but in this respect the savages enjoy a better life than those who boast of their civilization."

Whatever he thought of the historical or economic accuracy of this theory, it is well calculated for juvenile latitudes. It is a little difficult to be an Indian nowadays, and too many Indians have got rich out of land; but persuade the boys that the Indians were Socialists or that a Socialist is the nearest approach to an Indian, and the triumph of socialism is assured. Only a few good little boys will object, and they can and deserve to be slain.

From the catechism compiled by a clergyman for the Socialist Sunday School of Haverhill, Mass., we get this adaptation of the Continental Socialist Jargon to this country:

"Q. Who are the capitalist class?"

"A. They are the class who own the land and tools of industry."

"Q. Who are the bourgeoisie?"

"A. They are the petty shopkeepers, secretaries, bookkeepers, and others who receive their salaries from the capitalist class, and for which they try to please their masters by maintaining things as they are."

"Q. Who are the working classes?"

"A. They are the ones who use the tools of industry and the land, and produce all the good things of the world."

Thus a Kansas farmer would be a capitalist; the agent of whom he buys his automobile would be a bourgeois or semi-capitalist; but what would the hired man be? He uses the tools of industry and the land, but so does the farmer. Getting his wages from a capitalist, the hired man must be a bourgeois, not a workman. Indeed, how can there be any workmen except fortunate souls like Mr. Gompers, who are paid by workmen, not capitalists? Yet this distinction is only formal, for the workmen's money is paid by the capitalist. Gompers must be a bourgeois. The Little Socialists will be puzzled by these subtleties.

One lesson in the science of government by Julia Smith Holston and we are done.

"The Senators are appointed by House of Representatives which is constituted by a vote of the people."

Newly Cast Shadow of God

Mohamed V. has been girt with the sword of Osman. Standing in front of the buildings that compose the Sublime Porte, this new call of the califs drew from its sheath the similar and raised it on high. It is the ancient sword worn by thirty-four of his ancestors, and by twenty-eight of them since Constantinople was conquered. The sword was girded on the new monarch by the "Holy One of Konia." Chiribi, grand master of Dancing Dervishes, and the rite signifies that the spiritual power passes the temporal to the new ruler. A monarch he is, blue-eyed and fair of hair, with a pointed mustache, a kindly expression of face, and a rather diffident manner. The New York Sun is authority for the statement that he is a book-lover.

A Paris orientalist has in his possession an extremely rare volume of Persian poems translated into Turkish by Rehad Effendi, now Mohamed V. The book was intended for private circulation only, and very few copies were printed. The translation, it is said, shows a rare knowledge of Persian and a profound knowledge of its poetical genius.

He is starred with as many titles as a "social worker." He is the Shadow of God upon Earth. He is Sultan of Sultans, King of Kings, Bower of Crowns upon the Thrones of the World, Emperor and Sovereign Lord of the White Sea and the Black Sea, of Rumelia and Anatolia, of Armenia, Roum, Kurdistan, Azerbaijan, Chari, Aleppo, Egypt, Mecca, Medina, Jerusalem, the Holy, of all the countries of Arabia and the Yemen, and, moreover, of an infinity of Provinces Gloriously Acquired.

He is protector of the Muslim religion, sovereign and padishah of all the Ottomans. His majesty is irrefragable, his person sacred. He invests governors, names ministers, confers honors, declares war, makes peace, and commands the armies by sea and land.—Collier's Weekly.

Twenty Years Ago in Oakland

New buildings to the value of $150,000 are in course of construction in this city. In his will, which is filed for probate, George R. Bills bequeaths a personal note made in life to bequeath to the "N. W. Journalism Society of Chicago," $35,000, on the ground that he could not afford to keep it himself.

The three artesian wells sunk by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company near Twenty-third avenue gave a supply of 18,000 gallons of water per hour. The city council adopts resolutions of regret over the death of the late James A. Hearn Folger.

City Attorney Johnson says that President Cameron of the city council insulted him at the last meeting of that body and that he will not in the future attend the meetings of the council if he is to be treated as he was on the night in question.

The supervisors are to be asked for a franchise for the extension of the trunk of the San Pablo cable line northward from Park avenue to University avenue. Solitary horse cars will be used and transfers will be issued at University avenue to West Berkeley and the fare for this city to the northern suburb will be only five cents.

It is reported that Frederick Dilger will build a $45,000 tomb on his plot in Mountain View Cemetery.

Snapshots of Humorists

"Are you popular with the K. K. girls?"

"Dashed if I know. Each one always introduced me as a friend of her sister's."—Cleveland Leader.

The Teacher—"Do you know what an ink and is, Tommie?"

The Boy—"Do you mean Blackwell's Island?"

"Well, yes."

"Way, it's a piece of land on the water surrounded by guards."—Yonkers Statesman.

"Silence is golden," remarked the man, who is fond of test quotations. "It ought to be," growled the practical politician, "it costs enough."—Philadelphia Record.

WEDDING A SURPRISE.

Miss Gladys Biggar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Biggar, and Frank L. Downey were married on Tuesday, June 22, in Yerington, Nev., at the home of the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Barton. Although the young couple had announced their engagement, the wedding came as a surprise to their many friends. The bride's home is in this city but she has held a clerical position in Yerington during the past year and it was there that she met the man of her choice.

Mr. Downey was obliged to be in Santa Clara for the next few weeks on business and thought it would make a pleasant honeymoon journey as well, so the young couple were married without any elaborate preparation.

Mr. and Mrs. Downey arrived in Oakland yesterday, spending a few hours with her mother on Twenty-fifth street. They left late in the afternoon for Santa Clara, and will return for a short visit in Oakland late in July. Their future home will be in Yerington, where Mr. Downey has business interests.

HOUSE WARMING.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Swenson entertained a congenial party of friends on Saturday evening, June 19, at their new home on Twenty-fifth avenue, Fruitvale. This was the first social event given in the new home and served both as a housewarming and welcome to their friends.

Pink and white sweet peas combined with delicate ferns made a pretty decoration for the affair.

Whist was the diversion planned for the pleasure of the guests, the first prizes being won by Mrs. Charles Kinzel and Mrs. P. N. Schmidt.

After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. P. W. Mulvihill, on Telegraph avenue. Only the relatives and a few intimate friends were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will reside in

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

Port Chester, N. Y.
"About three years ago I was troubled with my hair falling out at an alarming rate. A friend of mine induced me to try a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, which I did, and it did me so much good that I have used it ever since. I can gladly say it has made my hair grow very thick and stopped it from falling out. It certainly has no equal and I gladly recommend it."
(Signed) ANNA M. BRODE

Denver, Colorado.
"Knowing the composition of Herpicide, I can state that it contains nothing injurious. In twenty-five per cent of the cases of baldness a neglected dandruff can be considered as its immediate exciting cause or associated condition. Your Herpicide will, in the vast majority of cases, cure and prevent the continuation of dandruff. It is an elegant and ideal hair dressing."

Four Generations of Pioneer Family Will Hold Reunion Today

MRS. DODSON AND SON.

A family reunion which will include four generations will be held at the home of Mrs. F. M. James, 1056 East Twenty-fifth street, this afternoon, when her daughter, Mrs. R. A. Dodson, will arrive here from her home in Fresno, together with Major and Mrs. C. K. Alston, Mrs. Jones' mother, who are coming from Alameda. The youngest member of the family is little Aubrey Dodson, who is coming from the southern part of the State with his mother.

Through the family have lived here many years, Master Aubrey is the only one who claims this city for his birthplace. An informal reception to old friends will be the conclusion of the game. Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Waters, Mr. and Mrs. F. N. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rasmussen, Miss Lulu Rossmann, Alameda; James Foster, Belvidere; Mr. and Mrs. F. Fabing, Fruitvale; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kinzel, Mrs. Charles Dunweher, San Francisco.

PICTURES TODAY.

Miss Jane Hopkins, whose picture is presented today, is a charming young visitor from Goldfield. She is the guest of Miss Helen Van Dyke and the inspiration for many attractive affairs. Last week Miss Lella Ewing entertained at an informal sewing bee when Miss Hopkins and a half dozen of the girls in the neighborhood enjoyed a delightful informal afternoon. Miss Hopkins formerly resided in Oakland and her visit is a source of much pleasure for her former friends.

Mr. William Alexander Glassford, who is one of the brides of the late spring, was Miss Eleanor Phelps before her marriage to the young ensign. She has many friends on this side of the bay, where she has frequently been the guest of the younger smart set. On Friday evening she was one of the quartet of brides who were the guests of honor at a reception given by the Mare Island Club at their pretty club house.

COMPLIMENTED GIRLS.

The Misses Harriet and Marian Stone are to be complimented with a luncheon on July 3, for which Miss Pussay Crowd has issued invitations.

Three young ladies are the attractive daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Stone and have recently returned from New York, where they have been attending the exclusive finishing schools for the past year.

CHURCH WEDDING.

The wedding of Miss Julia Fallon and Murry Sullivan was solemnized last Wednesday evening at the Sacred Heart church. Rev. Father Sarda officiated. After the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. P. W. Mulvihill, on Telegraph avenue. Only the relatives and a few intimate friends were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan will reside in the program of entertainment for the day, and visitors will remain here for at least a month before returning to their respective homes.

Mrs. Dodson is well known in this city where as a girl she was a popular member of the high-school set. Her wedding was an event of six years ago, and since then she has been living in Fresno, where her husband's business interests are located.

Major Ralston is a C. A. R. man, who started out at the beginning of the Civil War with his own regiment. Afterward he served as Captain under General Black and was later promoted to the rank of Major.

Their beautiful home on Thirty-sixth street, which has just been completed. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Mulvihill, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. White, Mr. and Mrs. J. Donovan, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Fallon, Mr. and Mrs. Parke, Mr. and Mrs. T. O'Neil, Mr. and Mrs. J. Garmard, Miss May White, Miss Nellie Donovan, Miss Irene Fallon, Miss Ida Moore, John White, Joseph Donovan, Leo Mulvihill.

RETURNED FROM ENGLAND.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Boyer have returned from their trip. This eminent professional man, during his stay in London, visited the British Medical Association and the London Hospital, where he witnessed some important operations and did some studying. While her husband was abroad, Mrs. Boyer visited her parents in Canada. The return trip was made by the way of Seattle, where they were joined by Mrs. Carl Schilling, who returned to Oakland with them.

Dr. and Mrs. Schilling planned a long trip, but owing to unavoidable circumstances, was obliged to curtail her outing.

DINNER HOSTESS.

Mrs. E. L. Bartholomew will entertain at dinner this afternoon, the affair being given in compliment to George Kruger, the well known pianist, who has recently come to the coast. Other guests at dinner will be Miss Elizabeth Price and Miss Mildred Turner. For the evening the hostess has asked a number of friends to bring their musical instruments to her dinner guests to give an informal musical.

Mrs. Bartholomew has a beautiful new baby grand piano which is a delight to all of her musical friends.

AT THE KEY ROUTE.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Ambrose (Florence Bramhall) are established for the present at the Key Route Inn. This young couple who have given their friends a succession of surprises are not planning to leave for Japan just at present, and perhaps they will not go after all. They seem imbued with a spirit of mischief and a delight to keep their friends a-guessing.

ON HONEYMOON.

The marriage of Charles L. Sclarini and Miss Belle Emily Sclarini, two of West Oakland's popular young people, took place last evening at the residence of the bride's parents, 1685 Eleventh street. The young couple are well and favorably known to many of Oakland's people who wish they joy and happiness.

Mr. and Mrs. Sclarini left for Seattle on their honeymoon.

AT SAN ANSELMO.

Among the society folks who are sojourning in Marin county during the summer months are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Van Felt and their daughters, Miss Ellen and Miss Anita.

The family have taken a cottage at San Anselmo and anticipate a most enjoyable summer.

THEATER PARTY.

A party of friends which included Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. M. Eckert, Miss Harriet Cole and Miss Ella Hepburn crossed the bay on Friday and attended a performance of the "Blue Mouse" at the American Theater. After the play the party enjoyed a dinner at one of the local cafes.

AT NEW HOME.

Mr. B. A. McAllister, Land Commissioner of the Southern Pacific, Oregon & California and Central Pacific Railroad Companies, has purchased the residence at 1407 Seventh avenue, East Oakland. Mr. and Mrs. McAllister and family are not at home to their friends.

AT SANTA CRUZ.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fisher, of East Oakland, are spending a few days at Santa Cruz.

WEDDED AT PARSONAGE.

Teddie Rogner and Miss Laura Manchevich were married June 14th at the parsonage of the Centennial M. E. Church in the presence of a few friends. The groom was recently discharged from the United States Army where he has finished his term of service. The bride is well known in Oakland and vicinity where she has resided for some years. After the ceremony the young people left for a honeymoon journey through the State. They will leave later for the East where they will take up their residence at the former home of the bridegroom.

Continued Growth of Oakland and Other East Bay Shore Cities

OAKLAND'S FAME NOW GROWING

Visitors Take Notice of Its Extraordinary Expansion

REPORTS of local railway extensions and the establishment in Oakland and vicinity of important industrial plants for which plans are being evolved are so persistent that credence must be given to them. At all events that is what the men in closest touch with the material affairs of this side of the bay are doing. The very atmosphere is saturated with these rumors of early local development involving the employment of many men and the expenditure of a vast amount of money. It is, therefore, assumed that the three cities on this side of the bay and their suburbs are on the eve of the most important and extensive movement in real estate trading that has ever been witnessed. All of the great industries of the state are flourishing this year. Every miner, farmer, manufacturer and trader is making money. Big crops of all kinds and good prices in their markets are bringing large returns to the farmers and fruit-growers and the outlook for vineyardists and wine makers is far better this season than it was the not directly interested in the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition at Seattle, it is indirectly reaping a great present and prospective benefit from it. A great many persons en route to the exposition are passing daily through this city and are making a long enough stay here to inspect it and its suburbs and satisfy themselves regarding the changes that have taken place within the past three years. To all of them the testimony of their own eyes is more surprising and impressive than any description they had previously read. In fact, those who have visited Oakland on their way from Los Angeles and other sections of Southern California marvel over the changes that they see. They confess that they exceed all opinions formed on reading published accounts. They frankly confess that Oakland has made plans and every new insight into it which is given to the public shows that they have been laid out to conform with the prospective growth of Oakland and its suburbs and expedite its development. Its rivals in the field of transportation are also active. The Western Pacific railroad has signified its intention to begin the operation of its transbay ferry service September 1, by applying to the State Harbor Commissioners of San Francisco for a slip at the ferry landing for the use of its boats. All of these movements have a direct bearing on property values, the commercial interests of the city and the inducements for population to settle here.

REALTY DEALERS TO MEET HERE

State Organization of Brainy Men Who Understand the Values of Property

The Oakland Real Estate Association, which for a number of years has been on a successful basis, is now busily engaged in the matter of entertainment of the members of the California Association of Real Estate Men, who are now scattered throughout the State. The association in question was formed several years ago, and immediately found favor with the realty dealers in this part of the State. One of the State conventions of the order was held in Sacramento, and there was a great attendance, for the reason that there were many questions which were at the time before the public affecting the landed interests of the country and, in a special manner, California. The Oakland realty dealers have never done anything by halves in the matter of showing up the richness of the soil of this county and the reasonable figure at which it could be secured. Persons who were disposed to make proper use of the soil have always been placed in a position to glean all the necessary information of the valuation of property from dealers in

TWO STORIES TO BE ADDED TO O. B. OF S.

New Bank Building, Corner of 12th and Broadway, Already Needs to Be Enlarged

The Oakland Bank of Savings has decided to erect two additional stories to the new building on the northeast corner of Twelfth and Broadway, which was completed only a little over a year ago and has already been found to be inadequate to meet demands for office room by would-be tenants. The two new stories will make the bank building an eight-story structure. The waiting list of applicants for office space has been, since the day of the completion of the six stories now occupied, large enough to fill the two new stories. On the new seventh floor there will be twenty rooms. The eighth floor has been leased to one tenant and will be subdivided as desired. Dickov & Reed, the architects, are preparing the working plans and will have

MONDAY LUNCH FOR REALTY MEN

Frugal Repast Which Will Be Attended by Experts in Real Estate

Next Monday, at noon, there will be a luncheon given at the Forum, on Broadway near Fourteenth street, at which there will be a large attendance of the members of the calling. At this assemblage there will be a number of interesting speeches delivered by the members of the association, which latterly has become one of the most important business associations in this section of the country. These weekly gatherings of the organization have been of the most interesting character, for the reason that they comprise an exposition of news of the world of realty and, at the same time, some of the most important happenings among the many people who are here at the present time, looking for the best means of investing money. Both for the building of homes and of securing handsome returns upon the money invested. It is known that, at this time, there are hundreds of people in this community seeking for investments of this kind. SALES ALWAYS MADE IN OAKLAND REALTY. "Some people in my line declare there is always a greater amount of business in the realty business during the summer months than there is at any other time of the year. This is a statement which has annoyed me a great deal, for the reason that I have never seen a summer vacation pass, even when I was in the mountains and enjoying myself, that I did not make sales which returned to me a handsome result!" These were the words of one of the best-known realty dealers in this section of the country. "I do not like," he continued, "to hear members of my own calling giving a black eye to the business, as also to the town. There is no time when we do not do business here, and not infrequently the business is transacted by some of the most unpretentious people in our employ. These sometimes make good salesmen, and we are glad to have them with us. But, generally speaking, there is a great deal of business in the realty line in Oakland at all seasons of the year. I am inclined to think that there is no city of its size in the world where there is a greater showing to be made in the matter of the transfers of realty than there is in Oakland."

last. Citrus growers made big money out of last year's crop and the indications are of the most favorable character for a repetition of the experience in next winter's packing. All of these things mean that the inhabitants of the interior will have this summer lots of surplus cash.

Money For Investment

Prosperity in the interior of the state means large investments in realty in the big cities where the greater returns are possible. Oakland and its environs have become conspicuous in the public eye through the country of late years, that they will naturally benefit largely from the general prosperity which prevails.

Surprised-Visitors

While apparently Oakland is more marvelous strides in material growth and development than they had dreamed was possible; that it has become a great city; that its future progress and expansion into one of the most prosperous and biggest commercial and industrial cities of the country is assured and the measures taken for its adornment will soon make it also one of the most beautiful cities in existence.

Suburban Expansion

Aside from the internal changes and improvements which have taken place and been made in Oakland proper, the expansion of the settled territory tributary to it is still more marvelous to this class of visitors. A solid, compactly settled area from the eastern boundary of San Leandro to the county line north of Berkeley, which, whether consolidation will ultimately be carried out by regular legal process or not, they recognize as the Greater Oakland in fact, Oakland proper being the parent city and the adjoining cities and settlements its natural offspring, with which it must in future be indissolubly united and be forever after known under its name.

Railroad Development

The maturing of the plans of the Southern Pacific company for the extension of its electrified local railway system to San Leandro within the next twelve months is sure to be an important factor in the future growth of Oakland's eastern suburbs. Gradually the Southern Pacific is unfolding its

BIG PAIR OF FLATS FOR BERKELEY

Plans Call For a Structure That Will Cost About $10,000

Ground is being broken for a two-story and basement shingle house, on the south side of Virginia street, adjoining the Hillside school, Berkeley. The building to be erected contains two modern and strictly up-to-date flats of six rooms each. The plans, which were prepared by Architect Arthur T. Ehrenpfort of San Francisco, call for a high grade of finish. The size of the living rooms is 16x20, and they are finished in oak. The recreation hall and dining rooms will be beamed, paneled and finished in mahogany. Special attention has been given to the plumbing. The floors and walls of bathrooms will be tiled and each door will have instantaneous water heaters, steam heat, etc. A large open porch, overlooking the university grounds, will also be found on each floor. The building will be ready for occupancy by October 1, and represents an investment of $10,000.

MANY VISIT WASHINGTON HOME.

The ancestral home of the Washingtons, at Sulgrave, in Northamptonshire, is becoming a new Mecca for Americans visiting London. The house is a quaint old manor house, dating back for 750 years. Lawrence Washington, the great-grandfather of the first President, made this his home for many years, until his brother decided to emigrate to the pleasant Virginia colonies in search of a more adventurous career and a larger patrimony, and thus perpetuated the name of Washington in America. There have been numerous parties organized recently to make this trip to Sulgrave Manor House, which stands in the midst of its quaint old park just outside the village of Sulgrave, and only three miles from Hemel Hempstead, on the Great Central Railway. The nearness of the place to London and the fact that it is as yet little known to tourists makes it especially attractive.—London letter to the New York Herald.

The hiss does not always mean disgust and reprobation. In Japan it means delight. A Japanese in greeting one hisses. In West Africa the hiss denotes astonishment. In the New Hebrides they hiss before anything beautiful. The Basutos hiss in sign of cordial agreement. Among the Nubians of North Africa the hiss denotes satisfaction.

REALTY INTERESTS IN BERKELEY

Growth of the Town Northward—Building Activity in Claremont District

BERKELEY, June 25.—The opening of new tracts in the northern section of Berkeley—Thousand Oaks, Northbrae, Cragmont, Berkeley Heights—and the rapidity with which sales are being made in that vicinity is proving the theory of realty dealers and other business men of Berkeley that the city is growing northward and that, there being no natural barriers in this direction, its growth will continue.

Near the county line land has increased in value in the last two years at a greater rate than ever before. Realty dealers in Richmond, on the other hand, are finding sales of property in the vicinity of the county line more easily accomplished every day. The fact of an improved system through Berkeley to Richmond is said to have been one of the main causes of the activity noticed in that locality.

New Buildings in Claremont

The greater portion of the building in Berkeley this week is being done in the southern section of the city, principally in the Claremont district. As usual with the Claremont homes, all of the new residences are in process of construction in the vicinity of the city line, and of imposing size. Over 15 new homes are either just completed or nearing completion in that section, some of these being on a par with any of the residences of the bay region. Among them are the new home of H. J. Hart, which cost over $80,000, the new residence of Henry W. Taylor, an imposing structure, the furniture for which is now being purchased in Europe by the owner, and a number of others of the same style.

Renew Work on Hotel

The word has now been definitely given out that the resumption of work on the new Claremont hotel, which is to be one of the most up-to-date structures on this side of the bay, will take place on July 1. All of the difficulties having been overcome which were blocking the progress of the building. Money has been loaned by the banks on the bonds of the company backing the project and word has been sent to the contractors to proceed on the date mentioned. It is thought that the assurance that the magnificent hotel is to be completed in a large measure, responsible for the unusual activity in building and the sale of land in that vicinity.

Hotel Contract Let

The contract for the construction of the five-story hotel of the Shattuck estate, at the corner of the city line, was let to day and Shattuck is now being let this week and work will be commenced.

on the building as soon as the material which has been ordered arrives. This will be the first hotel of the kind in the business section of Berkeley and business men of the city say that they are certain that the project will meet with the utmost success, as a hotel in that section has long been the desire of the merchants, traveling men and others who are paying flying visits to Berkeley, complaining that they cannot receive accommodations near the business center.

Work was commenced at the first part of the week on the new apartment house at the corner of Grove and University avenue. The building will cost $12,000 and will be the property of W. B. Heywood of 1041 Walnut street, Berkeley. It will cover a floor space of 25,137 feet and will be a modern, up-to-date structure in every respect.

The excavation for the new office building at the corner of University avenue and Shattuck has been practically completed and the construction of the building will take place immediately. The building will be one of the most artistic of its kind, the plans calling for a structure on the order of one-story ornamental "bungalows." It will be used for stores and already a great number have been engaged in the new building. The structure will be modern in every detail, containing the latest improvements in lighting arrangements, sidewalk elevators and other modern conveniences.

Building Permits

The following requests for permits to build have been made at the office of the building inspector:

Two-story, 8-room house at corner of Regent and Stuart streets. H. T. Haden, owner. Cost, $2800.

One-story, 6-room dwelling at Lincoln and McGee streets. B. H. Palmer, owner. Cost, $1400.

One-story, 5-room cottage on Bancroft way, near California street. Central Building Co., owner. Cost, $1000.

One-story, 4-room cottage at Bancroft way and Eighth street. Thomas Bolt, owner. Cost, $620.

One-story, 8-room flat on Parker and Shattuck. Mr. Lamont, owner. Cost, $4400.

One-story, 5-room cottage at Carleton and Grant streets. M. Lanier, owner. Cost, $3240.

One-story, 5-room cottage at Delaware street and San Pablo avenue. Mrs. Chas. Rooney, owner. Cost, $2000.

One-story, 3-room cottage at Snyder avenue and Seventh street. Mary Holm, owner. Cost, $200.

More Work Horse Parades.

The success of New York's and Boston's work horse parades has inspired a demand for them in Baltimore and Chicago. "By all means let the work horse have his day," says the Baltimore Sun editorially, adding that "every city should adopt the plan and set aside one day in the year when this faithful and serviceable friend of man is allowed to receive the honor and applause that is his due." The Chicago Evening Post, in a similar plea says: "Why can we not have a work horse parade in Chicago? We need its teachings as much as New York or Boston. It is a pity that the movement for such a festival started some years ago by the Anti-Cruelty Society has been lost or mislaid."—New York Tribune

ALAMEDA BID FOR GLOVE FACTORY

Realty Market Takes Upward Turn—Many New Homes to Be Built

ALAMEDA, June 25.—That there will in the near future be a new industry in this city is evidenced by the fact that the Eastern Glove Works of Trenton, N. J., has entered into negotiations with the Alameda Chamber of Commerce for the establishment of such a factory here. The investment will mean in the vicinity of $100,000 for the plant alone and it is figured that 500 hands will be secured. Secretary Ralph A. Russell has been in communication with the Eastern firm for some weeks and now it is stated that the project has a good chance of being brought to a successful issue. Secretary Russell said today:

"I believe that an industry of this class will be of lasting benefit to the city and I have been trying to locate a suitable spot for the Eastern firm. There are many opportunities for the erection of factories along the estuary and with this new industry, in addition to other prospective investments, I believe that the city will forge ahead in rapid style. The outlook for one of the most prosperous and progressive movements that the city has ever known is excellent."

Status of Realty Market

The realty conditions during the past week have been most favorable, according to realty men who are in touch with the market. While there have not been many sales of large amounts the tendency seems to be toward investment for outsiders in Alameda realty. The prices are generally to be not only normal but are underrated. Property, for instance, in the vicinity of Cedar street is in demand. Home homes are being built, but there is a steady bid by the investor to get in and buy on speculation. This property is considered to be very choice and while there are many bidders there are few who are willing to part with their holdings as the tendency in this particular section is toward a rise. Rents are nominal, as stated last week. All desirable homes offered for rental have been taken up and there seems to be little opportunity for the outsider to enter the field unless he makes an outright purchase.

Delaney and Landtett, builders, report that there has been a decided turn upward in realty. While the actual sales of land have not been numerous, there are many who have options on the select property with the intention of making their homes here.

"I am highly pleased with conditions prevailing in the realty market today. We have many bids from outside interests and these people come from all over the United States. Business in the real estate line is good and I may add that our prices are based upon a firm plan and I expect to see the greatest year in Alameda realty transactions that this city has ever known."

The establishment of the new cement factory along the estuary, which will involve an investment of nearly $2,000,000, is causing no end of comment here. The manufacture of bricks for paving purposes will furnish employment to many hundreds of thousands. R. N. Delaney states that he is daily in receipt of communications asking for particulars. The only thing that holds back the actual investment is the location of the property for the plant, but it is expected that this will be encompassed within a short time.

William Hammond Jr., of the real estate firm of Hammond & Hammond, in talking about real estate matters today, said:

"Conditions are most favorable. We are in receipt of many inquiries from Eastern people who are ready and have the money to invest, but it takes time to put these big engagements through. I believe that never before has Alameda experienced so successful a season in the realty market. One of the indications of a healthy market is the steady value which prevails upon all local realty. There has not been a marked variation in valuation since the beginning of the season, but there is a steady tendency toward a rise. If a person wishes to invest, I would advise him to invest now, for there will surely be a rise in the near future. Prices are bounding upward for the reason that the value of Alameda realty is recognized and Eastern capital is steadily

Forty-Five Room Apartment House

To Be Erected for Theodore Schlueter on 24th St. and to Cost $25,000

Theodore Schlueter of the Schlueter Bazaar is about to erect on the north side of Twenty-fourth street, between Grove street and Telegraph avenue, a forty-five room, seven-apartment house, which will cost $25,000. The exterior of the building is on the Mission style of architecture, and the plans have been drawn by J. D. Osborn of San Mateo. The apartments in the building will consist of two and three rooms each. To each of these there will be front and rear entrances. In this respect it will be a departure from the ordinary arrangement of apartment houses. In its interior arrangements "The Annabell," which is the name given to it by Mr. Schlueter, will be thoroughly up to date in every detail.

ITALIAN FARMERS DO VERY WELL IN AMERICA

About fifteen years ago Chianello Bergamo, a Sicilian, drifted to Fredonia, Chautauque county, N. Y., as a day laborer. He applied at a canning factory for work for himself and a friend from Sicily, and they were accepted but owing to a prejudice against Italians they were unable to secure a house within two miles of the factory. Undaunted they moved in, and by the time the factory was in operation they had secured a house and were themselves so well liked that the numerous Sicilian families that followed found no difficulty in securing houses. The factory attracted them only as a means to an end; what really drew them was the sunny land suited to grape culture. At that time they could save from their wages and were invested in land and planted out to vineyards. Now there are 1000 Italians in Fredonia, and the great majority are farmers. In that vicinity Americans have to hustle to keep up with them. Land which sold ten years ago for $50 and $75 an acre cannot now be bought for less than $250.

Three hundred Italian children are in the grammar schools, ten in the high school and two have received diplomas in Buffalo; one is a lawyer, the other is a physician. A Roman Catholic church has been built. The Italian-American community is so well established that the mission work done here by men of the colony. Fifteen years ago the only industry in Fredonia was the canning factory. Now there are two cannery, six wineries and a macaroni factory.

RAIL EXTENSIONS HELP BUSINESS*Attract Population and Stimulate Settlement—Activity in Houses and Rents

"Of the many improvements contemplated in Oakland, one of vital importance is the fulfilling of the promised railroad development," said Wm. J. Laymance, president of the Laymance Real Estate Co. "With a 15-minute service between the hours of four and six, to be inaugurated by the Key Route after July 1st, and the flyer to be placed by the Santa Fe between Oakland and Richmond, it is patent that this is caused by the demands of increased population and interurban and interstate traffic.

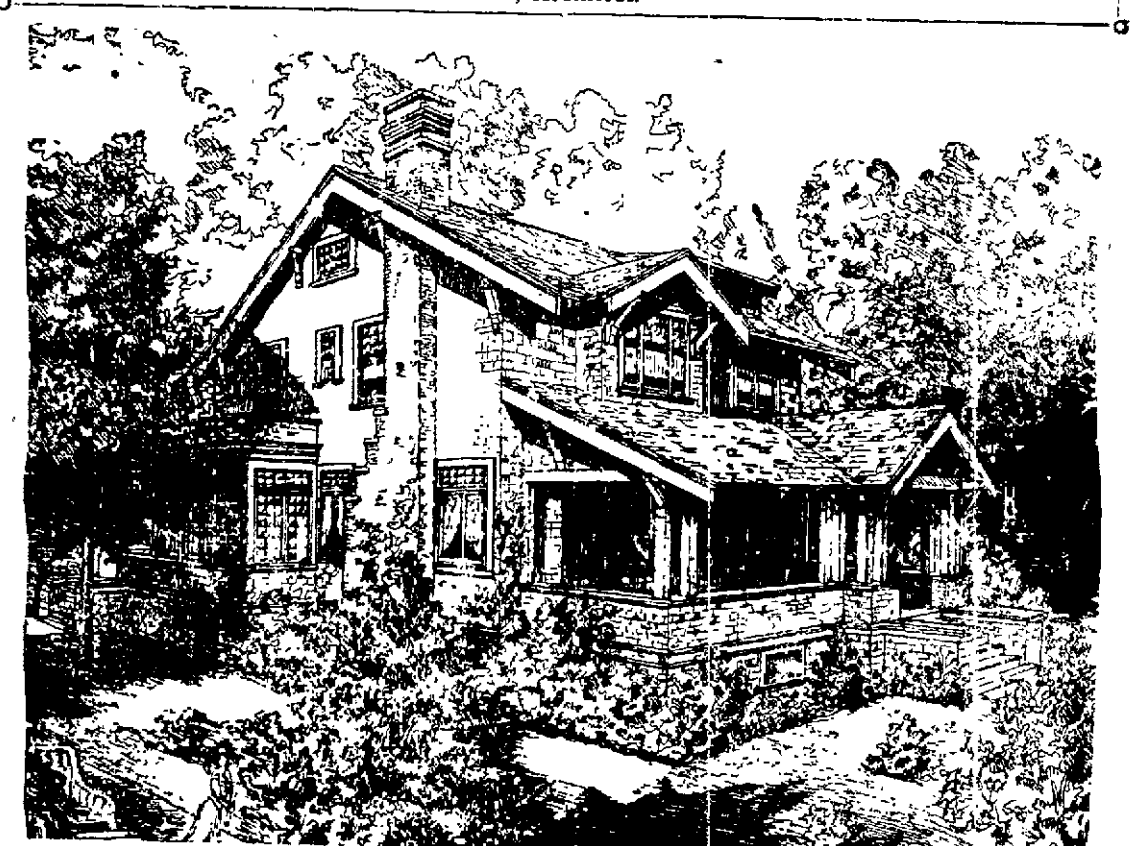

Demand for Home Sites

"This, to a great degree, accounts for the frequent calls for homes and home-sites. To meet this demand we have decided to place on the market within a very short time two of the finest, choicest and most picturesque tracts ever placed on the market. These lots will be of villa size, lying in wooded glen and on slightly hill crests. While it will be our purpose to eliminate the speculative feature, and rather to promote the high-grade home idea, these lots will be offered to the public at such prices and terms as to make them especially attractive to the investor as well as home builder. In fact, the home builder will be able to obtain a select home site with assured enhancement.

Leasing and Renting

"We can report another extremely busy week in leasing and renting. The demand for cottages and bungalows continues strong, while a need is felt for high class residences of from 8 to 10

New Residence for C. S. Wieland in Stone Orchard, Elmhurst, to Cost $7000. William A. Newman, Architect.

ELMHURST GETS A NEW BUNGALOW*Handsome Residence in Course of Erection for Charles S. Wieland Costing $7000

William A. Newman is the architect of a beautiful eleven-room bungalow, now being erected for Charles S. Wieland, in Stone Orchard, Elmhurst.

The cedar-shingled exterior has been designed in a very pleasing manner, but it is in its shape and style rather than in any elaborateness of detail that its charm lies.

On the interior, however, no expense has been spared to make this a real home. The entrance porch is wide and large and opens into a very pretty hall with a unique stair effect finished in oak. To the left is the great living room with massive open fireplace and pretty multi-paned windows, while a wood-paneled kitchen, but there will be a high class cafe on the first floor for those who do not wish to do their own cooking. In the basement there will be a billiard room, children's play-room, and a store room for each apartment. Here also is located the steam heating and hot water plants for the building. In addition to four large and roomy stairways there will be two electric elevators installed, assuring quick and efficient service at all times. A fine roof garden affords the tenants plenty of air and sunshine and an unparalleled view of Lake Merritt, Piedmont and Berkeley hills.

The cost of the building will be nearly $7000.

Since the list of applications for permits which appear elsewhere was made out, the Central Oakland Electric Light and Power Company filed an application with the Board of Public Works for a permit to erect a steel frame building on the northeast corner of First and Alice streets for an electric light and power house to cost $15,000. This improvement is to be made on the land recently bought for $50,000 from the Stadler estate. The three story tenements and theater erected on the property to accommodate the Chinese refugees driven out of San Francisco by the earthquake and fire of April, 1906, are being torn down to make room for the new structure, which will be both earthquake and fireproof.

A new residence is being erected for Charles Kuhn, Fruitvale, on a lot 100x57, located at the corner of Twenty-eighth avenue and East Sixteenth street. It will contain seven rooms and bath and hall. The parlor and dining room will have high paneled walls and stonish shelf, with a Swiss mantle composed of a combination of brick and sandstone. The cottage will be provided with the latest in sanitary plumbing and high-class fixtures. The second story will contain the bedrooms, all provided with spacious closets. This story is also connected with the laundry room by a clothes chute. The outside will be shingled with redwood. A Swiss style of architecture has been adopted by the architect, F. W. Burki of Fruitvale. The cottage will cost $2800.

Wall Street

(BY THOMAS C. SHOTWELL)
NEW YORK, June 26.—Stocks were very in-regular today in a dull market. Western markets continued weak but the steel shares were strong in spite of renewed reports from Paris that the lifting had been abandoned for all. Also, while Interborough-Metropolitan reached a new high record and closed there,
Central of New York record and closed there.

SALES OF STOCK
IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, June 26.—Arthur P. Heinze found guilty by a Federal jury of corporate fraud in the administration of justice and was sentenced to prison for one year. British steamship lines report heavy drop in storage passengers. Lord Fitzmaurice resigns from the British cabinet. John Crosby Brown is dead.
Industrial and mercantile centers are of an encouraging nature. Bradstreet's says improvement is more manifest this week. The main spring being better crop reports. Details of corporation tax agreement published. Senate recreation bill may include a nation cutting.
Producers expect another decrease in stocks of copper for June. Banks gained $7,144,000 on week's currency movement. Its case in Pa.

West Oakland Girl Becomes Bride at a Pretty Home Wedding

Miss Bella Sciotte and Charles L. Sciarini were married last evening at the home of the bride's grandfather at 1885 Eighth street.

The ceremony was read by the Rev. Father J. E. McNally, and only the near relatives of the bride and groom were present. The parlor was artistically decorated with carnations, roses and sweet peas.

The bride is a popular West Oakland girl and the granddaughter of Ferdinand Sciotte, one of the oldest residents of this city. The groom is in the employ of the Southern Pacific.

SIERRAITES CAMP IN THE YOSEMITE

(BY WINNIFRED JUNE DE GRASSI.)
SIERRA CLUB CAMP, Yosemite Valley, June 23.—To those who have never experienced the charm of magnificent pine trees for walls, the starry heavens for roof, and the distant roll of waterfall for lullaby, the pleasures of such a camp as this are so far from anything within their imaginations that they are not capable of picturing its attraction. Within half an hour after the coaches had landed their passengers from El Portal to the camping ground, everyone was "moved in." This consisted of unpacking the baggage, which had been forwarded a few days ahead of the Sierraites. One's tent being limited to forty pounds, about twelve or fourteen of which are taken by the sleeping bag (an elderdown quilt in a thick canvas bag, open at the top only, the remaining few pounds have been carefully selected, of course). A couple of changes of underclothing, an extra pair of soft shoes for rest about camp, cold cream, a wash basin, two or three bandanas, and there you are, ready for a month in the woods. The woods are so great that one wonders how one gets on in civilization without one. Here it is one's best friend. An apron about camp, a napkin at meal time, a lunch bag on the trail and a signal of distress, is the good friend of each Sierraiter. The bandana. It deserves a capital letter.

Enter Cook and Staff

Previous to the arrival of our party here, the head cook of eight years' experience with the club, Charlie Buck, arrived with his five assistants and set up the commissary. It is simple but astonishingly capable. A set of five little sheet-iron stoves in a row behind a long counter, a pantry tent, and you have it. The Merced river rushes past, only a few feet behind it, and the hungry mountaineers sit on the pine-needled ground in front of it, enjoying excellent corn bread, rice, eggs, baked meats, beans, puddings, or corn, as the case may be. A huge pot of cold tea awaits such thirsty arrival, night or day, while hot tea and coffee are served at meal time. Mrs. William E. Colby of Berkeley has charge of the commissary, and everyone is already assured of the excellence of the camp fare under her direction.

A number of Oakland and Berkeley people are with us this year as usual. Charles Dutton, the pianist; Miss Alice Boggs, Miss Morton, Walter Radcliff, Ray Bagley, Miss Bagley, Miss Valentine, Mrs. and Miss Fife, and some new yet in the valley, represent Berkeley, while Miss Susie Culver, Signor and Madame de Grassi from Oakland and Mr. Washburn, of the Washburn School in San Jose, are also of the party. The evening camp fire calls not only Sierraites but visitors from all over the valley to its warm glow. Signor de Grassi has his violin here, we have a club chorus, and several distinguished speakers have been generous about entertaining at the firelight, too. Last evening Mr. Gleason, the well-known naturalist, spoke of his mountain experiences under the title of "Discovering My Own Footprints." The talk was delightful and instructive.

Campers Play Ball

Not the least of our good times is our baseball nine, only we play with six on a side. A ball about five inches in diameter, made of pine cones, wrapped in a bandana, with a pine limb for a bat, and we play a furious game. New rules have been found that undoubtedly will be taken over by the league when we let the secret of our interesting game out. More about it when they are better formulated.

CAMPAIGN IS WAGED AGAINST HOUSE FLY

NEW YORK, June 26.—A vigorous campaign against the common house fly has been started by a special committee of the Merchants' association, the expense of which is being borne by Edward Hatch, Jr., of this city. A circular was prepared instructing householders how to minimize the danger from this pest, but efforts to have either the board of education or the board of health distribute it failed. The still determined war waged by the committee has begun the insertion of large display advertisements in newspapers calling upon all agents and householders to screen their premises, keep them clean and to report the names of dealers in odorous things who expose them to the disease breeding fly.

YOU PICK OUT THE HOUSE

we will make it a HOME

Pay us a little each month and in a short while it is all yours

See the happy, contented young couple in the right hand picture; three months ago they were trying to keep house in a 11x14 foot hall bedroom with a gas plate for a stove. They had to make up the folding bed before they could prepare breakfast and the only thing they really owned was two suit cases and a trunk.

After reading one of our advertisements they came to learn about our credit plan and were so elated over our liberal methods they went out house hunting that same afternoon. They rented a little cottage in East Oakland and the next day had the best time of their life picking out their favorite pieces of furniture to feather their little nest.

Now they are "as happy as two clams at high tide"; they have a little home nearly paid for and it is costing them no more than it did to simply exist down town in a stuffy and poorly furnished room. If you haven't a home come in and talk it over. Your credit is good at Breuner's.

Seeing is Believing You Are Always Welcome

Every store is on trial every day—the people the jury. The reputation of this establishment has not been made on a basis of personal friendship. We have bought the confidence of women—the only way it sells—by giving them honest values all the time; and we find their confidence well worth the price we have paid. These special bargains offer the best evidence of our underselling ability we've ever introduced. You're the jury—what's your verdict?

Optical Service

9. Quick Repairs

Here we claim superiority. No optical house, east or west, can surpass in efficiency this division of our service.

Here are mechanics charged especially with the duty of completing repairs in advance of all regular work. Here are mailing clerks that keep watchful eye on all breakages from the moment they enter the house until mailed on the train best calculated to get them promptly to the sender.

It doesn't matter who made your glasses. In the event of breakage gather the pieces and bring them to us. We'll do the rest.

If you live in town you can usually have new lenses ground or repairs made while you wait.
